Gov. Hurley Demands Rigid State Economies

CURLEY ON STAND IN CITY SUIT

Hurley Calls For State Costs Cut

Curtailed expenditures in all state departments with a view to "alleviating the tax burden on our citizens" were demanded by Governor Hurley today.

Charles P. Howard, chairman of the commission on Administration and Finance, was directed to send a signed statement by the Governor to all department heads.

"I . . . request these executives to scrutinize every item of their forthcoming budgets with a view towards curtailing expenditures and thus alleviating the tax burden on our citizens," the statement read in part.

"It is my hope that estimates may be pared in order that the increased financial load of our Old Age Pension Division may be absorbed at a minimum cost to the taxpayers.

SAYS FACTS MUST BE FACED

"We must face the fact that the passage by Congress of the Social Security Act will necessitate a large increase this year in our budget requirements. Department heads must recognize our plain duty to care for the aged and infirm, and so reduce their estimates as to permit our taxprayers to carry this additional burden."

The Governor pointed out that since the law requires estimates for public expenditures be submitted to the budget commissioner on or before December 1,"it was not possible for me to address the state department heads relative to the preparation of their budgets for the current year."

NEED FOR ECONOMY

Emphasizing the need for economy and curtailed expenditures, he declared:

"It is my intention to hold department heads strictly accountable for reductions consistent with the efficiency of their respective departments."

"I feel confident the department heads will recognize their responsibility in this matter and will cooperate with me toward a common end," the Governor said.

3000 Speed Job Census Here

In a mighty one-day drive, more than 3000 local letter carriers today began distribution of 700,000 unemployment census blanks in the 25 cities and towns of the Boston postal area.

The delivery was just one small part of the greatest task the United States Post Office Department has ever undertaken a task by which Uncle Sam hopes to have a complete picture of the nation's unemployment problem all within the space of 11 days.

Lodge Demands War Pact Probe

Expose of the Balfour Document Spurs Move for Caution in Foreign Affairs

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

(Copyright, 1937, by International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—A growing demand swept cabinet, congressional and veteran circles today for pursuance of a cautious foreign policy to avoid entanglement a European intrigues.

This move followed exclusive publication by International News Service of the Balfour document, revealing how the World War allies pledged a division of territorial spoils while the American people thought they were fighting for preservation of democracy.

A sharp split has developed in President Roosevelt's cabinet it was learned on highest authority, over the question of American "cooperation" with European nations in negotiating a settlement of the Sino-Japanese war.

One section of the cabinet, led by Secretary of Interior Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, was reported aligned against such "cooperation." This faction proposes:

1. The neutrality law be invoked immediately against both Japan and China.

2. The United States withdraw from the wartorn sections of the Orient, to avoid involvement in that conflict.

3. The United States cease its active cooperation with European nations in seeking a settlement of the Sino-Japanese war, with recall of the delegation from the 9-power conference at Brussels.

This program was advocated too in congressional circles and among veterans of the World War.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., (R) of Mass., whose namesake grandfather led the famous Senate battle against American entry into the League of Nations, declared publication of the Balfour document proved the necessity for recalling the American delegation from Brussels.

Lodge also urged a Congressional investigation into the

PRESIDENT HAS INFECTED TOOTH; GARNER HAS ONE PULLED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt cancelled all his engagements today because of a painfully infected tooth, while Vice-President Garner was having one pulled.

Mr. Roosevelt's trouble was more serious. It developed last night after dinner and caused the President to lose considerable sleep.

A naval dentist, called to the White House this morning, found the tooth infected. Dr. Ross T. McIntire, the President's physician, then was consulted and found the President had a slight temperature.

Shortly afterward, officials announced concellation of all engagements for the day, including the usual Tuesday press conference.

They said the dentist would treat the infected tooth several days before determining whether it should be extracted.

Mother Cabrini Nearer Sainthood

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 16 (AP)—A decree recognizing the heroic virtue of Frances Xavier Cabrini, founder of the Institute of Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, will be made by Pope Pius Sunday.

The reading of the decree constitutes another step toward the beatification and ultimate sainthood of Mother Cabrini, who died in Chicago in 1917.

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (INS)—Only two days old and already signalling trouble ahead, the special session of Congress today plunged the Senate into an angry snarl over the anti-lynching bill and an immediate threat of a filibuster.

A parliamentary maneuver by Senator Byrnes (D.) of South Carolina, designed to win immediate consideration of his executive department reorganization bill, brought on the tangle.

Proponents of the anti-lynching bill won recognition and moved to take up the measure promptly.

Despite the shouting of Senator Byrnes, who loudly called on the chair, occupied at the time by Senator Clark (D.) of Missouri to recognize him so he could move to take up the reorganization bill, Senator Wagner (D.) of New York, co-author of the anti-lynching bill, was recognized and got in his motion.

STORMY SCENE IN HOUSE

Southerners were ready to fight tooth and nail against the anti-lynching bill, a determined bloc being pledged in advance to try and "talk the bill to death."

Restore Life To 'Dead' Baby

Newly-Born Boy Saved By Brockton Firemen

BROCKTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—A newly-born twin boy, apparently dead for some time, was revived today by firemen, who labored over the infant with an inhalator until breathing was restored.

The first of the boys, born to Mrs. James Dodd, wife of a leather dealer, was in robust health. But when Dr. John A. Pettey delivered the second child he immediately ordered the firemen called.

A squad worked over the infant for 15 minutes before there was any sign of life.

Dr. Pettey said the child had a good chance to recover.

Plane Crash Kills 5 of Royalty

The Grand Duke George von Hesse bei Rhein and members of his family were en route to the wedding in London of Prince Ludwig von Hesse, great-grandson of Queen Victoria and military attache of the German embassy there.

The Prince, whose marriage to Margaret Campbell Geddes, daughter of Sir Auckland and Lady Geddes, was set for Saturday, collapsed at Croydon Airport when he learned o fthe tragedy.

ENTIRE FAMILY KILLED

Killed with the Grand Duke were his wife, the former Princess Cecile of Greece and Denmark; their two children, Ludwig Ernest, 6, and Alexander George, 4, and the Grand Duke's mother, the Dowager Grand Duchess von Hesse bei Rhein.

The former Princess Cecile was a first cousin of the duchess of Kent. She was 26. The Grand Duke, 31, formerly known as Prince George of Hess, succeeded to the title, only three weeks ago on the death of his father, Grand Duke Ernst Ludwig.

Three plane crew members; the von Hesse maid, Lina Henar; and Mr. and Mrs. von Riedesch zu Eisenbach were the other victims.

The airliner, operating between Munich, Brussels and London, hit a chimney and burst into flames as it plunged into a brickyard near the Ostend airfield.

FORMER AMBASSADOR

Sir Auckland Geddes, the father of Prince Ludwig's fiancee, was British ambassador to the United States from 1920 to 1924.

The dowager Grand Duchess had planned to stay with the dowager Marchioness of Milfordhaven at Kensington Palace during the wedding festivities. Her son, his wife and the two children were to have stayed with Lord and Lady Mountbatten, who had sent a car to Croydon to meet the party.

3 Kidnapers Tie 5, Flee Jail

JAMESVILLE, N. Y., Nov. 16 (INS)—Coolly and almost casually, three of the O'Connell kidnaping gang awaiting transfer to escape-proof Alcatraz walked out of Onondaga penitentiary today, guns in their hands, one guard with them as a shield, and leaving five others bound hand and foot.

Trussed in his own auto, the hapless guard later was abandoned in nearby Syracuse where the gang had driven him.

GUN SUBDUES GUARD

Only a few minutes later, a mysterious roadster with New Jersey license plates roared through the darkened streets, possibly carrying the desperate trio and their contraband guns.

With saws smuggled into the prison, pint-sized Percy Geary paved the way for the escape. Nobody noticed him sawing the bars of his cell. It was too late to become suspicious when Geary squeezed through a gap in the bars, confronted Guard John Corbett with a gun and forced release of Harold "Red" Crowley and John J. Oley.

Three of the "mob" who kidnaped John J. O'Connell, Jr., of the politically powerful Albany family, are already in Alcatraz, in San Francisco Bay. Only yes-

Ex-Mayor Refutes Graves' Charges

Taking the witness stand in superior court today in his own defense, former Mayor Curley denied that he knew, or ever talked with Frederick H. Graves, whose affidavit is basis of the $50,000 suit by the city against Curley and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso.

In his affidavit, Graves charged he talked with Curley in Washington in 1933 about settling the General Equipment Corporation suit against the city and that Curley asked: "What is there in it for me if the case is settled?"

Curley testified for 17 minutes. He was followed by two other witnesses, both of whom declared Graves' reputation for truth and veracity was not up to standard, and then Santosuosso took the stand.

The present suit, in which Curley and Santosuosso are defendants, grows out of an $85,000 settlement of the General Equipment suit, made while Curley was mayor in 1933. Samuel Silverman was corporation counsel and Dr. Santosuosso represented the corporation.

CURLEY TALKS LOW

Preceding Curley on the witness stand today, Silverman, who said yesterday that he and the former mayor and governor are no longer friendly, testified the settlement was made the day after an assistant corporation counsel had rendered a written opinion that the city could win the suit.

Curley, as he testified, stood with both hands thrust into trousers pockets. He replied to questions in a quiet voice, at times almost inaudible to the spectators.

In answer to the questions, put by Wendell P. Murray, his counsel, Curley denied having benefited through settlement of the General Equipment suit. His first knowledge of the case, he said, was when Charles H. McGlue, former

Police Guns Trap Bandit In No. End

Children and Women Flee Bullets, But Nobody Is Hit

Children playing in the North Bennet street playground, North End, fled screaming in terror today as two policemen "shot it out" with a suspected auto thief.

One mother carrying a baby in her arms, fell to the sidewalk shielding the child with her body as the sudden crackle of gunfire broke out.

A pedestrian, running low like a soldier going over the top, raced to her and assisted her to safety in nearby St. Vincent's Church.

ALL 11 SHOTS MISS

Although 11 shots, some of them at almost point blank range, were fired by the policemen and their quarry, no one was hurt.

The two policemen, Patrolmen John J. O'Connor and Michael J. Rizzo, were riding in a police cruiser out of North End station.

A short time earlier, the theft of automobile license plates from a car parked at Wiggin Terminal, Medford street, Charlestown, had been reported. As O'Connor and Rizzo reached Endicott and Thacher streets, North End, they spotted a car bearing the stolen plates.

Pulling up alongside, they commanded the suspect car to halt. There were two men in the car. Instead of obeying, the driver stepped on the gas and the car shot away down Thacher street toward Prince street.

RETURNS OFFICER'S FIRE

The police cruiser gave chase. At Prince street traffic blocked the fleeing machine. The two men jumped out, running in opposite directions.

O'Connor, pursuing one, fired two shots into the air. The man turned, drew a pistol, and fired three times at the officer.

Rizzo, pursuing the other man, heard the shooting and turned back

Halifax Speeds To See Hitler

Halifax was seen off at the station by Joachim von Ribbentrop, German ambassador. Prior to his departure, he held a conference with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. He was originally scheduled to depart tomorrow.

Maine Socialite Wife Ends Life

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 16—Mrs. Richard M. Millett, 40-year-old wealthy society woman, was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning today in her garage in Richards street, in the exclusive Sylvan Site section.

Medical Examiner William R. Needleman reported a verdict of suicide.

According to police, Mrs. Millett, wife of a prominent Maine accountant, had been despondent over illness in recent years. She had undergone several operations recently, authorities stated.

Mrs. Millett, police said, left two notes, one addressed to her 14-year-old son and 12-year-old daughter and the other to her husband, the contents of which were n divulged.

The son found his mother's body lying on the floor of the garage. Police said the motor of the machine was running and the garage doors shut. Millett was in Augusta on business.

GEN. JOHNSON SAYS:

U. S. Mass House Building Needed

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 16—There has been a lot of talk in Washington about a great drive for building small homes, to activate the heavy goods industry, and recapture our fading recovery.

HUGH S. JOHNSON

It is necessary to do something. The slide started in New York city in the fur and needle trades. The employment situation there is becoming desperate. In the independent steel companies, which have no contract with CIO, 185,000 workers have been laid off since the slump started. In Big Steel where the policy is to spread the work rather than to fire men wholesale, workers are getting only about 13 hours of work a week.

There is a threatened turning off of the sunlight in the automobile industry, which has been the principal source of such recovery as we have had. If that can't be stopped, it will be a major catastrophe.

The effect of such things is cumulative and accelerating—which are fancy words for what happens when a snow-ball rolls down a mountain, going faster and picking up more weight each minute.

Such movements can't be turned around in a moment. Their plunge has first to be stopped, their direction changed and then the effect on the uptake is also "cumulative and accelerating."

I started out by saying there is "talk" of a housing drive. Talk is all there is. There has been talk of it for exactly four years, eight months and 10 days. It is what the Indians, who also invented the words "bull," "booshwa" and "bohee," call "Big hat—no cattle."

* * *

At his last conference, the President was informed that to get such a drive under way requires a 20 per cent reduction in material prices and a marked downward revision in labor costs. That is something like saying that the first thing to do in raising a prune crop on the moon is to invent a way to get there.

Against my advice, I was instructed to apply a so-called "security salary" to the skilled building trades in New York city WPA—i.e., to offer carpenters, brick-layers, etc., continuous employment for a year at as high an annual earning as they ever enjoyed, but at a much reduced hourly rate.

* * *

With the best will in the world on their part, I could not get organized labor to accept it, although I carried the fight right into their homes where the women were inclined to see advantages. The men were afraid the low hourly rates would promptly be used by the construction industry to break down the whole wage scale and with no guaranty of continuous employment.

After considerable actual experience, study and benefit of others' research, I think there is only one way to get the cost of small homes down where the rents are economically feasible—mass production by the government itself.

The difficulties are very great. The idea would be to buy large tracts of land 10 to 20 miles from large industrial centers, insure cheap, rapid transportation to the job centers and then, regardless of existing slum housing in the city, and by mass buying, mass construction and an insured annual salary to the constructions crews, proceed to build satellite suburbs.

* * *

The design would have to be of sanitary and durable cottages, but without gadgets or fol-de-rols. Studies I have seen show that, theoretically at least, the job could be done on a $4 a room rental basis—which is necessary to success.

Practically, such a plan would be attacked and sabotaged by every real estate board in the country. You never would know till you tried whether workers would move in and take and pay for the houses. It would be another billion dollar bet.

Tax Law Change Is Pledged by Harrison

Senate Leader Says Industry Will Be Given Relief

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (INS)—Revision of the general tax structure to encourage private industry and increase employment was forecast today by Senator Harrison (D.) of Mississippi, chairman of the powerful Senate finance committee.

At the same time, Harrison said, the government, "within reasonable limitations," should assist through loans and grants in the construction of public works "that will give employment to the people."

Harrison made his statement as relief from harsh provisions of the undistributed profits tax for all corporations was projected by the House ways and means tax subcommittee.

It already had decided to lift the profits tax entirely from corporations earning less than $5000.

Harrison reiterated his call to Congress to reduce federal relief expenditures, and assist with balancing the budget.

"Changes in our tax system should be made that will give encouragement to private industry to expand and increase employment," Harrison said. "This is not the time to reduce revenues, but it is time to reduce expenditures so that a balanced budget may be attained."

Harrison predicted modification of the capital gains and loss provision of the present act along with the undistributed profits tax. He pointed out, however, that this action would have to be instituted by the House ways and means committee in accordance with congressional rules.

Harrison threw cold water on the movement in the House to repeal the capital stock tax.

"I do not believe that it is wise at this time, because revenue from that source is $14,000,000 annually," he said. "There has been little complaint about this tax."

Senate in Row On Lynch Bill

in a stormy scene marked by uproarious objections from Republicans, the top-heavy Democratic majority adjourned the House today a half hour after convening.

Scarcely had the members taken their seats, following the opening prayer and reading of the minutes, before Majority Leader Rayburn asked unanimous consent to adjourn for three days. As in yesterday's turbulent session, when he made a similar effort, Representative Church (R.) of Illinois, shouted objections.

Rayburn next moved to adjourn. The session at that point was six minutes old.

FORCED BY ROLL CALL

Adjournment until tomorrow was forced by a 228-120 rollcall vote.

Minority Leader Snell sought to get the floor for twenty minutes for his colleague, Representative Gifford (R.) of Massachusetts to make a speech.

Representative O'Malley (D.) of Wisconsin, administration stalwart, promptly objected, and did so twice again when Representative Rich (R.) of Pennsylvania first sought the floor for ten minutes, later amending the request to five minutes.

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers leaped to her feet and began:

"I accuse the administration of blocking the work for which we were convened . . ."

SHOUTED DOWN

As she was shouted down by Democrats, Rich's high pitched voice could be heard above the uproar crying:

"We were called by the President to get down to business—you don't want to work?"

The uproar was renewed again when Representative Jenkins (R.) of Ohio blocked an attempt by Representative Dickstein (D.) of New York to place in the Congressional Record "a list of Los Angeles people who are engaged in un-American activity."

Rayburn renewed his motion to adjourn, and when Snell and Representative Fish (R.) of New York demanded a rollcall vote on it, the 88 Republican members rose en masse and forced it.

Christmas Bonus To Ohio Workers

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 16 (AP)—First Christmas bonus by a local industry is a $50 payment to each of the 90 employes of the Toledo Pressed Steel Company, to be paid December 15. Those who will share have been with the company a year or more. Newer employes will be given a bonus in proportion to their service.

Tear Gas 'Samples' Left for Landlord

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 16 (AP)—A man walked into the police station carrying a box which he handled gingerly.

"Here," he said, laying the box on the sergeant's desk, "are five tear gas bombs. Maybe you can use 'em. I can't."

The Road to Prosperity

It is evident that it also alarms the administration.

There is one all-inclusive reason for the present business recession and for the impending threat of another black depression, and that is the administration's mistaken philosophy of regimentation; its meddling with business, hampering business, hindering it, harassing it and ruthlessly rifling its pockets of gains that should be used to expand business and provide jobs for the jobless.

This nation, at peace, is taxed more heavily than warlike nations are taxed for war. Business cannot carry that impossible burden and go forward; individual initiative, which is the thing that makes business advance when it does advance, cannot function under a handicap so oppressive.

President Roosevelt appreciates the dangers of this unbearable situation and is calling in practical men to help find a way out of it.

LET us hope that among its FIRST expedients the administration will act, at the present special session of Congress, to eliminate the capital gains tax, or else to revise it so that investing capital can go into the expansion of industry, the promotion of trade and the increase of employment. There is no capital gains tax in England, and England is the ONE country today where money is being spent to make business busier and to put more men and women to work.

Let us hope the excess profits tax also will be revised, so that it will become possible again for business to make use of profits to build necessary reserves and to finance honest expansion.

That ALSO would make business better and provide jobs for the jobless.

To stop the business slump and start the country on the way back to prosperity it will be necessary for government to stop extorting the people's money from useful enterprise and wasting it on hordes, and constantly increasing hordes, of worthless, useless, non-productive politicians.

We must end the conflict of labor with labor, which sacrifices the best interests of the actual workers in order that a few labor racketeers may gain illegitimate wealth, and a few demagogues secure political power.

There must be an end to the ruinous process of taxing the thrifty, resourceful, enterprising, employing, wealth-creating class of the community almost out of existence, while among the idle, useless, wealth-wasting class of parasite politicians, many PAY NO TAXES AT ALL.

Farmers are paid not to farm, workers are paid not to work; one-third of the people are made idlers and dependents on largesse; building projects constructed for the poor are built with such waste that they are too costly for the poor to live in; economic bonuses and social benefits are transmuted into political bribes and used to influence elections.

BUSINESS can NOT restore the country to prosperity while politics persists in such economic and moral atrocities.

To check the business decline, politics should be called off from demolishing, stone by stone, the tariff walls erected to protect American industry and labor.

Industries are closing down, workers are being thrown out of jobs, our markets are invaded by coolie-made foreign products—all through worship of the ancient economic fetish of free trade, a discredited policy which the rest of the world has abandoned.

And let us see an abrupt end of the present effort to involve the United States in foreign complications, a policy against which the American people are in perpetual protest, since they know it must inevitably lead to eventual war.

These are things that MUST BE DONE unless we are to see prosperity disappear, business recede, employment lessen, values decline and another depression descend upon us in the midst of a wealth of material and financial and mental and spiritual resources which should make this country the richest, happiest and freest land on earth.

The President has seen the danger. Now let us hope he will proceed, with decisiveness and vigor, to lead the way OUT of danger; to level the obstacles and fill up the pits with which unwise politics has obstructed the road back to prosperity.

Senate Group to Push Own 'Granary' Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—Chairman Smith (D-SC) announced today the Senate Agriculture Committee would press ahead with its own farm program, patterned along lines of the "ever normal granary," without waiting for House action on new farm legislation.

Smith said the committee had voted to start separate action, with the Pope-McGill bill as a basis. This measure follows administration farm plans.

A special committee of southern senators, Smith said, would work out a separate section for cotton. This group included Senator Bankhead, who is urging a rigid compulsory control program.

"I'm going to call this committee together every morning," Smith shouted, "until we get some bill ready for the Senate. We've asked Wallace and his crowd up here tomorrow to explain just what all these farm bills mean."

Smith said separate programs would be worked out for cotton, corn, wheat, rice and tobacco, and "possibly some other commodities."

Wage-Hour Bill Drive Opens In House

Rush to Sign Petition Calling Measure To Floor

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (INS)—A drive to force action on the Black-Connery wage-hours bill was opened in the House today when Chairman Mary T. Norton (D.), New Jersey, of the labor committee, placed a petition on the Speaker's desk to discharge the rules committee and call the bill to the floor.

There was a rush by members to sign the petition before the House completed an adjournment roll-call. Forty-four signed it.

With Southern opposition throttling the bill in the Rules committee, Mrs. Norton seized upon the only method of forcing action during the special session. If the petition is signed by 218 members, the bill can be called to the floor on December 13.

Representative Cox (D.), of Georgia, declared 218 members, a majority of the House, will not sign the petition. Chairman O'Connor (D.), New York, of the Rules committee disputed the claim that the measure is hopelessly locked in his committee.

"Mr. Green's against the bill, Mr. Lewis is against, Miss Perkins is against it, and certainly the President's message yesterday wasn't so very enthusiastic for it," said O'Connor.

"And now the Labor committee is meeting tomorrow to write a new bill. It looks like I'm the only one for this bill."

Both President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis, CIO leader, have criticized provisions of the measure, one of the key points of the program outlined for the special session by Mr. Roosevelt.

Secretary of Labor Perkins also asked revision to lodge authority over wages and hours in the Labor department, instead of in a five-man board.

3000 Start Work On Job Census

ery of the soldiers' bonus were simple tasks in comparison to the tremendous job by which the government hopes to learn how many are unemployed in America as well as the reason why.

In Greater Boston the drive was expected to be completed by nightfall.

Postmaster Peter F. Tague today gave last minute instructions to both his thousands of employes and the hundreds of thousands of citizens who must be reached.

He urged that all unemployed and all partially employed men and women hasten to fill out the blanks to be delivered and return them at once. No stamps are necessary. The blanks are to be filled out with the requested information and given back to the postman or dropped into the nearest letter box.

Throughout the nation approximately 31,000,000 homes will be solicited for information to produce a national picture of the employment situation.

The last time an unemployment census was taken was in 1930 by the regular census bureau, but in no manner did it approach the thoroughness of today's test.

Authority for the present census was given under an act of the last Congress. It aims to provide a standard set of figures on unemployment to supplant the many divergencies in the estimated number of unemployed as compiled by dozens of public and private agencies.

THOSE TO BE LISTED

Those who are to fill in census cards are included in the following three classifications, postoffice authorities declared.

1—All persons who are totally unemployed, able to work and want work, including persons who have worked for pay, who are able to work and still want work; persons who formerly had their own business, farm or professional practice, but no longer work at it, who are able to work and want to work; persons now looking for their first jobs.

2—All persons who are partly employed, able to do more work and want to work, including persons working part time at regular jobs who are able to do more work and want more work; persons employed part time on irregular work (including casual work), who are able to do more work and want more work.

3—All persons working full or part time on projects of WPA, NYA, CCC or other emergency works projects which are supported by public funds, including persons on Works Progress Administration or on emergency projects of other federal agencies under the works program; enrolees working in CCC camps; those employed on NYA work projects; persons receiving NYA student aid; persons working on emergency work projects conducted by state or local governments as part of a work relief program.

Dr. Lyons, Morello File on Campaigns

Expense accounts were filed today by Dr. Joseph V. Lyons and Angelo Morello, defeated candidates for membership on the school commission. Lyons stated he received no contribution, spent nothing. Morello said he received on contribution, spent $800.

Carleton Brett, Social Justice candidate for mayor who withdrew from the race the day before election, stated he received $125 contributions, spent $232.40.

Mail Expert Tells About Job Census

Asst. Supt. Grady Describes How You Must Fill Out Cards You Receive

(John W. Grady, assistant superintendent of the Mails, who is directing the management of the National Unemployment Census in Greater Boston, today writes of its purpose and method in the following article.)

By JOHN W. GRADY

Today is the day the United States government takes its first census of unemployment and partial unemployment throughout the country.

The census is being taken in order that the government will have accurate information which will enable it to help those persons who are anxious to work, and who need work, but who have not been able to obtain jobs.

In Greater Boston more than 3000 postal carriers will go from door to door in their districts, leaving at every house the cards to fill out, together with information as to who should fill them out and how.

LIST 700,000 HERE

The work here will begin at 8:30 in all but the downtown section of the city.

The survey will involve more than 700,000 persons in Greater Boston. It will probably not be completed until 9 or 10 o'clock tonight.

The first and most important thing to remember is that every person should fill the card out if they are unemployed or partially unemployed, and capable of working.

Housewives who do not work outside their homes and are not looking for jobs should not fill the cards out.

Neither should persons who have jobs but are on strike and not looking for another job, persons on vacation, or persons employed part time who do not want more work.

The cards should be dropped in a mailbox. They do not need postage of any kind.

If there is anything on the cards which is not understood, or any information or aid of any kind needed, all assistance required will be given at the various postoffices throughout the city.

RULES TO FOLLOW

All report cards must be in the mail by midnight of November 20, in order that they may be compiled by sections in the postoffice and sent to Washington.

In filling out the question numbered "2," it is important to remember that you should name the county and state where your residence is located and not the county and state of the post office which brings you the card.

Also remember to fill the cards out in ink as they will have to go through a god deal of handling and shipping.

All questions should be answered fully and honestly. Cards which are obviously written in jest will be thrown away, but they will involve much loss of time and money.

In order that the census may be successful, it is essential that everyone answer fully and truthfully all the questions.

The quicker you get your report card in the mails, the quicker the census will be completed—and the sooner the knowledge obtained from the census can be used to help you.

Cambridge Youth Has Hard Time Telling Simple Truth

You remember that old one about "Who was the lady I saw you with last night?"—"That wasn't a lady; that was my wife."

Well, over at Rindge Technical School, they've a new variation of it. It goes something like this:

"Who was the girl-friend I saw you with last night, Gil?"

"That wasn't a girl-friend, that was my mother."

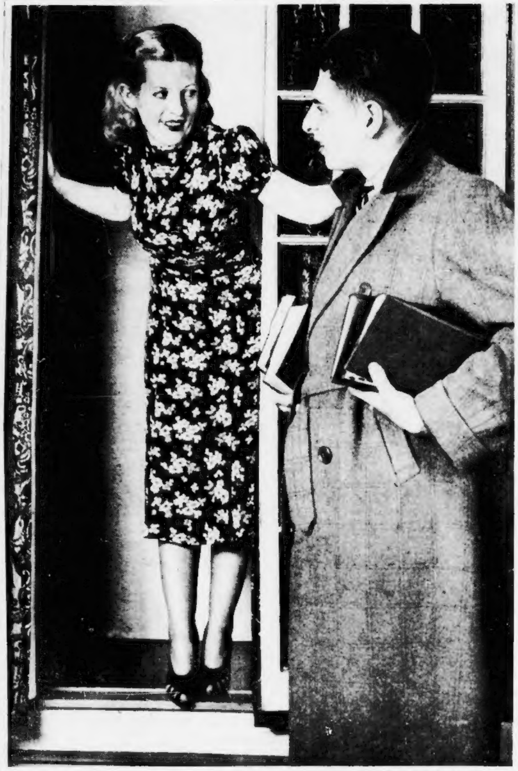
She is Mrs. Lea Cherry, Putnam avenue, Cambridge. She is 31, but she had 'em all foled the first day she walked to school with her 15-year-old son, Gilbert.

"Gil nearly came to blows with some of the boys," she admitted smilingly today. "They wanted an 'intro'—an introduction, you know—and when he told them I was his mother they wouldn't believe him."

"Aw, they were making remarks about 'Who's the new honey?' and 'Where'd you find the gorgeous blonde, Gil?' and when I told them she was my mother they laughed at me," Gilbert, who is a member of the junior class, explained.

Gil's father, Alfred K. Cherry, a World War veteran, gets a huge "kick" out of everyone's mistake. Even in their own home, strangers often mistake Mrs. Cherry for Gil's sister.

Sister? No Sir! Mother!



Boston Evening American Staff Photo

Maybe they're sister and brother, or bride and groom. Guess again! Believe it or not, the lady at the door is Mrs. Lea Cherry, of Putnam avenue, Cambridge, and the young man is her son, Gil, 15. Gil nearly came to blows with Rindge Technical high school companions who wanted an introduction to "that cute blonde."

Pons-Cimini Art Feud Ends

Lily's Film Costume Spat Patched Up

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16 (AP)—Lily Pons and Pietro Cimini, who disagree on the dignity of her scanty movie costume, will make their artistic peace tonight.

Cimini will conduct and Miss Pons will sing the title role in "Lakme," second offering here of the San Francisco Opera Company's season.

In the initial opera last night Kirsten Flagstad and Lauritz Melchoir scored in Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde."

Helping fill the 6000 seats were Ronald Colman, Joan Crawford, Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond, John Barrymore and Elaine Barrie, Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Robinson, and other screen personalities.

Radcliffe Girl Finds Harvard Boy 'Solution'

Says Series of 'No's' Best Way to Lead Him to Altar

The way to lead a Harvard man to the altar is to say a good strong "No!" to most everything he asks.

This was the advice given to the girls of Radcliffe in an undergraduate "guide-book" distributed today at Harvard and Radcliffe Colleges.

Edited by a group of university students, the book describes what purports to be a true "case history" to prove their contention that Harvard boys thrive on "No!" and run away on "Yes."

TELLS OF RIDE

"The drive was stimulating. When we got to the Harvard bridge, our phaeton suddenly turned right, into Boston. We then turned left on one of the more fashionable streets, stopped at a low number, and I was invited up.

"I declined. This appeared to produce the most annoying effect. It was suggested that we go into town to one of the 'clubs'. Again I declined.

"I was asked not to throw a wet blanket on things. Why didn't I be a regular fellow?"

CITES RESULT

But, the Radcliffe confessor said, she would not be a "regular fellow."

The result was, she asserted, that she and the Harvard "eligible" are now engaged, proving "that not all Radcliffe girls are flat-heeled and apple-cheeked any more than all Harvard men are grinds and meatballs."

Jailed in Balm Suit Contempt

Gloucester Seaman Failed to Pay

SALEM, Nov. 16—Louis F. Brown Jr., 31-year-old fisherman, who lost a $6200 breach of promise suit to a Gloucester beautician last year, languished in a House of Correction cell today as a result of his failure to pay.

The husky Gloucester seaman was jailed for an indefinite period on a contempt charge by Judge James C. Donnelly in Essex County Civil Superior Court after he allegedly disposed of holdings in violation of a court injunction prohibiting him from such action.

Mary Rosette Oliver, 31-year-old hairdresser, secured the injunction in connection with an equity action to collect the $6200 awarded her in the broken marriage pledge suit.

Brown was taken into custody on a bench warrant when he appeared in court yesterday.

Now Mr., Mrs. Livermore

International News Photograph Service

Livermore's Son, Wed, at Work

STAMFORD, Ct., Nov. 16 (INS)—After a surprise marriage yesterday, Jesse Livermore, Jr., son of the Wall Street operator, returned today to his desk with the company of which he is president. He said:

"I decided to be married Sunday so as to lose no time from business. I took over this business recently and it is going well. When I feel that I can leave it for a time we will take a bridal trip."

Young Livermore was married to Mrs. Evelyn Sullivan of Baltimore, who is several years his senior. There were reports his parents, who are divorced, had hoped to postpone the marriage because of his youth, but they gave their consent when he threatened to elope.

Dr. Briggs Denies 'Spy' Charge

Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, world renowned psychiatrist, today branded as "nonsense" the demand by Representative Francis X. Coyne that he resign his special commission investigating mental diseases in Massachusetts.

The Dorchester representative charged that Dr. Briggs was responsible for unrest in state mental hospitals and had caused trouble at Mattapan State Hospital by installing a spy system.

"The man is ridiculous," Dr. Briggs declared.

"To begin with, where is the unrest. I don't know of any except what he might be stirring up. I certainly should like him to show where the unrest is.

"As far as spying on Dr. Harold F. Norton, superintendent at Mattapan, and other officials and employes, this is an absolute falsehood."

Terrorist Band Plots Against Film Heads

Mayer, Cantor, Jewish Attorneys Selected As Victims

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16 (INS)—Authorities today prepared to "crack down" on a terrorist society, assertedly led by a man prominent in film circles, that had marked several noted Jews here for death.

The contemplated victims of the society, according to officials, included Louis B. Mayer and Eddie Cantor from the motion picture world, and several Jewish attorneys here.

The society, with headquarters in Pasadena, was revealed through a probe of the film suspect on another matter—a report that he was involved in a blackmail plot.

As district attorney's investigators trailed him, they received information that he was meeting with a group of terrorists in Pasadena.

A "plant" at one of the meetings brought authorities the information that the society was active in distributing literature subversive to the United States government, and also was discussing a plot to "knock off some prominent Jews."

Later, according to investigators, the "plant" said members of the society had decided on their victims, and had instructed one of their workers to "get some bombs."

Pat Phones His Bride Sad News

HICKORY, N. C., Nov. 16 (INS)—Feeling "fit as a fiddle" but very much out of tune with his bride and ready-made family, Basil "Pat" Ryan today set about untangling the best "whodunit" society has seen in many a day.

With the hangover handicap for blueblood males safely won, the roving grandson of Thomas Fortune Ryan looked coldly into a telephone mouthpiece and announced:

"I'm going to get an annulment."

At the other end of the wire, Martha Ryan's hand shook a little as she hung up the receiver.

For assistance on legal maneuvers Ryan had Attorney William A. Self. Football Coach Albert Spurlock was along to help strategy angles, and the short-term bridegroom with clear eye and unwrinkled brow appeared set for the legal preliminaries of getting "unmarried."

"I was drunk," undoubtedly will be Ryan's case, and he was hard at work rounding up witnesses to prove it.

A pool parlor cue expert, three school teachers and the night clerk of the "Honeymoon Hotel" were reported to be in the first draft of the Ryan expeditionary forces to make the state of single-blessedness safe for North Carolina "corn" consumers.

Said Martha's counsel:

"There is nothing to say, and we do not intend to make any comment on this side of the picture."

Dwyer to Face Trial Nov. 30

SOUTH PARIS, Me., Nov. 16 (AP)—Eighteen-year-old Paul N. Dwyer of South Paris unemotionally pleaded innocence in Superior Court today to an indictment charging he murdered his elderly benefactor, Dr. James G. Littlefield of South Paris.

Trial was set for November 30.

A report on the sanity of the youth, also charged with murdering Dr. Littlefield's wife, Lydia, 65, and driving by automobile with both bodies through six Northeastern states to North Arlington, N. J., was not submitted.

County Attorney Robert Smith said, however, that Dr. T. C. Tyson of the State Hospital, who made the examination, had found the youth to be "sane."

Dwyer was brought back to South Paris yesterday for trial after having been at the State Hospital for the past three weeks.

Board Takes Over N. H. Milk Markets

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 16 (AP)—The State Milk Control board today took over supervision of markets in the Portsmouth, Bristol and Keene areas.

Brookline Hears Dewing Crime Talk

Edmund Dewing, district attorney of Norfolk and Plymouth Counties, was the guest speaker last night at the meeting of the Allston-Brighton and Brookline Y. M. H. A. held at Temple Kehillath Israel, Harvard street, Brookline.

He spoke on the involvement of youth in crime. David Zintz, president of the organization, presided.

'Bishop of Winds' Flies Into Arctic

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 1 (AP)—Canada's 70-year-old "Bishop of the Winds," the Most Rev. Gabriel Breynat, bishop of the vicariate-apostolic of Mackenzie, set forth by plane today to return to his post in the sub-arctic. The flying churchman has been visiting Catholic missionary stations in his 600,000 square-mile vicariate by plane since 1919.

O'Hara Bailed On U. S. Charge

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 16 (AP)—Walter E. O'Hara, head of the Narragansett Racing Association, Inc., today entered pleas of innocence for himself and the corporation to Federal grand jury indictments charging violation of the Federal corrupt practices act.

O'Hara and the association were indicted last week by the grand jury which reported the track paid "close to $100,000 of its funds within a single year" to committees and persons identified with politics.

The track executive, indicted on four counts, was released in $2000 bail, furnished by Vernon C. Norton, reporter on the Providence Star Tribune of which O'Hara is publisher.

U. S. Attorney J. Howard McGrath said a trial date would be set later and that O'Hara would be allotted 10 days in which to file any pleas or demurrers. O'Hara was represented by his counsel, Raymond J. McMahon.

Deliver Census Cards At the White House

The postman grinned at the butler as he handed over the large double postcards. The butler grinned at a maid as he placed the cards on a silver tray.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, employed as President of the United States, had been included in the federal unemployment census which started today.

Governor Opens Yule Seal Drive

Kubie is the only official town crier in the United States.

The town crier was accompanied by Nathaniel Lewis, Provincetown selectman, and Arthur J. Strawson, executive secretary of Massachusetts Tuberculosis League, Inc.

Auto Thieves Get Jungle Film, Too

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP)—Thieves who stole an automobile from a driveway at the Eastman Kodak Company plant here this morning got more than they knew.

The car belonged to Armand Denis, of Putnam, Conn., an explorer, who said that $5000 worth of movie film, taken in African jungles, was in the car.

Harvard May Remake Types

Seeks Way to Change Man's Personality

Girls: Do you want to find out how to change the boy friend into a football hero or maybe a romantic-minded poet?

If so, follow the investigations of "human types" now being conducted at the Harvard Fatigue Laboratory, in an effort to determine what makes human beings fall into certain patterns and types.

Issuing a call for freshman "subjects" to be investigated, officials at the laboratory explained today that the investigation is being made also to find out how much the physical structure of a man has to do with his personality makeup.

"There is nothing abnormal in a football player or a poet," one scientist declared. "They are simply different. We are anxious to find out how much physiological makeup has to do with that difference."

Harvard officials would not discuss what the results of the investigation may lead to as far as practical results are concerned. But one admitted that if enough knowledge were obtained, it might be possible to develop personality types at will, by special development on the physiological side.

Stokowski's Wife Settles in Reno

RENO, Nev., Nov. 16 (INS)—Here to establish residence for a divorce, Mrs. Evangeline Stokowski, wife of Leopold Stokowski, noted symphony conductor, today was in seclusion at the ranch home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ruth Johnson.

Mrs. Stokowski had been residing in Boulder City before moving here.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 16 (AP)—Mrs. Geraldine Foss, 21, went to a hospital for removal of an open safety pin from her throat. But an X-ray disclosed the presence of a second closed pin. Mrs. Foss recalled she had swallowed the second pin more than six months ago.

Legion Battles Ct. Nazi Camp

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Nov. 16 (INS)—American Legion opposition to plans of the pro-Nazi German-American bund to establish a camp in Connecticut appeared today.

The Bronson Hawley Post went on record as unanimously opposed to the formation of a local unit of the bund.

Commander Nelson A. Parker of the post said a resolution would be offered at a county Legion meeting here tomorrow night condemning pro-Nazi activities in the state.

Carl Nicolay, eastern division organizer of the German-American bund, on a visit to Waterbury, disclosed purchase by his organization of 178 acres at Southbury for the largest German camp in the country.

Studies of Emotion in Divorce Court

She frowned—though she won a divorce from her husband, John J. Cheney, at Salem Probate Court. Mrs. Gladys Cheney said her husband even refused to buy soap for facial cleanliness—the husband insisting that she use the same soap she used for washing and scrubbing.

She laughed. Her story that the husband, George, beat her on several occasions brought a divorce to Mrs. Lillian Murphy, of Haverhill. She is business agent of the Haverhill Leather Stitchers Union and well known in Massachusetts labor activities.

She smiled as a probate judge at Salem set her free from a husband who she claimed has been drinking for weeks, making her life miserable. She is Mrs. Ruth Kluge, now of Boston, but formerly of Lynn. The camera caught her a few minutes after the judge granted her divorce.

Pact Revelations Stir Move To Recall 9-Power Mission

Lodge Demands Congress Launch Probe of 20 Year Suppression of Document

twenty-year suppression of the Balfour document. He added the inquiry should be broad enough to determine whether any secret agreements now exist between the United States and any European nations.

Senator Gerald P. Nye (R.) of North Dakota, chairman of the Senate Munitions Committee, joined Lodge in suggesting recall of the Brussels delegation. He warned the developments at Brussels indicated:

"Now we are on the road to war."

Millard Rice, Legislative representative here of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, praised publication of the Balfour document. He declared it proved America was "maneuvered into the position of a cat's paw" in the World War.

He urged a "more cautious policy," free from entangling alliances with European governments, and demanded a Congressional inquiry into suppression of the Balfour document.

The State Department meanwhile declined to make the document available to other news service. It has lain in the Department's most secret files since May 18, 1917, when delivered to Secretary Lansing by Arthur James Balfour, its author and then British foreign secretary.

A high official explained privately the text could not be made public by the State Department because of a diplomatic obligation to Britain.

Nye Warns That Nation Is Now on "Road to War"

Commending International News Service for making the Balfour document available for publication, Senator Lodge said:

"It is a vitally important contribution to the history of the World War. It confirms the suspicions of those of us who opposed entangling the United States in European affairs.

"The whole affair should be investigated by Congress so that we will not make the mistake at the present time of attempting to police the world and involve ourselves in European intrigues.

"This document should be compulsory reading for all those now attending the Brussels conference, so they may be forewarned. Our own delegates should come home to read it.

"I would support an investigation to determine whether there are any secret agreements between the United States and other countries. Public business should be publicly conducted and matters that affect the life blood of 130,000,000 citizens should be conducted in the open."

Senator Nye, in urging recall of the Brussels delegation, said:

"Revelation of the Balfour document is timely in view of what has happened at Brussels.

"Not only have we taken the leadership in policing the world but Britain and France have elected us manager, captain, quarterback and coach and we are going to be privileged to carry the ball all the time.

"Now we are on the road to war."

Sit Strikers Out Of Auto Plant

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 16 (AP)—Sit-down strikers, who had occupied the Fisher Body Corporation plant here for nearly 12 hours, left at 8:25 a. m. today and the management took possession of the factory.

Dorr Mitchell, president of the United Automobile Workers of America local here, said union officials ordered the men to evacuate the plant because the strike was "unauthorized." He said a conference had been arranged between union and company officials on grievances which caused the sit-down.

The principal grievance, he said, was the laying off of 500 employes.

There was no demonstration as approximately 2000 men marched out of the plant.

'Fall River Line' To Scrap Heap

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 16 (AP)—Many a New England oldster felt a heartache today as an order consigning four "old Fall River line" sidewheelers to the scrap heap awaited only a federal judge's signature for execution.

Judge Carroll C. Hincks is expected to sign the order today authorizing trustees of the New Haven Railroad to sell the four vessels, the Providence, the Plymouth, the Commonwealth and the Priscilla, for scrap purposes for $88,000. At the same time he will sign an order for a separate sale of the ship's furnishings and equipment.

Boys' Adventure Ended by Hunger

Hunger, overcoming a desire for adventure, today led to the finding of two 10-year-old Cohasset boys reported missing since yesterday afternoon.

The youngsters, Anthony Perry, a state ward living with Joseph Jason in James lane, and Donald Sweeney of Jerusalem road, failed to return to school after lunch. While police and a posse searched woodlands, a resident of the Lincoln Hill section told authorities she saw them emerge from the woods this morning. Found, the boys said they had slept in a barn three miles from home and were hungry.

Xmas Savings Fly Away, But---Boy!

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16 (AP)—Mrs. Pauline Norris shook her pillow out of a window and then remembered, several hours later, that she had hidden $165 in Christmas savings in the pillow slip.

Tops on her Christmas gift list is Edward Hofler, 10, who found the bills fluttering along the street and turned them over to police.

Pact 'Shocking,' Says Glenn

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (INS)—Secret treaty divisions of the spoils of the World War, as revealed by the Balfour document made public by International News Service, were characterized as "shocking" today by former U. S. Senator Otis F. Glenn of Illinois.

"Their publication," he said, "comes as a powerful and timely object lesson to the United States. The revelations are shocking."

Otis pointed to the nine-power conference now under way in Belgium, which was convened following President Roosevelt's Chicago demand for application of "quarantine measures" in the Sino-Japanese conflict. He said:

"Great Britain already has deserted him (President Roosevelt) in such an undertaking. No doubt he was actuated by as high a motive as was President Wilson.

"But the string of false dealings, of deceit and of greed for territory is now openly before us.

"It should teach us to stay aloof from Old World and Orient quarrels and remain on our own shores at peace with the world.

"This deceit in the World War cost us more than 100,000 lives and upwards of $40,000,000,000."

State Civic Leaders Here Laud War Treaty Expose

"Almost providential at this time."

"A disclosure that will make our people think before they plunge into war again."

Those were among the comments of Boston citizens today on the revelations in the Boston Sunday Advertiser and the Evening American about secret World War pacts among allied nations in Europe.

Publication of documentary proof of the intrigues between England and other European countries which were concealed from the people of America until the United States had gone to war brought scathing denunciation.

Officers of national patriotic and other organizations declared the Hearst newspapers had performed an inestimable service to the country through their enterprise in exposing the facts behind the war propaganda prior to our declaration of war against Germany.

The articles presenting the text of Lord Balfour's amazing statement to the British Imperial War Council in 1917 in which he informed his government leaders of the secret deals for territory, for trade and commerce caused a feeling here of resentment and humiliation.

Boston comment might be summarized into two words:

"Never again."

FORMER CONGRESSMAN JOSEPH O'CONNELL—"These disclosures in the Hearst newspapers are almost providential at this time. The American people, who even today are being urged into foreign controversies, ought to realize now that they were bamboozled by Lord Balfour and his European associates.

"Those statesmen begging us to enter the war on the allied side, protested to high heaven that the war was a war to save democracy. Now the awful truth is made known. We were dragged into that terrible affair, as a matter of fact, to save British commerce. Our people never again will sustain a government that tries to drag them into foreign entanglements."

JUDGE MICHAEL G. MURRAY—"The revelation of details of wartime secrets as made in the Boston Sunday Advertiser and the Evening American are extremely important. It is again made evident that we should keep entirely out of foreign wrangles.

"We are never going to get unselfish cooperation from those whose interests and ideals are opposed to our interests and ideals. Our first duty is to maintain an army and navy strong enough to defend our own shores and our own interests. Not only should we never have anything to do with the military operations and ambitions of foreign countries, but we should never loan them money. I think we never shall again. I congratulate the Hearst newspapers upon this fine public service."

NANCY HUDSON HARRIS, vice-president general of the daughters of the American Revolution for Massachusetts—"I have read the astonishing revelations of the Boston Sunday Advertiser and the Evening American with the deepest interest.

"Exposure of the real facts about England's secret arrangements in 1917 only emphasizes the conviction that we should keep out of European entanglements.

"We cannot be reminded too often that Washington's advice was wise and sound. Speaking as an individual I can say that I have been against the proposal to join the League of Nations from the start."

PATRICK E. KELLEHER, department adjutant Spanish American War Veterans of Massachusetts—"Through the Boston Sunday Advertiser and the Evening American We have had a new insight into the World War and the treaty which ended it. We have been discussing the Lord Balfour statement over here at headquarters.

"We feel that we were dragged into a European scheme by which certain countries were to get more territory. We were to pay the costs. We did pay a large share of them. We never again will make a mistake like that."

JOEL L. MILLER, past commander, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Department of Massachusetts—"We ought not to be in that nine-power conference. It is just another of those things that the Hearst newspapers are exposing with relation to 1917.

"Our boys went over there sincerely believing they were to fight for democracy and for the liberties of oppressed people. We can never take away from them the glory of their sacrifice. If we needed any further warning to be careful, however, it is furnished by the Lord Balfour statement. That should keep us out of future mistakes. Roosevelt, Tobin To Talk of Relief

Mayor-Elect "Goes to School" at Capital In the Spotlight

By JAMES F. DOOLING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—Concerned deeply with the problems of relief to which he will fall heir when he takes over the administration of Boston's affairs in January, Mayor-elect Maurice J. Tobin "went to school" today.

He was already up on the rudiments of this study, not only from careful preparation in past years, but from intimate discussion with other mayors of the United States who are attending the three-day seminar here.

This afternoon Mayor-elect Tobin was ready to get first-hand information on this all-important topic from the man who has taken a post-graduate course—the President.

The meeting of Boston's newly-elected Mayor and Franklin Delano Roosevelt was scheduled to precede the session of the mayors' conference, over which Mayor Edward J. Kelley was presiding and at which the mayors of Cleveland and Los Angeles were speaking.

UNEMPLOYMENT TOPIC

Both Mayor Frank L. Shaw of Los Angeles and Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland were devoting themselves to sub-divisions of the topic: "relief and unemployment."

Alan Johnstone, Chief Counsel of the Senate Committee on these problems, was another speaker.

There was little doubt in the minds of those present here that today's open meeting between Tobin and President Roosevelt would be followed by a more private one.

Mr. Tobin, it is known, is close to James Roosevelt, the President's son and co-ordinator. And besides, in less than 36 hours, Mr. Tobin has proved to the national powers-that-be that he is worth considering—just as he proved that very thing in his home city a fortnight ago.

The high regard in which Boston's mayor-elect is held was evident at every session of the mayoral seminar which he attended.

Probably as pointed an example of this is the surprise visit that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., paid to Tobin in the Tobin suite at the Mayflower Hotel last night.

MUCH IN COMMON

Despite the difference in their political creeds, these two had many things in common and were "heads together" for a long time.

Although he was too discreet to say so, it was apparent that the Mayor-elect is sincerely pleased and encouraged with this attitude, not because of any personal advantages to be gained, but because it will simplify the problems he will have to meet in getting federal aid to carry on Boston's welfare.

Most interesting thus far was the long-anticipated meeting between Mr. Tobin and Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York.

It came about at the first day's session of the mayoral seminar. Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston presented them to each other. Mayor Mansfield sat at the right of fiery little Fiorello.

An unusual tribute was paid to Mr. Tobin then. He was asked to sit at the other side of La Guardia, who is president of the United States Mayors Association.

RELIEF VITAL PROBLEM

Mayor-elect Tobin disclosed that he spoke chiefly of the way in which New York has to administer its relief. Probably no other Boston problem concerns him so vitally as this one of relief. Translated, of course, it means that if he can solve it, the tax rate in his city will prove the worth of his method of attack.

Boston's "port" is another of Mr. Tobin's deep concerns. He has already showed that by making it part of his planned program. He is awaiting with keen interest the report of the state commission which may be filed by next month.

Man's Neck Broken In Freak Accident

Clarence Quinn, 30, of Columbia road, Dorchester, suffered a broken neck in a freak auto accident early today. According to Boston City Hospital authorities, Quinn was driving his car along Dudley street in Roxbury when he collapsed.

Before the machine could be brought under control by another person in the car, it had crashed into another auto. Neither car was damaged, and no one was hurt except Quinn. His name was placed on the danger list.

Made America Cat's Paw, Says V.F.W. Leader

Milland Demands More Cautious Policy In Foreign Affairs

Disclosure by William K. Hutchinson of International News Service that Great Britain and other allied powers entered into a secret agreement at the outset of the World War regarding division of war spoils has awakened wide discussion throughout the world. It is discussed in the following article, written for International News Service exclusively, by Millard Rice, legislative representative of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

By MILLARD RICE

Legislative Representative Veterans of Foreign Wars

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—It is astounding to learn of the existence of a secret agreement among the Allies as to the division of spoils if they won the World War, as disclosed in the articles written by William K. Hutchinson.

It would appear that the United States was maneuvered into the position of becoming a cat's paw to pull the hot chestnuts out of the fire for other nations.

It would appear that America's young men of 1917 and 1918 did not sacrifice their lives, their limbs and their health for the sake of high ideals, to preserve democracy and to end all wars—as they believed—but rather to change the relative economic and commercial interests of competing nations.

These revelations of the secret machinations of European countries must make the citizens of our country more cautious than ever about becoming involved in any entanglements with other nations.

We should feel that we have learned our lesson. Well. We should become more anxious than ever to have such policies adopted and applied as are aimed to keep America out of war, supported by such modernized armed forces as will make possible the protection of our country and its people, as well as guarantee the neutrality of the United States.

It would seem it should have been incumbent upon the State Department, a long time ago, to reveal the facts concerning this secret agreement.

One wonders whether an official investigation into this entire matter should not be made by Congress now—to make certain that the State Department will not again have a repetition of this situation by failing to take the American people into its confidence on matters of paramount importance to this nation.

Kidnapers Peril Morenz's Son

MONTREAL, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press)—A police guard was posted today around the home of the late Howie Morenz, Canadian ice hockey star, after mysterious telephone calls were received, threatening to kidnap 10-year-old Monte Morenz, Jr.

Mrs. Mary Morenz, the boy's mother, told police she had received four threats, one from a woman and three from men.

Authorities believed the calls possibly came from persons attracted by the $25,000 trust fund raised last month by a benefit hockey game to care for the widow and children of the late hockey star.

'Red Flame' Fired As Soviet Chief

MOSCOW, Nov. 16 (AP)—Dismissal of Barbara Yakovleva from the government service after a long career of revolutionary leadership was confirmed today by appointment of a new commissar of finance for Russia proper.

The 52-year-old "Old Bolshevist," known as the "Red Flame" and exiled under Czarism, held an important post in the old secret police, the Cheka. Later she was promoted to be vice commissar of education, then commissar of finance.

Bridges Renews Black Battle In Senate

Moves for Full Public Hearings on New Appointments

By ROBERT A. McGILL

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—Declaring the Senate "railroaded" confirmation of Senator Hugo L. Black as associate justice of the Supreme Court, Senator Bridges (R.) of New Hampshire today moved for public hearings on all federal judiciary appointments.

Bridges said that following the "Black incident" it is the "duty of the Senate to give the public full opportunity for expression regarding any appointment having to do with the federal judiciary.

"Like many others, I deplored the steamroller methods employed by the Senate when Mr. Justice Black was confirmed," he said. "The resolution which I will introduce to amend the Senate rules will prevent any person, regardless of who he is, and whether a member of the Senate, from being confirmed without the public being given an opportunity to express views as to fitness for the position."

SEEKS MANDATORY ACTION

Bridges said his resolution would make it mandatory that all appointments to the federal judiciary be sent to the Senate judiciary committee for full consideration. He said the Senate has in the past confirmed the appointment of a fellow member to a judicial position without observing this rule.

Asserting that he looks upon a judicial appointment "in a different light than the run-of-the-mill appointments," Bridges indicated Justice Black took "advantage of senatorial courtesy" in failing to tell his colleagues he had once been a member of the Ku Klux Klan before the vote for confirmation.

"If my resolution is successful," he said, "it will prevent any person ever again from hiding behind the cloak of senatorial courtesy in relation to judiciary appointments."

CLAIMS BACKING IN FIGHT

Bridges, whose resolution to hold public hearings on Black qualifications for the Supreme Court failed, said "if certain disclosures that were later brought out could have been made available at the time at a public hearing the Senate could have acted with full knowledge of the facts."

The Republican senator said he has conferred with Democratic colleagues and has found "a good deal of support for the resolution."

Meanwhile Senator Burke (D.), of Nebraska, one of the opponents of President Roosevelt's plan to increase the membership of the Supreme Court, which was sidetracked at the last session, suggested that the attorney-general start quo warranto proceedings in the Supreme Court to determine Justice Black's right to sit on the bench.

Burke said the Supreme Court should rule on whether Justice Black constitutionally is eligible to sit on the bench.

Panic-Stricken Chinese Flee 3 Cities

Japanese Advance Led by Widespread Air Bombings

SHANGHAI, Nov. 16 (AP)—Thousands of panic-stricken Chinese fled from three of China's great cities tonight to escape advancing Japanese armies and widespread bombing by Japanese warplanes.

A great exodus was under way from Nanking, the nation's capital and object of a tremendous Japanese drive into the interior from Shanghai.

Similarly, civilians were fleeing from Tsinafu, Shantung province capital, north of the Shanghai war area, and from Soochow, central point in Chinese defense lines between Shanghai and Nanking.

Japanese planes dumped bombs over a widespread area of the Shanghai peninsula to smooth a way to Nanking for troops and naval vessels. Foreign military observers predicted the Japanese could reach Nanking within a month.

RAIL SPAN BLOWN UP

Points bombarded included Fushan, Yangtze river port on the water route to Nanking, and Chinese troop concentrations between the Chinese defense lines and Nanking.

Japan's North China forces were approaching the Yellow river, five miles north of Tsinanfu. To stem the advance, Chinese were said to have blown up the Tientsin-Pukow railway bridge spanning the river opposite the provincial capital. Most of the refugees leaving Tsinanfu headed for Tsingtao, on the seacoast.

One column of Japan's Shanghai armies was almost within sight of Soochow, city of 260,000 about 50 miles west of Shanghai. Miss Sarah Glenn of Chester, S. C., arrived at Nanking today and reported Soochow virtually deserted following heavy Japanese bombardment yesterday. Thousands of Chinese leaving the city crowded roads and canals.

3 MISSIONARIES STAY

Three American missionaries—Rev. H. H. McMillan of Laurinberg, N. C., C. G. McDaniel of Blackstone, Va., and H. A. McNulty of New York city—remained in Soochow to aid frightened Chinese.

Japanese planes and warships bombarded the Wutung and Shutzuwei forts in the vicinity of Amoy, South China seaport. A party of Japanese marines was said to have explored landing possibilities, indicating that Japanese planned a campaign in that rich, populous and hitherto war-free section.

Nanking Cabinet Flees Japs

NANKING, Nov. 16 (AP)—The government decided tonight to move to Hankow, on the Yangtze, nearly 300 miles to the west, because of the threat to Nanking by Japanese armies advancing from Shanghai.

The ministry of communications took the lead today by evacuating staff and records to a Hankow-bound steamer, and the League of Nations technical experts were to leave tomorrow.

For greater security and freedom from Japanese attacks, three or four cities, in all, will be used to harbor the various civil departments.

Hankow probably will house the ministries of foreign affairs and finance. Military establishments will remain at Nanking until the very last. Other departments will locate temporarily at Changsha, south of Hankow, and in Hunan province, and at Chungking, in the southwestern province of Szechwan.

Officials emphasized that this move did not mean abandonment of the capital, and stated that the army would defend Nanking until the last with Chiang Kai-Shek, Premier-Generalissimo, himself in command.

Boston Man Tried In Stock Fraud

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Three New York securities dealers and a 70-year-old Boston accountant went on trial in federal court today charged with promoting a $500,000 stock fraud.

The defendants: James T. Swan, Boston; Herman Melman, 40; Henry Niditch, 36, and David B. Howe, all of New York, were among 21 indicted on charges of conspiracy and use of the mails to defraud.

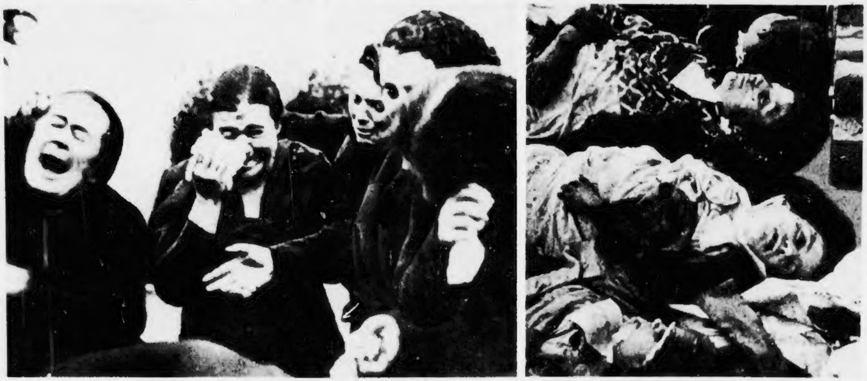
Hearts Cry Out for Voices Stilled---This Is WAR



Mere words are futile to describe these two scenes depicting the ruthless and merciless results of war. These pictures speak for themselves and cry out, as the desperate mothers above, against the horror of it all. These are weeping, heart-broken mothers of Lerida, Spain, shown attempting to comfort each other after they had gone through the agonizing ordeal of identifying their children's bodies among the 155 mangled corpses that littered the streets of that city after a rebel bombing raid on All Saints Day. Comfort, indeed, might some day be theirs, but never will be erased from their memory the picture at the right, for there are some of the bodies—innocent victims of a bloody struggle—their children. Japan Threat to France Stops Arms for Chinese

(Copyright, 1937)

PARIS, Nov. 16 (INS)—How Japan forced France to cease running arms to China was learned by International News Service today from a high Paris source.

A blunt Japanese ultimatum, delivered to France on the eve of convening of the nine-power treaty conference in Brussels, stated France must cease supplying China with arms and munitions via French Indo-China and Canton.

The ultimatum, it was learned, fixed the day and hour at which munitions deliveries must halt, and ated that if shipments were con- sued after that time, Japan would ze Hainan Island, off the Indo-hina coast.

French authorities conferred with presentatives of other powers at e Brussels conference regarding e matter, but received no aid, nce halted the arms traffic.

The Japanese, it was learned, connted to disposal of supplies on nd, and then clamped down gainst all further shipments.

French officials still are furious garding what they consider the valier manner in which the Japase ultimatum was delivered.

Children Flee Gun Battle to help O'Connor. Meanwhile, O'Connor's quarry, after firing the three shots, turned and ran into the North Bennet street playground.

The children playing there scattered screaming in all directions as the fugitive, pistol in hand, sped through their midst, hotly pursued by the two policemen.

FIRES AT POLICE

Again the man turned, and this time fired two shots at almost point-blank range at Rizzo, who was nearer to him. Rizzo fired three shots in return, then sprang forward and grappled with the fugitive.

When O'Conner and Rizzo had sprung from their police cruiser at the beginning of the chase, Rizzo had commandered Gatano Raucci of Arlington, a passing motorist.

"Watch this car!" he told Raucci.

Now the course taken by the chase had circled around, almost back to where it had begun, and Raucci, standing by the police car and the abandoned suspect machine, saw the shooting in the playground. He saw, too, the screaming, running children—and he saw the woman with the baby in her arms fall to the street.

PROTECTS HER BABY

"I thought for a minute she had been hit by one of the bullets," Raucci said later, "but as it turned out she had fallen down, crouching over the baby, to protect it."

Raucci, stooping low, ran to where the woman lay, assisted her into St. Vincent's church where she would be safe from any further gun-fire.

He did not learn her identity, he said, and she was gone when police went to look for her.

The suspect finally captured when Policeman Rizzo grappled with him was identified as Robert J. Doherty, Longwood avenue, Roxbury, who, only twelve days ago, police said, received a two-year suspended sentence for auto theft.

He refused to name his companion, who escaped.

"I didn't intend really to shoot anyone," he insisted. "I only fired to maybe scare the officers and help me escape."

British, Belgian Kings Meet

King George, resplendent in the crimson tunic of a field marshal, saluted and shook hands with Leopold as the young visiting monarch stepped from his train on a platform carpeted with scarlet plush.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and the Duke of Kent were introduced to the Belgian King, who was dressed in khaki service uniform with cap tilted back. He wore the blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter across his chest.

The Duke of Gloucester, who had officially welcomed Leopold when his yacht docked at Dover, King George and Leopold then drove to Buckingham Palace in an open carriage drawn by six Windsor greys, with the sovereign's escort of Royal Horse Guards clattering ahead and behind.

3 O'Connell Kidnapers Tie 5 Guards, Flee Jail

terday, Superintendent Herbert Paddock of Onondaga prison had written Federal Judge Bryant, who sentenced the kidnapers, asking that the now-escaped trio be transferred, because he "felt this was no place for them."

But nobody had to transfer them. Once Geary was out in the corridor silently dogging Guard Corbett's footsteps, the "transfer" was on.

CONFRONT FOUR GUARDS

The little bandit had two pistols when he faced Corbett. Silently, at Geary's command, the guard opened cell doors for Oley and Crowley. In the reception room four guards yawned, played indifferent "rummy."

Oley's brother, a member of the gang, had hanged himself in Utica jail while awaiting trial, so there was mirthless humor in the next command of the escaping prisoner.

"Holler to those fellows that Oley is hanging in his cell," Geary directed.

Corbett gulped, looked into steely eyes. Voice shaking, he called the lie.

Chairs scraped, the guards sprang to their feet, but there was Geary in the doorway laughing, gun in hand.

GRIM JOKE ENDS

Then Geary stopped laughing.

"No fooling, you guys!" he snapped. "I'm in for 77 years and I mean business. Get in there with Corbett."

The guards, Earl Brown, Francis Crowley, Levi Pease and Edward Hayes, shuffled into cells, and were quickly bound with torn blanket strips—all except Hayes.

With Hayes in front as a shield, the prison breakers headed for the front door. Mrs. Nellie Hills, a matron, rang the bell as they reached it. Hayes, by command, opened the door. Mrs. Hills gasped, her knees buckled as she saw the reception committee. She was bound and left in the reception room.

LEFT IN HIS CAR

Outside, at Hayes' car, the guard stalled for time. Geary poked a gun at him. Oley drove, under Hayes' unwilling guidance, to Syracuse. Outside the city they taped his eyes. Arms bound, they put him on the floor of the car, cruised around a few minutes, finally pulled to a stop. A moment later Hayes heard the motor of another automobile start.

Hayes scrambled out of the car, hailed a policeman and the eight-state alarm system soon carried the flash. Immediate search was begun for a roadster with New Jersey plates seen speeding out of downtown Syracuse shortly after Hayes was released.

PROBE IN PRISON

Back at the prison, the investigation turned to the how and wherefore of the saws and guns. Saturday a New York lawyer, Joseph S. M. Browne, had visited the prisoners. Previously only their wives had been allowed to visit them.

Two bars had been sawed from the bottom of Geary's cell, another from the barrier between the cell block and the outer room. Geary must have been at it yesterday when he gruffly ordered a trusty janitor to "cut out" sweeping in front of his cell. "I'll do it myself." Steel filings in the sweepings would have given the plot away.

Oley, Geary and Crowley were the last captured of the "mob" who participated in the O'Connell snatch. G-men got them in January. Crowley drew 28 years, the other two 77.

Night Club Raid Staged by Klan

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 16 (INS)—While the blazing cross of the Ku Klux Klan cast a weird light over the scene, approximately 150 white-robed men and women swooped down on the La Paloma night club here at midnight, routed patrons, waiters and bartenders, smashed the furnishings, and then vanished after warning that the club must not be reopened.

One waiter, whose name could not be learned, was reported to have been beaten when he refused to obey the order to vacate the club.

After wrecking the club, the white-robed figures ransacked a bungalow nearby in search of Al Youst, the club's proprietor. Failing, the raiders instructed a waiter to tell Youst the club must not be reopened.

The La Paloma Club has been the center of controversy for some time. It is located only a few doors from a church, and residents of the sparsely settled section, which is just inside the city limits, have been bitterly antagonistic. But efforts to have the place closed through legal moves have been unsuccessful.

The raid was preceded by an open-air Ku Klux Klan initiation ceremony in Moore Park, a city-owned park, from which the public was barred.

Forty-eight persons reportedly donned the white robe of the Klan and swore allegiance to the "invisible empire" as guards stood at all entrances of the park and kept curious spectators at a distance.

Permission for use of the park for the initiation ceremony was granted reluctantly by Ernest R. Seiler, recreation director in charge of parks.

"I didn't want to give permission for use of the park, but I had my orders from higher-ups," he told reporters.

He declined to identify the "higher-ups."

The initiation ceremony broke up shortly before midnight and an hour later the masked figures swept down on the night club. The flaming cross was hastily erected and the raiders swept into the club where about 40 patrons were drinking or dancing.

One O'Connell Kidnaper In State Prison Here

George Garguilo, Alias George Romano, 30, convicted in the John J. O'Connell, Jr., kidnaping with the three convicts who escaped jail today at Jamesville, N. Y., is at state prison in Charlestown.

On May 4, 1936, Garguilio was sentenced in superior court here to 20 to 25 years for armed robbery of an $18,540 payroll at the United Drug Company plant in Roxbury the previous January.

When he is released from state prison he will begin serving a 77-year sentence for his part in the O'Connell kidnaping.

This federal sentence may be served at Alcatraz island—"The Rock" in San Francisco bay—where the three who escaped in New York today were destined to go.

Last May, under heavy guard, Garguilio was secretly transferred from the prison in Charlestown to Binghampton, N. Y., to stand trial with seven others in the $40,000 ransom kidnaping.

In the federal courtroom, Garguilio was identified by a garage mechanic as owner of the registration plates which the government contended were on the sedan used in transporting O'Connell.

Like the others convicted in the kidnaping case, Garguilio, in addition to the staggering prison sentence imposed, was fined $10,000.

Japanese Blast At Brussels Hits Russia

Nippon Official Raps Criticism of Nation's Action in China

BRUSSELS, Nov. 16.—Japanese officials here today isued a sharp counter blast to the Brussels conference declaration criticizing Japan for her action in China.

A statement from the Japanese embassy attacked Russia as a non-signatory of the Nine-Power treaty but a participant in the conference, and referred to the part played in framing the declaration by nations which "repudiate payment of their war debts to the United States," and "vote things to which they do not adhere."

The statement expressed regret the powers did not take note of Japan's communication rejecting a second invitation to the Brussels conference, which, it is contended, opened a road to mediation of the Far Eastern conflict.

MEDIATION REJECTED

While rejecting mediation by the conference, the communication of last Friday said Japan "would be glad if the powers should contribute to the stabilization of Eastern Asia in a manner consonant with realities of the situation."

Officials here indicated privately this meant Japan was willing to consider mediation talks with China, if arranged through interested Far Eastern powers, such as the United States. Reliable sources have indicated also that Japan would welcome negotiations through Germany's Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

FEAR ANTI-CLIMAX

Spurred by fears that whatever. Spurred by fears that whatever they do may prove an inartistic anti-climax, large numbers of delegates to the nine-power treaty conference hurriedly departed for home today to ask their governments what they should do next following their denunciation of Japan.

Belief grew that the conference, called to end the Sino-Japanese war, would convene again next Monday merely to adjourn permanently—for all practical purposes a failure despite the resolution passed yesterday branding Japan's actions in China as a violation of the nine-power pact and terming Nippon "out of step with the rest of the world."

The fact that Japanese troops continued their advance against the Chinese "Hindenburg line" defending Nanking in defiance of the resolution, which was adopted by a vote of 15 to 1, did little to raise the spirits of the conferees, whose exodus once again left the United States in virtual charge of affairs here.

Italy alone voted against the conference resolution and the three Scandinavian nations abstained from voting.

The nations which united in condemning Japan were the United States, Britain, France, South Africa, Belgium, Australia, Canada, Bolivia, China, India, The Netherlands, Mexico, New Zealand, Portugal and Russia.

Report New Try To Kill Stalin

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 16 (INS)—The Warsaw newspaper, Express Poranny, in a dispatch from Helsingfors today reported a new alleged attempt on the life of Dictator Josef Stalin of Soviet Russia.

The paper claimed Stalin's photographer, named Nissen, was arrested on charges of attempting to assassinate the dictator by means of a time bomb concealed in a camera.

There was no confirmation of the report from any other source. The Express Poranny is sometimes regarded as a "sensational" paper.

It was pointed out, however, that on Saturday there were widespread reports and rumors from Riga and other points of an alleged plot against Stalin, whose current purge of "enemies" of the U. S. S. R. has resulted in the deaths of more than 1200 persons.

Paris to Protest Nazi Press Ouster

PARIS, Nov. 16 (AP)—The French foreign office is considering representations to the Nazi government concerning the expulsion of Paul Ravoux, chief correspondent of the Havas News Agency in Berlin. No reprisals, however, are contemplated.

The Nazi government last night ordered Ravoux to leave Berlin "within three days" for an allegedly false story on hoof and mouth disease among cattle in western Germany. Today Ravoux was given a week to settle his affairs.

File Senate Bill To Compel War Referendum

La Follette, Capper Ask Constitutional Amendment

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (INS)—Mindful of conflict in Spain and the Orient and its international implications, two senators today introduced in the Senate constitutional amendments compelling a national referendum before war is declared by the United States.

Senators La Follette (P.) of Wisconsin and Capper (R.) of Kansas sponsored nearly identical amendments to give the people the right to say directly whether the nation will engage in war.

Introduction of the two amendments came as Senate neutrality experts planned steps later to make the neutrality act mandatory instead of discretionary with the President as it now stands.

LaFollette and Capper accompanied introduction of their amendments today with statements emphasizing the need for such a step.

"Before any such vital change takes place (referring to a declaration of war), the people, who are going to do the dying and suffering and paying, ought to have a right to vote," declared LaFollette.

His amendment would include in the proposed referendum not only the question of declaring war, but also the question of conscripting man power.

Boston Charity Drive Aid to Communities

Campaign Leaders Cite Dependence of Towns on Hub

In an epidemic such as infantile paralysis, the towns and cities of the metropolitan area must call on Boston for aid, declared speakers for the 1938 Community Fund who acted as hosts to 70 newspaper editors in Metropolitan Boston.

Heading the speakers was Leverett Saltonstall, general chairman of the coming drive, as well as Otto F. Bradley, executive director of the Community Federation.

Leaders in the campaign pointed out to their guest editors that the committees they represented should be vitally interested in the success of the Boston drive, for it is the great hospitals of Boston which are called on to bear the burden of any general epidemic.

Among the open house programs announced for tomorrow is one at the new temporary home of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children at 476 Parker street, Roxbury. The home will be open to visitors from 10 until noon.

Good and bad housing will be demonstrated by the Housing Association of Metropolitan Boston in a bus tour which will leave the home office, 41 Mount Vernon street, at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Young musicians of the Boston Music School Settlement, 41 Allen street, West End, will present an informal program for visitors from 3:00 to 5:30 p. m.

4 Girls, 3 Boys Hurt in Crash

After a ride in a sedan, which police charge, was taken without authority, six young Cambridge girls and boys and a CCC youth they had picked up were suffering painful injuries at Gardner today.

The car crashed into the rear of a stalled truck on the Gardner-Westminister turnpike, sending four of the party critically injured to the Henry Heywood Hospital in Gardner.

That quartet are Rita Livingstone, 14, of Pearl street, Frances Bogus, 14, of Putnam avenue; Richard Pappas, 14, of Green street, all Cambridge, and Leo Carhalho, 17, of Laurel street, Fall River, the hitch-hiking CCC youth.

Harriet Livingstone, 17, sister of Rita; Paul Banvilla, 16, of Hancock street, and Vivian Hastings, 16, of Hamilton street, also Cambridge, were less seriously hurt.

Hurley to Talk to N. E. Council

Governor Charles F. Hurley will be the principal speaker at the Massachusetts division dinner of the New England Council, to be given Thursday night in the Hotel Statler.

The governor is expected to discuss "the need of co-operation by the business community in state affairs." James Jackson, vice-president of the New England Council and chairman of the Massachusetts division, will preside.

Other speakers will be Arthur A. Ballantine, former Under-Secretary of Treasury, and Reginald W. Bird, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Associations.

The governors of the six New England States all are to address the first general session of the 13th annual conference of the New England Council during the day, Thursday.

New Commander To Defend Madrid

MADRID, Nov. 16 (AP)—General Cardenal, long associated with General Jose Miaja in the Spanish government's defense of Madrid, has been named military governor of the city—post previously held by Miaja, who continues as commander-in-chief on the central front.

Miaja has been credited with saving Madrid from capture by the insurgents for the past year.

City Suit Defendants Confer

FORMER MAYOR CURLEY DR. JOSEPH SANTOSUOSSO

Just before James M. Curley, former mayor and governor, took the stand today in defense of the $50,000 suit against him and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso, they were snapped during a court recess. On the stand, the ex-mayor then denied ever talking with, or knowing, Frederick H. Graves, whose affidavit is the basis of the city's suit to recover part of the $85,000 paid in settlement of a suit against the city by the General Equipment Corporation while Curley was chief executive.

Hoover Will See Harvard Play

Despite statements that he will not accept a position on the Republican national committee, if offered one, President James Conant of Harvard today announced that former President Herbert Hoover will be a guest in his box at the Harvard-Yale football game on Saturday.

The announcement lends credence to the report from Washington several days ago that the Republicans are anxious to have President Conant assist in directing their policies.

Other guests in the box, which will be close to the 50-yard line on the Harvard side of the stadium, will include Lewis Douglas, former director of the federal budget, and present head of McGill University, and his wife and two sons.

Also in the box will be James Phinney Baxter, new head of Williams College, and his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. Conant.

President Charles Seymour of Yale and Mrs. Seymour will be house guests of the Conants over the week-end, and a small dinner will be given at the Conants' home in their honor Saturday night.

Shoe Ban Asked By Wigglesworth

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—Representative Richard B. Wigglesworth, Milton, Mass., Republican, asked Congress today to block any trade agreement with Czechoslovakia that would prevent increasing protective tariffs on imported cemented shoes.

Wigglesworth, in a resolution, proposed Congress request delay in negotiations of a proposed reciprocal trade treaty with the Czechs until the tariff commission completed a survey of difference of costs of production in the United States and Czechoslovakia.

TELLS OF CAPITAL VISIT

Q—State your position at the time. A—My position was that I could see no justification for the cases and suggested they go to trial.

Q—Did you hear at some time that the case was set for hearing by an auditor? A—Yes.

Q—Did you learn that trial before a jury had taken place? A—Yes, I did.

Q—At some time in November, 1933, did you go to Washington? A—I did.

Q—Did you stop at the Mayflower Hotel? A—I always do.

Q—Were you accompanied by anyone? A—I was.

Q—By whom? A—The heads of departments and the corporation counsel.

Q—What was the purpose of the journey? A—The purpose was to ascertain what might be required in federal aid to take care of the people of Boston. It was in connection with the mayors' conference.

NEVER MET GRAVES

Q—How long did you stay? A—I believe three or four days.

Q—Do you know one Frederick H. Graves? A—I do not.

Q—Did you see him in the Mayflower Hotel? A—I don't know him.

Q—Did one Frederick H. Graves come with Mr. McGlue to your office at City Hall in Boston? A—No Sir.

Q—Did anyone purporting to be Frederick H. Graves talk with you in Washington? A—No sir.

Q—At any time? A—No sir.

Q—Did any person speak with you on the subject of the General Equipment cases in Washington? A—No sir.

Q—Did you have any conversation with anyone in which you asked how much there was in it for you in the settlement? A—No sir.

Q—Did you ever talk with anyone about the sum of $40,000? A—No sir.

Q—Would you know Frederick H. Graves if he walked into this courtroom? A—I would not.

SILVERMAN QUIZZED

In the suit the city filed against Curley and Dr. Santosuosso last March, it was stated that Graves was district manager for Ernest W. Brown, Inc., which had been authorized to handle the claim for the General Equipment Company.

Silverman today, under cross-examination by Edward F. McClennen, special counsel for the city, said the opinion that the city would win the General Equipment suit was written by the late Assistant Corporation Counsel Charles E. Fay and was dated November 27, 1933.

The former corporation counsel under Curley would not say, however, if this was the last opinion written by Fay in the case. Fay, according to the witness, had rendered several opinions in the matter and "was shifting his views."

URGED SETTLEMENT

Curley had been told by him, Silverman declared, that Fay had stated "on occasions" that the case could be won by the city.

"I told him (Curley)," testified Silverman, "to settle the case because I thought the city would save $50,000.

"I told him, using my own vernacular, that the Supreme Judicial Court would have the last guess."

It was brought out that the auditor's report of a preliminary hearing in the suit was favorable to the city and the auditor had stated there was no negligence on the part of the city. The case then went to a jury trial and a verdict was returned for the General Equipment Corporation, but was set aside.

TELLS OF TRADING

"Between you and Santosuosso," Silverman was asked, "who first proposed a settlement for $85,000, that is, a readiness to pay or a willingness to accept?"

"I first said I was willing to pay $85,000 if he would accept," the witness replied. "That was on November 27 or 26."

Silverman then explained that he had bargained with Dr. Santosuosso on the settlement, Santosuosso first setting a figure of $100,000, Silverman parrying with an offer of $65,000 and the trading then see-sawing until the $85,000 was agreed upon.

'The Durant, Inc.' 4-Million Bond Issue Probed

State Summons Agents Of Institution For Women

Details of the proposed $4,000,000 bond issue to finance construction by The Durant, Inc., of "one of the most beautiful institutions for women in this or any other country" are under investigation by Massachusetts officials, it was disclosed today.

Officials of The Durant, Inc., and Durant Campaigns, Inc., of Federal street, the latter a fund-raising affiliate of the former, have been summoned to appear before the securities division of the Department of Public Utilities at 10:30 a. m. Thursday.

The Durant, incorporated in 1921 as a charitable, benevolent, and literary institution, boasts a membership of approximately 10,000 women, many of them prominent in Boston and the state.

The proposed new building, to be erected in Huntington avenue, is to have 15 floors and "the features of the most modern hotel while retaining the atmosphere of a sorority house." It is to have accommodations for 400 women.

One of the officials summoned to Thursday's hearing is Charles K. Bush, erstwhile New York investment broker, who has been prominently identified with preliminary plans for the huge bond flotation.

Others to whom summonses were forwarded were Carroll F. Greene, of Melrose; Arthur F. Gobron, of Watertown, and Hildegarde S. Anderson of Medford. Until recently Greene was president of Durant Campaigns, Gobron was treasurer and Miss Anderson was clerk.

Among Durant, Inc., officials who have been instructed to appear at the hearing is Miss Florence Baker Child, president.

Durant Campaigns was completing arrangements for an intensive drive to dispose of the bond issue when the state department revealed the program was being investigated.

Announcement of the impending sale of the bonds was made in the Boston financial district two weeks ago.

Fear for Safety If Girl Is Freed

When 17-year-old Mary Barilone, Malden street, Revere, was arraigned before Federal Judge Hugh D. McLellan today on charges of possessing and passing counterfeit $10 bills, Assistant United States Attorney Arthur J. B. Cartier told Judge McLellan:

"This young woman has been kept in the House of the Good Shepherd since her arrest because we are afraid she will be harmed if given her liberty."

Judge McLellan promptly set bail at $1000, so, he said "she can remain where she will be free from molestation."

The girl pleaded guilty, as did four men held on the same charges with her—Antonio Scutari, Fulton street, Malden; Ralph Williams, Fisk road, Revere; Rizzo Dortono, Conant street, Revere, and Robert V. Feladora, McClure street, Revere. Bail for each was set at $2500.

7 Cities Holding Primaries

Polls opened in seven Massachusetts cities today as voters named candidates for municipal offices to be filed in the forthcoming general elections on December 7. Light balloting was the rule and little excitement shown as the contests got underway.

Primary elections were held in five of the communities, while North Adams and Northampton citizens indicated their preferences through party caucuses. Quincy, Taunton, Haverhill, Brockton and Newburyport used the primary election method.

Mayoralty nominations were at stake in Brockton, Newburyport, Northampton and Taunton. Minor office candidates were voted on in the remaining communities.

Taunton's primary balloting was conducted on a non-partisan basis. The two major parties fought it out within their own ranks in the six other cities.

Thieves Show How to Move

Cart Away Ton Organ Owner Had to Leave

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP)—The problem that baffled Jacques Wardlaw Redway when he moved from a house to an apartment two months ago has been partly solved by thieves.

Redway, who is Westchester County's weather forecaster, was able to move all of his furniture except a one-ton organ, valued at $3000, which he left in the vacant house.

Now the organ has disappeared, he told police today, but thus far has not been delivered to his apartment. Investigators said it probably was dismantled and carted

Rites Thursday For Mrs. Wilkins

Mrs. Frank I. Wilkins, 60, wife of the supervisor of inspection for the Boston Elevated Railway, died suddenly in her home in Orchard street, Somerville.

Funeral services will be Thursday morning at 10 o'clock in St. John's Church, North Cambridge. Burial will be in Harmony Grove Cemetery, Salem. Mrs. Wilkins is survived by her husband and a son, Frank Jr.

Burglary Probed At Bullock Home

Police today investigated the robbery of cash and articles valued at a total of $600 from the home of Professor Emeritus Charles J. Bullock of Harvard on Channing place, Cambridge.

The thieves apparently used a key to gain admittance to the dwelling, a preliminary probe disclosed, after Mrs. Helene E. Bullock reported the break. A fur cape, a quantity of jewelry and $80 in cash were taken.

Police Chemist Makes Tests in Cape Mystery

Husband, Brother See Body of Woman in Island Tragedy

OAK BLUFFS, Nov. 16—The husband and brother of Mrs. Ellen Nicholson Shackleford, 40, whose body was washed ashore Sunday, arrived here today to aid authorities in solving the mysterious death of the once prominent Philadelphia matron.

At the same time word was received by authorities that the organs of the woman's body had arrived at state police headquarters, Commonwealth Pier, Boston, for pathological examination by Dr. Joseph T. Walker, police chemist.

The organs were sent to Boston in an attempt to definitely determine the cause of Mrs. Shackleford's death.

Police said they were not certain as to the cause of death because there was no water in the lungs and bruises on the body had "apparently" been inflicted after death.

IDENTIFIES RING

Shackelford told authorities he and his wife had been separated since 1931 and that he last saw her in 1932. He identified a diamond ring which was found on the woman's finger as one he had given her ten years ago.

Both the husband and brother told District Attorney William G. Crossley that they knew of no reason why Mrs. Shackelford should have committed suicide.

NOTE IS STUDIED

Nicholson told the prosecutor he saw his sister last month and she was in "good spirits and happy."

A note signed by "Mrs. E. H. Shackelford" threatening suicide was found November 1 in a stateroom on a Colonial Line steamer from New York to Providence.

District Attorney Crossley said that no evidence had been found to prove the woman booked a stateroom on the boat.

Ship MacDonald Body Home

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 16 (INS)—After impressive rites here, the body of James Ramsay MacDonald, Britain's former labor Prime Minister who died aboard the liner Reina Del Pacifico in mid-Atlantic last week, will be placed aboard the British cruiser Apollo today for the trip to England.

The body was transferred in a casket from the liner to a tug in Hamilton harbor and was brought ashore, placed on a gun carriage covered with the Union Jack and borne through the streets to the Hamilton cathedral where funeral services were conducted by the Bishop of Bermuda and a minister of the Church of Scotland.

Sheila MacDonald, the former premier's daughter, who was accompanying him on his trip when he died, attended the religious services.

Busman Saves Boy in Stream

Hauls Youngster Out In Weymouth

Little John Frazzette doesn't know it, because he's only two and a half years old, but his life was saved today in East Weymouth by a bus schedule and the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway's oldest driver, John T. Gannon.

John, with his brother, Paul, 4, wandered out of their yard in School street and strolled down to the herring run in Commercial square.

John fell into the stream, which is from six to eight feet deep. Terrified, Paul legged it home and told his mother, Mrs. Catherine Landry Frazzette.

Meanwhile, Bus Driver Gannon, father of John T. Gannon, Jr., teacher at Weymouth high school, arrived in Commercial square on schedule time—and he was amazed to see a head bobbing on the surface.

Jerking the doors open, Gannon leaped out, ran to the stream and jumped in, fully clad. He brought the boy to land as a group, including his passengers, gathered, and just as the frantic mother arrived on the run.

Little John was rushed into the home of Mrs. Clarence Pratt, nearby, where he was revived, wrapped in warmed blankets and taken home.

READ ABOUT IT BELOW

Should Older Women Meddle with the Emotional Life of a Girl?

Because of a woman's influence, are you reluctant to say Yes to the man who wants to marry you?

Is some single woman advising you to shun romantic entanglements—and go in for a career?

Do women relatives and friends interfere with your married life?

What can you do about it?

The first thing to do is to read the complete book-length novel, You Haven't Changed, by Margaret Culkin Banning, in December Pictorial Review-Delineator.

Here is a novel daring, controversial, startling—a keen revelation of the war between the sexes. The scene is a reunion of a college class ten years after graduation. It deals with the vital decade of woman's life.

MAYBE you will see yourself reflected in Jennifer—the brilliant wife of a wealthy man who doesn't like a woman who thinks.

MAYBE you will recognize your likeness in Sara, who had been the most important girl in college, but is now absorbed in the care of her husband and children.

MAYBE you will see yourself in Edith, who keeps a lover dangling while she achieves academic honors—and gets the shock of her life when another girl takes her man.

MAYBE you will find yourself in Liz, the young heart-torn student, whom Edith urges to reject the violent wooing of her lover Bill, and live an emotionless scholastic life.

Gather your friends into a reading circle. Make it a habit to discuss every month the complete novel in Pictorial Review-Delineator. Choose for your first theme for discussion this Blue Ribbon novel—

CAN AN Ugly Face BE MADE BEAUTIFUL?

In your circle of friends is there someone who suffers because of a facial deformity—harelip, outlandish nose, birth marks, or scars?

Such people can be helped, but not by an everyday sort of operation. To remodel features or to perfectly heal injured surfaces, requires a special skill called plastic surgery.

For instance, a baby born with a cleft lip can be given a perfect mouth. Flop ears can be reformed. The simple facts are presented fairly, in the special article—

OFF THE CUFF: The scramble for that municipal judgeship is something terrific . . . Three district judges are among the candidates . . . It is proving to be the most difficult appointment Governor Hurley has had to ponder . . . Moss Hart, co-author of "I'd Rather Be Right," was a Boston visitor . . . Quietly . . . But he passed his time in a theater, watching a musical show, and your deductions may be as good as mine except that the string-bean writer did a capable repair job not so many seasons ago on a lavish musical show that needed more comedy.

William G. Norton, manager of New York's Music Box Theater, was a surprise visitor also . . . As the Music Box opens Thursday night with John Steinbeck's dramatization of his own novel, "Of Mice and Men," it couldn't have been business calling William G. this way . . . As he's a joyous bridegroom of only two weeks, and the bride was with him, it was nothing romantic.

The estimate is $500, based on daily visits to headquarters by the barber on business days . . . Winchell's "sign-off" of his return to the airwaves was very neat, and expressed the opinion of thousands who know Billy Rose and Fannie Brice . . . "Billy Rose may stay in the public eye," said Mr. Winchell, "but Fannie Brice will stay in the public's heart."

Two coast-to-coast radio stars, incidentally, each claimed credit for introducing the song from "Love and Hisses" which has the title "I Want to Be in Winchell's Column" . . . Guy Lombardo introduced it shortly after 8:30, but Don Ameche claimed the first network broadcast three hours later.

Captain Bill Donovan of Station 3 lists his name, but the title is missing . . . And on Page 153 of the phone book, the heading "coo-coo" may be found . . . Skip exactly 100 pages and you'll read "goo-goo" at the top of the page, and if you want to prompt the baby into the right answer to "And what does the cow say?" turn to the top of Page 495.

An enterprising young "con man," whose equipment comprised a dust-cloth and a convincing line of talk, was put out of business by the officers of Station 2 . . . The youngster had a stand at Kilby and State streets . . . When a policeman would place a chalk-mark on a car, making it eligible for a ticket, the young swindler would convince the car-owner that if he were allowed to rub it off with his dust-cloth, there'd be no ticket forthcoming . . . The police think the kid used to carry a piece of chalk around with him in event of a lack of customers.

Tickets for the Mayfair's annual Thanksgiving dinner for the youngsters are being distributed through Paddy Coleman's South End Democratic Club . . . Max Michaels, the new producer-manager at the Columbia Theater, will follow his yearly custom of giving away hundreds of pairs of shoes to needy children.

Fairbanks In Dunne Film

Young Doug to Play Opposite Irene in 'Joy of Living'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

(Copyright, 1937, by International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 16—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., stays right in Hollywood, and wouldn't he be foolish to return to England when the scarcity of male leads is causing our producers to turn grey?

Louella O. Parsons

By the time this is published, young Doug will have put his name on a contract to play opposite Irene Dunne in "The Joy of Loving." And what a load off Pandro Berman's mind is young Doug's acceptance of the role.

"Loving," a riotous musical comedy, has been held up for several weeks until a leading man could be located. Cary Grant was rumored as set for it but, as we told you, that casting wasn't correct. The rushes of "Having Wonderful Time" convinced Pan that he had better grab young Fairbanks while he was still on the RKO lot.

James Cagney is returning to the underworld characters that first brought him fame as a Warner star, largely because he came in for a lot of kidding when he recently played a song and dance man. His next for Grand National "Angels With Dirty Faces," features two boys from a "Dead End" neighborhood. One grows up to become a priest and the other a criminal with Cagney, of course, as the gangster.

Roland Brown, author of "Angels With Dirty Faces," who also directs, receives $30,000 for his story, but he isn't paid for directing. Instead, he receives a percentage of the profits, on a straight royalty basis.

Grand National's finances can't be in the precarious condition rumored with $30,000 to spend for a story and $500,000 for production. William Cagney makes his debut as producer of his brother's movie.

Lou Gehrig, baseball hero, arrives next Monday to play one of the leads with Smith Ballew in "Laughing Senor." Gehrig first made his appearance in Hollywood some six months ago when Sol Lesser ballyhooed him as the next Tarzan. But when the able swatter appeared in a lionskin, his piano legs automatically scratched him as a possible Tarzan.

'Three Waltzes' Matinee

Having had its American premiere Saturday night, "Three Waltzes" is now in the first of its two-week engagement at the Boston Opera House. For the second week, the mid-week matinee will be given on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, instead of Wednesday. This performance is announced as "a bargain matinee" and the top price will be $1.50.

Margaret Bannerman and Michael Bartlett co-star in "Three Waltzes," which has a score by the noted Oscar Straus, supplemented with music by Johann Strauss, Senior and Junior.

There are three waltzes that form the love motif of each act. The waltz for the first act, the scene of which is Vienna in the year 1865, is by Johann Strauss, Senior, and introduces the love story that dominates the play.

The entire production was staged by Hassard Short. Watson Barratt designed the many scenes and Connie de Pina the costumes. The dances and ballets were staged by Chester Hale. The American adaptation and lyrics are by Clare Kummer.

Gala Premiere At Colonial

Governor Hurley, Mayor Mansfield and Mayor-elect Tobin are to be present tonight at the first New England showing of Samuel Goldwyn's production of "The Hurricane" at the Colonial Theatre.

The theater will be flooded with Kleig lights, while a radio announcer will interview several of the opening night attendees, and girls dressed in Polynesian costumes will distribute Tahitian perfumes to the patrons.

Special Midnight Show at Loew's

A special midnight show will be given at both Loew's State and Orpheum theaters on Thanksgiving eve, Wednesday, November 24, at 11:30 p. m.

The program will be made up of two unusual holiday features and will serve as a preview showing of its regular engagement scheduled to begin on Thanksgiving day.

New Films Due This Week

Memorial, Paramount, Fenway and Met Announce Bills

Reunited cinematically for the first time since their triumphant "Night Must Fall," Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell, penniless Greenwich Village artist and his society bride of "Live, Love and Learn," are the topnotchers on the Keith-Memorial screen bill starting Thursday. This M-G-M production will have two preview showings tomorrow night, at 7 and 10.

Teamed with "Live, Love and Learn" will be "Madame X," ageless drama, with Gladys George in the title role.

With Robert Benchley and Helen Vinson topping an outstanding cast, "Live, Love and Learn" gives Montgomery opportunity for comedy and melodrama as the artist who marries the rich girl, wins startling success overnight, is lionized by the "400" and loses his head, his talent and almost his wife.

* * *

The Paramount and Fenway screens offer Warner Brothers' sparkling romantic comedy, "The Great Garrick," co-starring Brian Aherne and Olivia DeHavilland, and "West of Shanghai," a behind the scenes of war torn China drama with Boris Karloff, Beverly Roberts, Ricardo Cortez and Gordon Oliver, for their new bill commencing Thursday.

Garrick has condescended to accept an offer to appear before the theatergoers of Paris, impressed by the feminine mob hysteria his "great lover" roles have aroused, and he has issued a public statement that he will "show them how to act." Infuriated by his egotism, the French Actors' Guild makes elaborate plans to humiliate him by involving him in an ardent romance with a mysterious beauty. Garrick discovers the plot, makes himself a willing victim, and in the greatest performance of his career, outwits the clever Frenchmen.

* * *

Another pair of ideal teammates, Bette Davis and Leslie Howard, are at it again. This time in "It's Love I'm After," also a Warner Brothers production, opening Thursday at the Metropolitan.

Jack Buchanan To Play Here

'Between the Devil' Coming to Shubert

"Between the Devil," the new Howard Dietz-Arthur Schwartz musical, starring Jack Buchanan, Evelyn Laye and Adele Dixon, will be seen in Boston after all. Word was received yesterday from the Shubert office in New York that "Between the Devil" will play an engagement at the Shubert, beginning Monday, December 6.

Mr. Dietz will be recalled as the author of the Beatrice Lillie revue "At Home Abroad" and Mr. Schwartz as a composer of the music of this same production. This will be their first joint venture since "At Home Abroad."

"Between the Devil" has a sustained story which involves the mad adventures of a number of characters, chief of which are Peter Anthony, a man about London town, an English actress and a French singer. The score contains over 15 numbers, all of which reflect credit upon Mr. Schwartz.

Father Says He Shot Rival to Protect Boys

Divorced Worcester Man, Held in $5000, "Glad He Fired"

WORCESTER, Nov. 16—"I ordered him out of the house because I obected to his presence there with my two children.

"He refused to go and when he came at me I let him have it."

And this love for his two children, in custody of his divorced wife, led to his shooting a man he surprised in his former wife's apartment, Michael Kary, 37, chain market buyer, declared in his cell today prior to his arraignment in district court.

At Worcester City Hospital, Fred Lavoie, 37, father of four children, was suffering from four bullet wounds—in the temple, top of skull, shoulder and through the fingers of his right hand.

In district court before Judge Frank L. Riley, Kary pleaded not guilty and was held in $5000 on the assault with intent to murder charge and $500 on the other for continuance until November 26.

The court refused to lower the bail to $3000 on request of Kary's counsel.

According to Detective Captain Robert T. Hardy, the defendant said he shot Lavoie after an argument in the Ledge street apartment occupied by Mrs. Anna Kary and the children, Raymond, 12, and Ormond, 10.

The Karys were divorced last January and Mrs. Kary was given custody of the youngsters, who were asleep at the time of the affray.

Said Kary in his cell before going to court:

"I'm not sorry I shot him. It ought to be a good lesson to him. I'm not afraid of the electric chair. We've all got to die some time.

"I had been carrying this gun for some time because I carry large sums of company money—sometimes more than $1000 at a time."

Police, summoned by other persons in the apartment house, found Kary sitting down, waiting for the authorities. Police said he was holding a .25 calibre automatic revolver.

Sewing Project Gets Big Grant

Work for the next nine months was assured to the 2200 women employed in sewing projects under direction of the Works Progress Administration today.

Dispatches from Washington stated $1,408,931 has been allotted to the Boston projects for the nine months ending June 30.

The notification was given Senator David I. Walsh by the Comptroller General, advices said. Execution of the project will be left to the state administrator of the WPA, they added.

Hunt Lowell Man On Girl's Charge

ANDOVER, Nov. 16—Police today sougth a Lowell man, whose identity they said they knew, on charges brought by Miss Virginia LeLacheur, 19, of Main street.

Miss LeLacheur, they said, told them she went automobile riding with the man last night. On their way home, she said, he seized her. She fought with him, she told police officers. The man, police said, is a former inmate of the State Hospital at Tewksbury.

Fordham Starts Workers' School

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Fordham University and the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists today announced the opening of a workers school, designed to train New York labor union members "in the principles and practices of sound trade unionism following true Christian principles and ideals."

The school, Fordham University officials said, is the "first attempt to interpret workers' problems on other than Marxian theories."

Four Dead After Poison Rum Party

ST. PAUL, Nov. 16 (AP)—Three men and a woman were dead today after a drinking party at which Deputy Coroner Michael Leonard said he was told poisonous alcohol was served. The victims were Michael Bukowski, 47, and his wife, 37; Thomas Sherman, 50, and Francis Deneen, 45.

Speed Donations For Basket Fund

Less than 40 days remain for the enormous task, and the Boston Evening American-Boston Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund Editor requests today that all you goodfellows get your contributions in as early as possible.

Pitiful appeals from mothers and fathers, from children and from grandmothers—from persons in all degrees of poverty, but all of them still hopeful—are pouring in, and this year, it is evident, the emergency is as great as ever.

They are messages of heartache and they cannot go unanswered at Christmas time—the day celebrated as the Saviour's birthday anniversary and one which should be the happiest in the year.

The time is so short, however, that action by their more fortunate fellows must be prompt if the needy and worthy are to be lifted, even briefly, out of their discouragement.

CLUBS MAY AID

In aid of this most worthy attempt to alleviate some of the suffering, various entertainments are being lined up, the Christmas Basket Fund editor is informed, and as the dates are set you will be informed.

Incidentally, there are many clubs and social organizations which could do this same thing, and at one time furnish enjoyment for the members and friends and perform a philanthropic work.

Start now to arrange your bridge parties, your dances and your benefit shows and turn what you can of the profits over to the Christmas Basket Fund.

If the head of every social organization in Greater Boston could go through even one or two homes of families appealing for even a meal on Christmas day, this suggestion would not be necessary.

They would be so moved by conditions they saw that they would start the work o' raising helping hand funds of their own accord.

APPEAL OF SICK FAMILY

This is an address which is practically in Winthrop square, adjoining the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser building.

Any visitor to the headquarters is welcome and any contribution left there, or mailed to the address, will be gratefully received and will go toward feeding unfortunates such as the writer of the following appeal for aid.

"I am dropping you a few lines. It's a hard story but suppose it cannot be helped.

"We are all sick in our house for the last month. All the children and their mother are laid up. We could not afford to have a doctor because times are so hard.

WAITS LUCK TURN

"I am only working a few days a week and have a hard time to support six in the family, so I am asking if you could see a way toward sending us a Christmas basket.

"I have sent this lettter because the little kids want me to have a good Christmas for them, and next year, with the help of God, we may beable to give in place of asking.

And this worried father undoubtedly will be back as a contributor if his luck turns, for the numbers of contributors who once were forced to ask for aid are numerous. They haven't forgotten.

More than 6000 families were made happy at Yuletide last year through the medium of the Christmas Basket Fund, raised by donations from understanding persons in more fortunate circumstances.

SEND FUNDS NOW

Any contribution, large or small, in the dollar columns or down to pennies, is acceptable. Or if you would rather take names and addresses of luckless families—certified after investigation as truly worthy—we will supply them and you may furnish the basket, or baskets direct.

Send your contributions now. Address them to the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Boston Evening American, 13 Otis street, Boston.

In connection with requests for baskets—which should be addressed the same way—applicants are instructed to obtain an endorsement from their priest, minister, rabbi or family doctor—which will eliminate confusion in distribution.

Applicants should also write their names and addresses plainly and be sure to include the number of persons in the family. This is most important.

Wait Successor To Corbett

Speculation as to the appointment of a successor to Associate Justice Joseph J. Corbett of the Land Court, who resigned yesterday after 23 years of service, was rife in State House circles today.

The 73-year-old jurist retired on a pension of three-quarter pay. His salary as justice was $10,000 a year.

Pointing to the fact that the last four judicial appointees made by the Governor were Republicans, State House Democrats predicted that the new appointment would be made from the ranks of their party.

Prominently mentioned were William T. A. Fitzgerald, registrar of deeds of Suffolk County, and Former State Commander Leo M. Harlow of the American Legion, once a law partner of United States Senator David I. Walsh.

West Roxbury Man, Auto Victim, Dies

Christopher L. Thompson, 70, of Willow street, West Roxbury, was dead today, a victim of an automobile accident as he crossed Veterans of Foreign Wars parkway, near his home.

Thompson was pronounced dead at Faulkner Hospital where he was rushed by police ambulance.

Warring Skippers Race 'Lumbering Sea Horses'

A sturdy pair of three-masted schooners and their just as sturdy Down East skippers today boomed along the Massachusetts coast, bound for New York harbor in the race of the year.

There have been words between these two skippers—harsh words—and the losing crew may just as well seek new berths.

No America's Cup is at stake but the prize which awaits the winner would fill the "old mug" a dozen times. It's a case of whiskey and a case of beer.

IN THE BACK ROOM

Parting of the peaceable ways for these Parrsboro, N. S., captains came abruptly in the back room of a ship chandler's store on the docks of Portland, Me. They formerly were friends; they still were friends when the respective craft sought shelter from a storm at Portland.

But no one, not even a friend can call the vessel of Captain Taylor a lumbering sea horse. And it seems that is just what Captain Ogilvie did.

Whereupon, the offender was told that his own craft was no cup-racer herself. Words led to more words until the pair threatened to fairly shake apart the chandler's property.

BUNDLE IN BUMBOAT

Raging and firing boasts, the two captains bundled into the chandler's bumboat for a quick trip to their schooners.

The Bentley maintained her slight advantage passing Cape Elizabeth coast guard station, but since then the two vessels have been unreported.

Attacker Starts Life Term

Clifford E. Monroe, Jr., 22-year-old Winchester, N. H., youth, today began a life term in Charlestown State Prison for a criminal attack upon a Northfield Seminary instructor in Northfield last month.

Arrested when State troopers set a trap in which one of the policemen impersonated a girl, Monroe pleaded guilty and threw himself upon the mercy of Judge Thomas J. Hammond in Franklin County Superior Court, Greenfield, yesterday.

Judge Hammond imposed the drastic sentence despite the impassioned plea of the defendant's elderly father for mercy. Declaring that the circumstances of the case merited the hard labor sentence, the jurist told Monroe:

"It must be imposed as a warning to others, a punishment to yourself, as a protection for the women in this and any other community in which you might find yourself."

Secret Wife Charge Fails

Ruth Roland Husband Wins in Court

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16 (INS)—Charges that Ben Bard, noted theatrical producer, had a secret wife while married to the late Ruth Roland, serial queen of the silent films, had collapsed in Superior Court here today.

Not only did the court recognize a San Francisco divorce decree, but a suit for separate maintenance brought by Martha Pryor, Broadway actress who said she was Bard's wife, was dismissed.

Miss Pryor, who is said to be living in a $4-a-week rooming house in New York, began her action through a local attorney, and alleged Bard, whom she called "Benjamin Greenberg" was worth a half million dollars.

Miss Pryor's attorney said an amended complaint will be filed in which it will be contended the San Francisco decree was not valid and had been fraudulently obtained. Miss Pryor brought her action under the name of Martha P. Greenberg.

Jordan Marsh President Honored

Warm Tribute Paid Edward R. Mitton At Reception

Honoring their leader, more than 300 store executives of Jordan Marsh Company held a reception and dinner for their president, Edward R. Mitton, at the Hotel Copley Plaza last night.

Coming near the close of his first year in office, the banquet was featured by a series of brief addresses in which the executives paid tribute to the inspiring leadership of Mr. Mitton.

PAID WARM TRIBUTE

Mr. Southworth declared:

"Many of us have worked under the wise management of your uncle, your father and a few of us remember your grandfather.

"It is a great satisfaction to see you following their footsteps, exemplifying the same justice, loyalty, kindness and a keen business vision, making Jordan Marsh Company not only a store but an institution known throughout the world.

"I assure you, sir, that this small part of a great organization pledges to you, its president, the same loyalty we gave your predecessors."

A prolonged ovation was given the president with the presentation of the gift, and Mr. Mitton, visibly stirred, declared he could do nothing, were it not for the help of those who work under him.

"I realize," he said, "that any success which comes our way or may come our way is due to those who work for me and carry on for me.

"I shall attempt to carry on in the sane spirit, recognizing a job well done, forbearing with mistakes and helping to correct those mistakes."

AT HEAD TABLE

Seated at the head table were Daniel Welsh, William Everett, Mrs. E. R. Mitton, Adolph Ehrlich, Cameron Thompson, R. G. Hawkins, Edward R. Mitton, Jr., Robert Mitton, Thomas J. Brown, Albert Porcelain, President Mitton, the guest of honor, and Richard Edwards, Jr., toastmaster.

Speakers representing various departments of the store, included Warren Carey, Walter London, Miss N. J. Kelley and Edward Howard.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the reception and dinner comprised Albert Porcelain, chairman, Raymond McCarthy, Albert Burns, Henry Wright, Edward McElroy, Phillip Jefferson, Jacob Pike, Marie Falvey, Mrs. E. C. Coleman and Miss Catherine McElhany.

Giant Plane Built In U. S. for Russia

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16 (AP) — An immense flying boat said to be capable of making non-stop trans-Atlantic flights with commercial loads of passengers, cargo and mail will be launched here soon for Soviet Russia.

Built by the Glenn L. Martin company, the airship has a wingspread of 157 feet and is powered by four motors. It can accomodate 46 day passengers and has sleeping quarters for 26.

New Squad Curbs Noisy Strikers

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (INS)—A special police detail was set up today to curb noisy and disorderly strike demonstrations here.

Under the new police policy, to become effective Thursday, mass picketing is forbidden. Not more than six pickets will be permitted in front of a commercial establishment. Pickets may not lock arms, obstruct entrances or talk loudly.

Girl Shoots Self After Reprimand

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 16 (INS)—Fourteen-year-old Doris Minor, junior high school student, critically shot herself because, she declared, "the principal shook me and I don't want to go back to school."

Doris came home from school for lunch and told her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Minor, that the principal had shaken her. She then procured her father's revolver and wounded herself in the abdomen.

Don't let that light fall coat do for the severe winter days. You may think you're hardy and can "take it," but cold germs find easy entrance into your system when your body resistance is lowered by chill. Wear a warm, heavy coat on extremely cold days, as Edna Bradley does in this picture.

Boston Evening American Photo

Two umbrellas, two pairs of rubbers . . . these may be lifesavers to you. Keep one set at home, another at the office. Then you won't be caught by a swift change in weather during your working hours. The dangerous pneumonia months are ahead.

Launch Cruiser Wichita Today

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16 (AP)—The U. S. S. Wichita, last of the 18 heavy cruisers built under the London treaty limitations, will be launched at ceremonies at the Philadelphia Navy Yard today.

The vessel will be sponsored by Miss Margaret Ayres, a native of Wichita and daughter of William A. Ayres, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission.

Rubbers, Umbrella May Save Your Life

Health Expert Advises Wet-Weather Equipment Be Kept at Hand

This is the second of a series of 12 articles by Dr. Bundesen, head of Chicago's health department, a distinguished authority on public health. If you are a business man, lawyer, architect, or engineer, watch for Dr. Bundesen's article tomorrow. It will be of special interest to you.

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Invest right now in two pairs of rubbers . . . two umbrellas.

You know how pleasant it often is when you start out in the morning, and how many times the temperature and the weather change before you go home at night.

When you are ready to leave the office, you may have to step out into a storm with just sandals on your feet, a few thin clothes around your body, no covering overhead.

If you had that extra pair of rubbers and that extra umbrella at the office to protect you from a cold rain or sleet, then that exposure would be prevented and you would start protecting yourself against colds by vowing to keep warm and not to walk in slush in stocking feet covered by a little strip of sole leather with a few little straps to hold it on the foot.

LONDONERS BEWARE

When I was in London recently, I saw many people walking in the bright, clear mornings carrying umbrellas and raincoats. The London weather, as is generally known, is so uncertain that the people there carry their wet weather apparel as a precaution. That would seem to be a reasonable plan for all of us to follow in the winter months. But don't spoil it all by leaving those extra emergency things at home when you have to use them. Be sure to bring them back to the office the next morning.

Now, I'm not going to get "preachy" to you business women, and tell you that you shouldn't stay out after ten o'clock during week days. But, you ought to recognize the simple fact that the overtired body, which is the body that gets too little rest, most easily loses it's resistance to the "flu" and cold germs which are everywhere during the Fall and Winter days, and the result may be a cold!

REST VITAL FACTOR

One of the ways to protect yourself against infections is to get plenty of rest, and not become overtired. If you get just five or six hours' sleep for several nights in succession, you may lower your resistance and catch cold more easily.

Try to keep away from crowds. I know that is an impossibility with many of you. To get to work you probably have to use a street car, bus, or train. It may be warm and stuffy. Then one of those enemies of society sneezes out into the air, spraying the car with germs. When there are constant reminders by signs in street cars and buses, the sneezer sneezes in his handkerchief. You, yourself, might try to breathe through your handkerchief if you suspect the person near you has a cold.

Whenever possible, and that means virtually every day during the winter, take some exercise out-of-doors, but be sure to be properly clad. Walk to and from work if you can. If the distance is too long, walk at least part way.

SPORTS ARE EXCELLENT

Skating and bowing are good exercise for the office worker. I don't have to say much to you about not wearing too much clothing. What is more to the point is to wear a heavy coat when the weather gets down near the zero mark. If you wear a light-weight wrap over the light-weight clothes you wear at the office, you are apt to get chilled.

Proper health habits—sleeping with windows partly open, no matter how cold it is out-of-doors, so that you are sure to get lots of fresh air . . . regular habits of elimination so that the poisonous wastes of the body do not lower your resistance . . . an even temperature, no higher than 72 degrees in the office and the home—all these are important in keeping fit.

Finally, I wish to emphasize proper diet. Be sure to eat enough of the foods that contain the minerals and vitamins you need.

EAT REA BREAKFAST

Eat a good breakfast—a whole-grain cereal; tomato, orange or grapefruit juice. Drink milk, eat eggs and fresh vegetables regularly. Try to eat more vegetables, fruits, milk, and meat, and less starchy, sugary, and fatty foods. In that way you will have the minerals and vitamins that so many doctors believe help build up resistance against colds, without eating more food than is necessary for the kind of work you do. I believe it is wise to take some vitamin "D" preparation, such as cod-liver oil. Vitamin "D" is thought to help build resistance against colds.

There you have it...Avoid undue exposure to bad weather when improperly clad; get plenty of rest; try to protect yourself against the sneezer; exercise every day out-of-doors, keep good health habits; eat right. That's the way to take the Winter in stride.

Jewish Drive Report Today

Officials of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies campaign today thanked hundreds of volunteer workers and predicted the goal of $565,000 would be reached prior to the victory dinner November 21.

A large part of the needed $165,000 is expected to be subscribed today when all trade and professional team captains will report at the Chamber of Commerce.

Competition among the many teams is keen for two prizes to be awarded at the victory dinner. One is the Louis E. Kirstein trophy, to be given to the team that has covered the largest number of prospects, received the largest number of increases and obtained the largest number of subscribers.

Second prize, the business men's council trophy, will go to the team with the second highest standing.

Among the trade and professional teams which already have passed their last year's final total are the following: Curtains, florists, house furnishings, knit goods, optometrists, plumbing and heating.

Marlboro Robber Band Is Hunted

MARLBORO, Nov. 16—Police today sought four men believed responsible for a series of burglaries and attempted burglaries in this city.

Two robbers attempted to break into safes in the Diamond Oil Company office and the Standard Oil Company office, both in Maple street, but failed to get any money.

A truck loaded with 30 batteries and some junk was seized by police just after two men jumped out and fled.

Dalhover Guilty, Under Heavy Guard

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 16 (AP)—Special government agents, heavily-armed, kept alert watch today on a secret cell holding James Dalhover, one-time Brady "triggerman," who may learn December 6 the penalty he must pay for slaying State Policeman Paul V. Minneman.

Dalhover, captured at Bangor, Me., October 12 by federal agents who killed his companions, Alfred Brady and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., pleaded guilty at Hammond to slaying Minneman last May 25.

QUESTION:
Is there more enjoyment in Camels because of those finer, more expensive tobaccos?
ANSWER:
Camels are the LARGEST-SELLING cigarette in America
CAMEL

People do recognize that the finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS in Camel cigarettes make a big difference in the way they enjoy smoking. More Camels are smoked than any other cigarette in America.

Tea Marks Opening of John Lavelle's Spanish Main Art Exhibit

By BETTY ALDEN

BRILLIANTLY colorful reflections of historic and romantic spots on the Spanish main brightened the walls of the Vose Galleries yesterday afternoon . . .

Each of these radiant panels were an impression of the sun baked tropics caught by the inspired brush and water colors of John Lavalle, Boston's outstanding socialite artist . . .

MRS. BENJAMIN GOODALE

Mr. Lavalle, who pronounces his name, Lav-eye-yay, and specializes in portraits of famous Bostonians, went on a cruise to Central America and the Caribbean ports last winter . . . and his water colors, painted while on this trip, have been placed on exhibition at the Vose Galleries . . . where a private view and tea was held yesterday afternoon to celebrate the opening of the exhibit . . .

It hardly seems like ten months or more since we saw Mr. and Mrs. Lavalle at another tea at the Vose Galleries, poring over cruise folders with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Richmond, who went on the southern cruise with them . . . Mrs. Lavalle, was of course, on hand yesterday to greet all their friends . . . Mrs. Richmond was there also, and took her turn pouring at the tea table . . .

One couldn't help feeling little pangs of envy for the lazy figures sprawled out in the warm tropic sun in some of the paintings . . . especially when so many of the women present at the tea were wrapped in furs and heavy coats . . . The gallery was so crowded that it was difficult at times to catch a glimpse of the exhibit, and the same was true of the tea table where some of our most prominent socialites paused for a cup of refreshment and cake . . .

Betty Reece, who takes a keen interest in painting, especially since she is a pupil of Mr. Lavalle's, comes by her talent from her grandmother, Mrs. John P. Thomas of Gloucester street . . . Mrs. Thomas is very much wrapped up in her hobby of painting porcelain figures . . . an art she has picked up in the past few years, after having neglected her painting since girlhood . . . Both Mrs. Thomas and her granddaughter were pourers yesterday afternoon . . . and found many friends with whom to wander through the galleries . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Pike, the latter in a black dress trimmed with a scarlet duvetyn ascot scarf and insets of the red on each cuff, strolled about greeting one couple after another . . . Mrs. Joseph Woods had to leave her husband long enough to take her turn at pouring . . . she never looked smarter than in her black dress trimmed with numerous rows of narrow fringe, and a crimson velvet poke bonnet atop her golden page boy coiffure . . .

Tan Checked Tweeds Popular

MRS. GEORGE LYMAN, JR., who has been a subject for one of Mr. Lavalle's beautiful and lifelike portraits, was also a pourer . . . she wore a sporty outfit of tan checked tweed . . . Martha Snow, who dropped in with the Vose twins, Helen and Elizabeth, was in one of the new Scotch tartans . . . cap and all . . . and Erdna Reggio endorses the same fad with her dress of brilliant red plaid, but introduces an Irish note in a beret of the brightest of Kelly greens . . . She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. A. Nicholas Reggio . . .

Mrs. Guy Warren Walker, the beautiful former Baroness Podmaniczky, had several members of her family to keep an eye on . . . she chose a bright blue velvet hat and ascot to enliven her black costume and set off her snowy white hair to best advantage . . . Mrs. Wiley Robb and her sister, Mrs. K. Wiley Childs, looked like twins in their black outfits with sable scarves . . .

Margot Lumb, who like Eleo Sears, is one of the world's best feminine squash players, attended the exhibit with Mrs. Nicholas Danforth and Mrs. Benjamin Goodale . . . Her burnt orange velvet hat and scarf brightened a pale gray swagger suit, while Mrs. Danforth was a picture any artist would delight to paint in a gray fitted suit with a luxurious platinum fox collar and a gray hat flecked with yellow to match her blonde curls . . .

Ellie Van Kleeck, escorted by one of the Vose sons, looked over the assembled gathering and enjoyed the beauty of the warm colorful paintings . . . Ellie's little Persian lamb turban had a sprig of green quills on one side and blue on the other . . .

Catherine Lane, a noted Boston sculptor; Edward Weeks, Mrs. Charles Gaston Smith, who conducts an art class at the Museum; Anne Peterson, a very promising young Junior League artist; Joseph Leland, a well known architect, and Mrs. Gardiner Fiske, who seldom misses a leading exhibit, were also among the guests . . . Others included Mrs. Walter Tufts, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Emmons, Mrs. E. Sturgis Hinds, Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson, Jean Tuckerman, Mrs. Everett Morss, Jr., and Mrs. Waldo Brown, who was very chic in a gray dress, widely pleated skirt, with brown poke bonnet and accessories and a mink coat . . .

Peggy Dewey Honored at Tea

MRS. BRADLEY DEWEY of Cambridge gave a very lovely tea yesterday afternoon for her debutante daughter, Peggy . . . and for many years to come Peggy will undoubtedly feel a glow of pleasure when she remembers the friendliness and gay conversation as she and her mother and grandmother stood in the fragrance of a background of beautiful autumn flowers to receive their guests . . . Her grandmother, Mrs. Davis Rich Dewey, wore a gown of midnight blue velvet with white lace trimming . . . Mrs. Dewey chose a gown of dark green chrystelle velvet and Peggy's gown was black velvet with a row of tiny gold buttons down the front matching the golden yellow of her orchid corsage . . .

Peggy, who is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club, has a number of important occasions checked and double checked on her social calendar for the next two weeks . . . Among the parties given in her honor will be a small dinner at which her aunt, Mrs. Albert M. Kales of Marlborough street will be hostess . . . and the dance at The Country Club the evening after Thanksgiving at which Peggy and Pauline Tobey will make their formal bows to society . . . The dinner given by Mrs. Kales will take place Thursday evening before the dance for Nancy Newell and Peggy Capper . . .

Bermuda Honeymoon For Envoy's Niece

MR. AND MRS. STANLEY WASHBURN, JR., who were married late in October in a North Shore ceremony, are among the honeymoon couples enjoying Bermuda sunshine. The bride is the former Nina Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Phillips of Wenham. She is the niece of Williams Phillips, American Ambassador to Italy.

Two Bridge Benefits On Week's Program

With two bridge benefits scheduled for this week, the season for charity parties is gathering momentum.

The Cenacle in Brighton is the beneficiary of a bridge and whist being conducted tomorrow evening at the Lake street convent under auspices of the Guild of St. Genesius, a group composed of business and professional women.

St. Vincent de Paul Society Benefits

On Thursday evening, a bridge being held under the auspices of Court St. Ann, Catholic Daughters of America, in St. Ann's Hall, in Neponset will boost the coffers of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Grand regent of the court, Isabel Kittredge, has appointed Mrs. Mary Hemingway and Agnes Callahan as co-chairmen.

For an added attraction this year, a food table has been planned by Margaret De Wire and Mrs. Lucy Weafer. An attractive trio of court members doing table duty at the benefit include Mary McCracken, Edith McInnes and Mrs. Martina Flood.

Industrious chairman of the ticket committee is Dorothy Brogan, who's assisted by Mary Connolly and Mildred Walker and Mrs. Margaret Fitzgerald and Gertrude Maraghy, who are chairmen for the whist and bridge committee, who are assisted by a group of enthusiastic members.

Turkeys with all their fixin's will be distributed by the prize committee, which includes Mary Healey, Marguerite Atchison, Mary Connolly and Kathryn Healey.

"Henceforth the Streets of the City Shall Be Your Cloisters" is the title of the pageant to be presented this evening by college students before the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin of St. Lawrence Church, Chestnut Hill.

The pageant, which was written especially for the community Crusade to dramatize the history of Catholic charity, will be given under auspices of the Catholic Charitable Bureau.

Wheeler-Gaskill Ceremony

There is considerable Boston interest in the forthcoming wedding of Miss Katherine M. Gaskill and William A. Wheeler which will take place in Worcester on November 27. The ceremony will be performed in All Saints Episcopal Church and will be followed by a small reception at the Dewey House.

Miss Carol Gaskill will be her sister's maid of honor and Miss Dorothy L. Pierpont, whose engagement to William Waldo Grose of Great Neck, Long Island, was recently announced, will be one of the bridesmaids. Other bridesmaids will be Miss Elizabeth R. Dewey, a cousin of the bride, Miss Emily Weller of Rochester, N. Y. and Miss Emma Raymond of Cleveland, Ohio.

Sponsor Supper Dance

ROSEMARY O'NEILL MARY DISKIN

It will be on to the Balinese Room of the Hotel Somerset tomorrow evening for members of the Junior Somerville Women's Catholic Club sponsoring a supper dance at the popular night spot. Rosemary O'Neill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. O'Neill of Somerville is chairman of the affair. Capably assisting her is Mary Diskin. Boston Evening American Photo

Expert Versus Master

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An expert player is one who is able to apply precisely the correct technique to any given situation.

Obviously, his store of knowledge must be huge. The master player, however, goes him one better. The master does not depend entirely on technique—he keeps a weather-eye eat all times on the probable reaction of the opponents.

Let us consider the difference between expert and master play.

West, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

North: ♠ Q J 9 ♡ 8 7 5 ◇ A 7 4 3 ♣ J 5 2
West: ♠ 5 4 ♡ A 9 3 ◇ K Q 10 8 ♣ K Q 9 4
East: ♠ 7 6 ♡ K 6 4 2 ◇ J 9 5 2 ♣ 10 8 7
South: ♠ A K 10 8 3 2 ♡ Q J 10 ◇ 8 ♣ A 4 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Pass	2 ◇	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the diamond King. When the dummy appeared it was obvious that there was grave danger of losing two heart and two club tricks. The heart losers were unavoidable; therefore, declarer concentrated on reducing club losses to one trick. Only by "stripping" the hand to create an eventual throw-in play in clubs could this result be effected.

Therefore, on winning with the diamond Ace, declarer returned a low diamond and ruffed it. He then led a low spade to dummy, and ruffed another diamond, following this with a second spade, and a third ruff.

The spades and diamonds were now eliminated. Declarer led the heart Jack. West ducked, and East won. East promptly returned a club, and gone was the declarer's hoped-for coup! Whether he now put up the Ace or ducked, the opponents were assured of two club tricks.

As it happened, he ducked. West won and hastily exited with the Ace and another heart.

The declarer had done his best, but it was not good enough. He had needed a mistake on the part of the opponents, but had not coaxed such a mistake as he could have. He should have realized that by cleaning out dummy's diamonds he would be advertising his general plan to the enemy.

THE MASTER'S WAY

A master would play as follows:

On winning with the diamond Ace, he would lead a heart. East would almost surely duck, and the Queen would lose to the Ace. Now, a diamond return by West would be certain.

Declarer would ruff (but now the opponents could not tell whether his ruff would be painful or joyful), and lead the Jack of hearts. East would win, and now, unless East had an extremely keen nose, he would not be able to sense declarer's deep laid plan.

In all likelihood, East would pump the declarer again with a diamond. Now the stage would really be set. The adverse trumps would be drawn, ending in dummy, and dummy's last diamond ruffed away. The heart Jack would be cashed and a low club led toward dummy.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

DIET AND MASSAGE REDUCE WEIGHT

By IDA JEAN KAIN

ON the screen it's not how much you weigh, it's how much you look as if you weigh. The camera heartlessly adds a visual 10 per cent to a star's weight, and the opera singers who go into the films invariably streamline their figures.

Helen Jepson, the lovely Metropolitan star who recently made her motion picture debut in the "Goldwyn Follies," has come back from Hollywood 15 pounds to the good.

"Diet and massage are responsible for the loss of ten pounds," she said, "and sheer nervous excitement accounts for the other five." From Miss Jepson's radiantly healthy appearance, I am inclined to believe that diet and massage account for the entire fifteen pounds.

She took no chances with her health in reducing. She never lost more than two pounds a week, which is a perfectly safe rate. A moderate diet included three balanced meals a day. Most people who want to reduce make the mistake of eating late at night and nibbling between skimpy meals. Miss Jepson's program was just the reverse—she ate three satisfying meals a day, with nothing in between.

This star is five feet five and three-quarters inches tall and weighs 135 pounds, which is screen-lined weight. According to her build, she could weigh from 138 to 143 pounds and be within normal range.

One way the movie stars manage to look streamlined in spite of the camera is by the good old hardening-up process of exercise. Compact weight looks slimmer than flabby weight. Helen Jepson does not go in for the usual types of sports, but she gets her exercise in deep sea fishing, surf casting and gardening.

For the leg and thigh muscles, she was massaged for 30 minutes a day over a period of three weeks. At the end of this time the calf measurement had tapered down three-eighths of an inch. If you adopt massages as a method of slimming down, remember that it is a quick and easy way to reduce, but also it is temporary in its results and must be followed with honest exercise.

"Shall I Phone Him?" Asks Shrinking Violet

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

While some young women are much too bold in the manner in which they run after boys, others are far too backward. That is why many charming girls never have "dates."

A typical "shrinking violet" is Rose Marie, who sends us this problem:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a daily reader of your column, and often get some good advice.

There's a certain young man, whom I haven't seen for some months now, but who has been in my thoughts a long time. We used to go together quite a bit, and then all of a sudden he stopped coming over.

I want to give a party very soon, and would like to send him an invitation. Do you think it would be all right if I invited him?

I would appreciate it very much if you would let me know what to do. Shall I 'phone him?

ROSE MARIE.

DEAR CHILD:

Yes, it would be quite all right to invite the young man to your party.

Write him a little note of invitation, or you may 'phone him. Either will do. BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

SHE DOESN'T KNOW

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I need your advice badly, about something that means so much to my happiness and peace of mind.

I am 30 years of age and have a very dear friend who has asked me to marry him. I do not know whether I love or do not love this man, although he has my promise.

I have such deep sympathy for him that it pains me to tell him otherwise, and I'm wondering is there a possible chance for happiness in a case like this one?

LAYLE.

DEAR FRIEND:

So long as you are not absolutely certain that you do NOT love this young man, I think there is a chance that you do.

You say you have deep sympathy for him, and then say you do not wish to hurt him—that's a good sign. MUST YOU MAKE A DECISION AT ONCE?

Why don't you tell him how you feel in the matter and ask him to be patient with you for a while, possibly it may take a year.

In the meantime, get better acquainted with him, and notice whether you have anything in common.

Dainty Dress for School

By MARIAN MARTIN

For an up-and-coming youngster's school day make this delightful Marian Martin frock! Seaming simulates a bolero outline which may be accented with ric-rac braid and every little girl will have fun asking her choice of the button or the side closing.

Mother, too, will be pleased with Pattern 9520—for it's the easiest-to-make-at-home style you ever saw, aided by the helpful guidance of the accompanying Complete Diagrammed Sew Chart.

Long or short sleeves, an inverted pleat and comfy matching bloomers will make this frock sturdy and wearable for active kiddie. You've wide choice of color combinations, and wouldn't wool plaid yoke and sleeves be smart in contrast with a frock of monotone wool?

Pattern 9520 may be ordered only in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 1½ yards 36-inch fabric and ⅜ yard contrast.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number.

Get on the bright side of fashion! Send for the new winter Marian Martin Pattern Book—just full of all the latest style news you want to know! The easiest of patterns show you how to look smart at work and play, every hour of the day.

Alluring dress-up frocks, kiddie-togs, and slenderizing flattery for the matron! See the thrilling gift suggestions, accessory news, fabric tips! Price of book 15 cents. Price of pattern 15 cents. Book and pattern together 25 cents.

DICKY ANGRY AT MADGE

CHAPTER 457

I quaked inwardly when Dicky exclaimed: "What have you got in this thing, anyway?" as he lifted from the car trunk the bag which I had put in along with my "emergency suitcase" when we started from the farmhouse on the trip to see Marion at Whitney Hall.

"It's the bag itself that's so heavy," I said, truthfully. "But there didn't seem to be any other one empty and at hand when I was looking for one into which I could dump our toilet things."

"I don't think either of us will require any rocking to sleep," he said. "That unexpectedly good dinner an hour ago coming on top of the day's driving has me gaga now. I'll just lock up the car and turn in. How about you?"

"I'll be in this bed before you're in that one," I boasted, waiting only until he closed the door to dash at the bag of whose heaviness he had complained. Working feverishly, I lifted out my toilet case and his, then rushed with the bag to the [illegible] where I deposited it near an open window. Swiftly moving back again I was stooping over my emergency suitcase undoing the straps when Dicky came back.

"Here, let me do that!" he said, taking the straps from my hands.

I had been lucky, I told myself, for in my quick inspection of the [illegible] from the night before I had seen that there was a piece of ice in the refrigerator, and I had slipped into it the bulkiest of the packages which the bag [illegible] and one which had [illegible] me [illegible]

New Sachet Cologne

By ARLINE GOULD

YOU MAY be casual as Scotch tweed in the daytime . . . but in these competitive times you daren't be casual about your night life!

And lest you be left far behind on the trail of conquest, look to perfection—a luscious, turn-of-the-century kind—for every inch of body that your stand-alone black velvet number reveals!

You'll never again be without an exciting four-purpose sachet-cologne that's just arrived in town practically this minute—with allure and glamour its bywords.

It was created to make the fine feminine skin even more beautiful, to emphasize its sweet fragility, to give it a subtle luminosity, and to guard its blossom-freshness from twilight to dawn.

It is an eau de cologne with a certain pungency that makes one quiveringly eager for another breath of it . . . and it is scientifically combined with a fine, silken sachet powder to conceal blemishes, also with a body rub that lends gay briskness, and an effective deodorant which is the perfect safeguard.

We prophesy its swift and sparkling success on the dressing tables of knowing women of the Duchess of Windsor ilk . . . whether it's in the Straits Settlements or Grammercy Park, or Louisburg square.

It comes in one of those marvelously intriguing lopsided bottles that look as though the crystal were chopped off on one end . . . and it has a big gold knob for a stopper. You couldn't find a bath [illegible] wouldn't be decorated by it.

CHAPTER 15

"Gat" Brower was in a desperate situation.

Red Carroll, the man whom he hated more than anyone else in the world, stabbed, perhaps fatally, with Brower's workshop knife!

"It's my knife, sir," "Gat" admitted, "but I didn't do it, sir. I swear I didn't!"

The warden was calmly accusing.

"You were transferred here because of trouble you had with Carroll at Leavenworth."

"Yes, sir, but I kept away from him. I fought shy of trouble ever since I came here—no matter what anybody did to me, I took it an' kept my mouth shut. I been livin' only to get outa here, sir.

"Why, you must know about the telegram I got today from my daughter about me getting a parole—you surely don't think that at a time like this I'd be crazy enough to peg myself with a killing?"

The warden turned suddenly to "Tough Tony" Burke, "Harp" Santell, and "Pinkey."

'GAT' VOWS INNOCENCE

"We was all watchin' the windows when it happened, sir," insisted Santell.

"Yes, sir," volunteered "Tough Tony." "We was lookin' fer th' Clipper."

Once more the warden turned to "Gat."

"Carroll is dying, Brower. A confession might help you—"

"But, sir, I've nothing to confess—"

• • •

Red Carroll was "goin' out" [illegible] He had rallied for a few [illegible] following an emergency [illegible] in the prison hospital [illegible] had been only a temporary respite.

An interne sat beside the dying gangster, his finger held on the wrist of the semi-conscious man to check any change in the already feeble pulse.

On the other side of the mobster's bed sat the prison chaplain.

Carroll lay there, eyes closed, breathing heavily. Finally he opened his eyes, and without turning his head, looked at those about him.

"WHO WAS IT?"

In barely a whisper he murmured:

"Am I checkin' out?"

The chaplain replied:

"Yes, my son, I'm afraid you are."

But a guard who had been standing at the foot of the bed was not much interested in this type of talk.

Carroll was conscious now and might die at any second—no time to waste.

"Do you know who did it, Carroll?" the guard demanded.

"Do I look dumb? Sure I know."

"Who was it?"

Carroll shook his head weakly.

"I ain't telling. I never ratted yet."

The strain of this ordeal was too much for the convict, and the interne waved the guard back [illegible] the shadows at the [illegible] the room, signaling with a [illegible] to [illegible] further interrogation [illegible]

For several hours Carroll lapsed back into a coma and at 15 minute intervals the interne made notations on a chart showing that the gangster was growing weaker and weaker. It was a wonder, he told the chaplain, that the man had lived even this long.

It was nearly midnight.

With clock-like precision, the beam from the lighthouse on the upper end of the island swung over the prison.

Immediately the interne summoned the prison doctor, who hurried to the wounded convict's bedside and made a rapid examination.

The beating of the man's heart was barely audible through his stethescope. Breathing was slow and irregular.

He dialed the warden's office and after a moment's delay, spoke into the transmitter.

"He's going fast, sir; can't last much more than a few minutes. I think you'd better come over."

CARROLL TELLS

The principal keeper came hurrying into the hospital room, [illegible] a whispered consultation [illegible] He leaned over and whispered hoarsely:

[illegible] can you hear me?" [illegible] The warden continued:

"Tell me the truth, Carroll. Who did it? Who stabbed you?"

The minutes passed—two, three, four minutes. Carroll remained silent, his face set in a grin.

Once more the warden bent over him.

"Who did it, Carroll? Who did it?"

For just a second the dying gangster opened his eyes. Then from his throat came a rasping horrible laugh.

"Gat — Brower — done — it! He killed me—an'—me—me—talk—fer the firs' an' las' time—he—"

Red Carroll was dead!

Claims Eastern Colleges 'Buy' Star Pupils

Michigan Dean Tells Of Scholarship Big Offers

FLINT, Mich., Nov. 16 (INS).—Charges Harvard, Yale, Columbia and other Eastern universities and Midwestern high schools for star students, the University of Michigan deans today were behind a [illegible] Midwestern high school students to attend universities in their own section.

Speaking [illegible] the University of Michigan [illegible] here last night, Dr. Henry M. Bates, dean of Michigan's Law School, said the [illegible] colleges of the East "raid" Midwestern high schools by offering lucrative scholarships ranging from $400 to $800 to outstanding scholars. Columbia offers 124 scholarships and Yale and Harvard each offer more than 100, he said.

Dr. Bates and Dean E. H. Kraus of the Literature, Science and Arts college urged Michigan alumni to [illegible] high school students [illegible] to attend Michigan.

Columbia Dean Denies 'Raiding' Charge

Referring to the charge made in Flint, Mich., by Dean Henry M. Bates of the University of Michigan Law School, that Columbia offered 124 scholarships to Midwestern high school students and that Yale and other Eastern universities likewise held out a lure of lucrative subsidies, Dean Hawkes said:

"I never heard of such a thing. Of course boys from Midwestern high schools enroll here but I don't know anything about their being made special offers. Also I am afraid the dean is misinformed when he says Columbia offers 124 scholarships. I don't know that there is any such number."

Final Honor Paid Hero Letzing

Final military honors were paid yesterday to John L. Letzing, of Roxbury, the first American doughboy to capture a German soldier and the first to be decorated by the United States and French governments.

With many of his former buddies attending a full military funeral was held from the home of Letzing's sister, Mrs. A. M. Hume, of [illegible] street, Roxbury. Services were held at the Holy Trinity Church on Shawmut avenue, with the Rev. Father James D. Loeffler, S. J., officiating.

His health impaired by serious wounds, shellshock and gas, Letzing was in almost continuous need of hospitalization since his return from the war. Gravely ill a week ago at the Soldiers Home in Chelsea, he told officials he would live to see the 19th Armistice Day. He died November 13.

The body will be sent to Washington tonight and the first American hero of the World War will be buried with his comrades in Arlington Cemetery.

Dared Death Threats

Fearing death of her husband, Frank T. Sherkus, as well as harm to herself, through gang "reprisals," Mrs. Margaret Sherkus aided police in a gang round up that included her husband of a week. Two of the five men arrested are held charged with intent to kill two policemen in South Boston on Nov. 7. Mrs. Sherkus said she married to get her husband out of the gang and has given police an alibi for him should the gang try to implicate him in the police shooting story.

Parents to Aid Search For Harvard Student

F. WILLIAM BURGESS

Parents of F. William Burgess, 2[illegible]-year-old Harvard Law School student, who is believed to have drowned in the Charles river, were [illegible] here today from their [illegible] home to aid authorities in solving his disappearance.

Mr. and Mrs. Burgess left the Ohio city last night after they had been notified that clothing and a watch apparently belonging to their son had been found on the West Boston bridge Sunday night. Two persons reported to police that they had heard splashes and cries for help from the river.

Metropolitan police, meanwhile, resumed dragging the water in the vicinity of the bridge after efforts to locate the youth's body yesterday and Sunday night had failed.

Young Burgess has not been seen since he attended classes Saturday, police said. He was in good spirits when classmates spoke to him just before his mysterious disappearance. No reason could be found for possible suicide.

The youth's mother said before she left for Cambridge that she had received a letter from her son Friday.

5 Alleged 'Cop-Haters' Held After Pistol Fight With Police

Betrayed by the woman one of them had married a week ago, a band of youthful "cop haters" was rounded up by authorities today and charged with opening fire on two South Boston policemen who tried to stop their automobile after midnight [illegible] November 7.

In the lineup four of them loudly protested their innocence, while the fifth blubberingly admitted he was one of the [illegible] and implicated the others in the shooting.

Hughes Resigns Press Society Membership

Declines Honor After Guild Protests In Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (INS).—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes has decided to resign as an honorary member of the American Press Society, because of protests made by the Washington Newspaper Guild, he revealed in a letter to the latter organization made public today.

The Guild, an affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization, had declared the Press Society to be in conflict with its aims.

The chief justice said his withdrawal would be in keeping with his policy to abstain from associations which in any sense might be regarded as incompatible with judicial responsibility.

MAKES STAND CLEAR

In an exchange of telegrams with Oliver Holden, chairman of the society's board of governors, Hughes said he did not understand that the aims and activities of the society could give rise to any controversy with the guild, but that since the latter group had felt otherwise he deemed it best to resign and leave no room for misunderstanding.

Holden [illegible]

"Membership of the society consists of "experienced editorial employes of American daily newspapers and it has received neither inspiration nor help from any publisher or other employer or any other source outside its own membership," Holden wired.

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

The most interesting thing about the life of the late Ramsay MacDonald, who died last week while on a rest cruise to South America, was not the fact that he was a poor boy of Lossiemouth who rose to be twice prime minister of England.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

That sort of career is almost as common in modern English politics as here in America. Such names as the late Kier Hardie, John Burns and Tom Mann are evidence of this.

Nor was it rather that he illustrated the fact that often men in power have to make a choice which is [illegible] much harder than something which on the surface seems hard.

Ramsay MacDonald was a socialist of the old dispensation. He was one of that little group of men that worked unceasingly to put labor into parliamentary power.

Labor Party Climbs As Liberalism Declines

His rise was an example of the fact that party power varies from generation to generation. At the beginning of his career his party was a minority which had to choose whether it would support the dominant Liberals or the strong Unionists or Conservatives. But after the war the world noticed a rise in the strength of Labor and a corresponding decline in Liberalism.

The time came when David Lloyd George stood almost alone in a discredited party. Conservatism was stronger and Labor was climbing to power, a very different situation than that which obtained before the war.

Twice Ramsay MacDonald was a Labor prime minister. On his first occasion of holding office he had to mark time. He did not get to do what his party wanted to do. Eventually he was driven out of office for something which was probably not his fault but the machinations of the Russian Soviet.

World Depression Is on As MacDonald Starts Again

When the second time came to assume office as the head of a dominant party, conditions in Great Britain were rapidly sickening in the world-wide depression. The Bank of England and England's finances were in a bad way. King George, it is reported, asked Ramsay MacDonald to form a coalition cabinet of Labor leaders and Conservatives. This cabinet was overwhelmingly returned in the general election of 1931.

The easy thing to do was to have stuck to the principles of Labor and allowed the Conservatives to stew in their own juice. Later, Labor could have come to power. But England was very badly scared. No one knew what might be around the corner. Ramsay MacDonald sacrificed his reputation, his long years of faithful Labor party leadership, to join with the Conservatives in upholding the government. The result may well have saved England.

But he saved England—if he did—at the cost of his reputation. He became an outcast from British Labor. Echoes of that hatred were still to be heard when he died a few days ago.

Period of Unpopularity No New Thing to Premier

Unpopularity among his own people was no new thing for him. He had tasted it, once as a young man when he stood out against the Boer War, along with such other young men as Lloyd George, Gilbert K. Chesterton, George Bernard Shaw, and John Galsworthy. Again he tasted it when in his striving for peace he sought to go to Scandinavia to the International Socialist Congress which was bitterly anti-war. On that occasion, as I remember, even the union sailors who manned the ship on which he was to sail struck against him.

But both those unpopularities were as nothing to that which came to him nearly a decade ago when his party and his friends jeered at him as a turncoat because he tried to throw Labor into the breach of the ruin England was facing. The "liberal" intellectuals, always the backbone of the Labor party in England, treated him no better. Eventually his colleague of the coalition, Stanley Baldwin, took his place in governing England, and MacDonald, old, ill, almost blind, accepted the merely honorary position of Lord President of the Council. He might have had a peerage but he declined it. He worked stoutly for co-operation with America in the days when things looked bad for both of us.

I think that by the time he died serious students of his career recognized that he had done a very brave thing, a harder thing to do than was involved by remaining a mere party man. He destroyed his career for the sake of England. He laid down his life, so to speak, not for his friends but for his political enemies. England owes him much.

Vigilante Band Is Probed in Springfield

Fascist Propaganda Charges Aired at State Hearing

The special state commission investigating subversive organizations today considered charges that an armed vigilante band had been organized in Springfield to act as a strikebreaking agency and that the local Italian consulate aided in the dissemination of Fascist propaganda.

John P. Greene of Springfield, president of the State Federation of Labor, made the first charge when he testified that the Springfield Chamber of Commerce had sponsored the so-called Military Police Reserve which was to act as a reinforcement to the regularly constituted police department.

ADMITS DRILLING

Testifying before the commission at the State House [illegible] group conducted [illegible] and explained [illegible] against protesting [illegible]

Another witness [illegible] present commander of the group, admitted that the [illegible] organization was [illegible] but denied it had been [illegible] to break strikes. Although he said the group had an agreement with the police department [illegible] use in labor controversies he declared this provision might be changed.

It was not stated [illegible] the vigilantes had been organized.

Survivors Tell of Sea Horror

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 16 (AP).—Twenty-one sailors saved from the Greek freighter Tzenny Chandris, which foundered and sank [illegible] off Cape Hatteras [illegible] recuperated today from shock and exposure.

The coast guard cutter Mendota brought 15 of the survivors to port here yesterday while six others, first to be rescued, were taken off the tanker Swiftsure at [illegible]

Seven members of the crew of 28 died. Three bodies were [illegible] missing.

[illegible] threatened the seamen [illegible] and death as they [illegible] to wreckage of the freighter.

Commander Henry C[illegible] master of the Mendota, related the story told by survivors of one sailor being pulled bodily through his life belt by a shark.

Captain George Coutoparalos, master of the freighter, told how a fellow seaman, driven mad by 32 hours of exposure and thirst, attacked him as they floated in the open sea. The man died before coast guardsmen arrived.

Tastier Cakes Now in Demand

Trend Is Discussed At Bakers' Session

Cakes are getting smaller and tastier, E. B. Nicolait, of New York, told an audience of the New England Bakers Association in convention at the Hotel Statler.

Nicolait stated that at one time the consumer bought according to bulk, but declared the "trend now is toward palatability," Nicolait said.

Today Governor Hurley will address the bakers.

Martha Lee, the Boston Evening American's own cooking expert, was the only woman in attendance at yesterday's session, as one of two members of the Bakery Engineers Association in this country.

Tufts German Club Meeting Tomorrow

The German club of Tufts college will hold its second meeting of the school year tomorrow evening at Packard Hall on the Tufts campus.

The program will be informal, with emphasis laid on getting acquainted and having a good time rather than on gaining a purely academic knowledge of the German language.

Sea's Tragedy in Graphic Pictures

1—Plowing through a heavy sea off Cape Hatteras the oil tanker Swiftsure sights in the far distance the tiny lifeboat containing six members of the crew of the Greek freighter Tzenny Chandris, sunk by the storm's fury.

3—The Tzenny Chandris' crew, injured in their frantic leap from their sinking ship and worn by exposure to the elements, is plainly visible now from the deck of the Swiftsure.

4—Rescue is near at hand now. The frail lifeboat is only a few feet from the Swiftsure. Those of the lost freighter's crew who can stand shout words of thanksgiving and wave their arms in joy.

GEORGE GINKAS

DR. DASCALOPOULO

Dog Death Howl Saved Crew of Lost Ship

Awakened Sleeping Men in Middle Of Storm

By ROBERT L. GREEN

[illegible] howls of a few [illegible] dog [illegible] North Atlantic gale that sent the ill-fated Greek freighter Tzenny Chandris to the bottom [illegible] day were [illegible] of the [illegible] Mobile [illegible]

The six men were rescued from a lifeboat [illegible] crew of the [illegible] Swiftsure which [illegible]

SHIVERS DOWN SPINE

"I had been sleeping for what must have been several hours, but seemed to me to be only a few minutes when I found myself sitting up in my bunk with shivers running up and down my spine. Then I heard what must have awakened me.

"The ship's mascot, a large police dog belonging to the captain, was howling a death howl from some part of the ship. I noticed several others had been awakened by the dog. We rushed to the deck.

"This was 2 o'clock in the morning and at that time the ship was believed to be in no immediate danger although the pumps were working because the huge green mountains of water that were smashing on the deck had washed away one of the ventilators and was rushing below.

"That dog knew what was coming because we hadn't been on deck long when the ship took a decided list. Fear struck us all numb. Our cargo of scrap iron had shifted.

"Several men ran to the lifeboat stations without waiting for orders. Others rushed to the bridges.

LIFEBOATS SWEPT OVER

"Somebody must have given an order for several lifeboats were unlashed and swung from the davits. The seas, however, took these, sweeping them over the side.

"The dog had stopped howling, but the ship had by now canted far over on her side and acted as if she would roll over any minute.

"Many of the men were jumping into the sea, some without bothering to put on a lifebelt. Then I noticed that George Ginas was trying to untie the lifeboat falls. The next minute he and the lifeboat disappeared in a smother of water as several large waves hit the wallowing ship at once.

"Hastily slipping on a lifebelt I threw myself into the sea. I managed to swim away and made my way to a partly submerged lifeboat. In it was George Ginas, half-conscious and bleeding from a half dozen cuts.

"Ginas and I were joined later by Demetrios Yannoukakis, Christos Avalelotis, Antonis Kareris and Antonios Charpolis, all of whom were injured in some way or other. These others, like myself, had jumped overboard when the Chandris seemed about to roll over."

[illegible]

It was at this point that Lady Luck [illegible] the excellent seamanship of Captain Albert C. Allen of the Malay tanker Swiftsure, bound from Corpus Christi, Tex., for the Colonial Beacon [illegible] dock in Everett, took over the lead role in this newest saga of the sea.

RESCUE EFFECTED

At 9:50 a.m. Saturday morning the [illegible] mate Lloyd M[illegible] on watch reported [illegible] there appeared to be a small boat two [illegible] of the Swiftsure's course.

By careful maneuvering of his ship Captain Allen brought the lifeboat into the Swiftsure's lee and the rescue was affected.

"One man," said Captain Allen, "as the lifeboat was brought alongside, flung an oar angrily into the sea, another collapsed when he reached the deck. A third sailor threw himself to his knees and prayed. All the men, however, were badly used up by the experience and I ordered the steward to take the men below where they were fed and given first aid."

The Greek seamen were greeted aboard the Swiftsure by the general consul of Greece in Boston, Dr. Pierre G. Dascalopoulo, who also subjected the men to a medical examination.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By

Marjorie McBride

A professor's lot, like a policeman's, is not always a happy one, but any teacher in these parts who thinks he has grief should consider the case of Professor Norris Potter of the English department of Northeastern University and rate himself in luck.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

Four of the bright young men in his class in the College of Liberal Arts are at work on historical novels, and he has recklessly agreed to give them advice and assistance from time to time. Which wouldn't seem to leave him much time for the boys who haven't started their novels yet, but by cutting into his sleeping hours he probably will make it. The boys are Charles Tracy, Sherwin Helms, Ernest MacKenzie and Hartley Hatchins, all majoring in English.

Tracy is working on a Revolutionary tale, scene laid in Lexington, which is his home town. It will be a stark story, reaching the climax in the war itself. Helms will go even further back. He will make the Indians his theme. He will explain their political and social life, with time out for some good bloodcurdling massacres and the like. He promises it will make the modern reader's hair lift in sympathy.

Civil War and Arnold's March to Give Material

Hatchins, who has a good name for a book writer, will go to the Civil War for his material, but it won't be a duplicate of "Gone With the Wind." It will have lots of pretty girls and a happy ending, just in case Hollywood is interested. Young MacKenzie will take Benedict Arnold's march on Quebec for his story. A little like some of Kenneth Roberts' books, but the style will be different, MacKenzie says.

Norris thinks it a fine idea. It will give the boys a chance to express themselves. If one has talent, he will have made a start. If they have no writing ability they'll find it out early, and settle down to selling stocks or something else. Anyway, the books are slated to be bound and kept in the college library.

Gift of Copperhead to Girl Is Unwelcome to Mother

A North Carolina boy who sent a five-foot copperhead to fourteen-year-old Phyllis Pentheny of Malden probably meant well. He had read in the papers that snake-collecting was her hobby, as it is his, and was sure she would welcome the "specimen." Maybe she did, but not so her mother, and now the copperhead and the 300 non-poisonous reptiles the girl had collected in the last two years are on their way to a zoo.

Mama Pentheny put her foot down not a whit too soon. The gallant Carolina boy was about to send several lively diamond-backed rattlers north. Mrs. Pentheny has suggested a new hobby for Phyllis . . . say stamp collecting, or embroidery.

A doorless telephone booth where you may talk in comfort as well as privacy is on the way, according to engineers associated with the Museum of Science and Industry at Chicago. It will be perforated, and made of sound absorbent materials. A "zone of quiet" will be created without shutting off the supply of fresh air, and the person standing a foot away won't be able to hear what you say.

Cows in North Station Advertise "Milk Week"

Probably it's just as well there are signs about explaining it's National Milk Week, and THAT'S why those cows are quartered in the North Station. Otherwise, guess that visitors rolling into the station after a tour of the town's night life might be a little dazed to see cows grazing on a plot in the center of the marble concourse.

It's all part of a show being sponsored by the New England Dairy and Food Council and the State Department of Agriculture. They thought the cows in the station would give a realistic touch to Milk Week.

A new coiffure designed by the experts of the Hotel Statler Beauty Salon has been christened "Girl About Town." And don't ask this column why. It features a roll of puffed curls at the back, and bangs rolled and swept back from the forehead. Phyllis Childs, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Childs of Lexington, modelled for the style.

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

NO professional performer appears to have appeared on more air programs in addition to his or her own, than has Eddie Cantor.

Eddie the effervescent would be a manner of terming him and he's at it again (WNAC) tonight when his "Hollywood Mardi Gras" program hosts are Charlie Butterworth and Lannie Ross. That's as per the Tuesday evening usual, at 9.30 p. m.

It seems Eddie has come upon another juvenile find, a 10-year-old named Terry Kilbourne, from England. The characteristic Cantor enthusiasm is manifesting itself every bit as profusely as it did when he came upon and began boosting Bobby Breen and Deanna Durbin. He certainly put the Breen lad and Durbin lassie across no mistake. In turn he claims this Kilbourne youngster from Great Britain is an exceptionally outstanding dramatic artist explaining eagerly that tonight marks the boy's American debut.

ALIAS ALLEN

One of our well informed column customers has been digging data on Fred Allen, born John Florence Sullivan, as most Bostonians know.

Said subscriber from Somerville by the way and named Wilson advises that "Fred" was as "Fred St. James" in his juggling days, which is quite true.

Come to think of it our patron of these paragraphs might be pleased further to know that Fred was once Paul Huckle and billed as a "European Entertainer" for a good while before he ever journeyed east of Sandy Hook.

In any event the funster is due back again come Wednesday evening when it's "Town Hall Tonight" on the air—which is most important news concern right now.

ASKING THE ASKERS

MONDAY NIGHT MUSINGS

Burns and Allen are acceptably funny enough but bringing in Ray Noble from his orchestra leading place to provide stooging just won't click substantially at all in this ear-cupping corner.

Edward Arnold effective as all-get-out during the "Radio Theater" setting labeled "Come and Get It" from 9 to 10 o'clock—a great story and smartly radio staged by Cecil B. DeMille.

* * *

Not a soul said so but here's to wager that Marian "Molly" Jordan is not meaning too ill to have been with Jim "Fibber McGee" Jordan last night and the air show suffered no little by her absence.

It is true that just a week or so ago "Molly" made her "mike" appearance in a wheel chair. Now it seems that her condition must be considerably more serious. Jim wasn't himself or a good "Fibber McGee" either, last evening and something of a lowered spirit prevailed throughout the usually peppy half hour.

His sign-off "Good night Molly" unmistakably evidenced a deep concern. No two air artists in all broadcastingdom are more devoted in private or professional life than Marian and Jim Jordan.

Good luck galore is wished for the top notch tenor named Clark Dennis now doing vocal duty for the "Fibber McGee and Molly" feature. Even so, the singing of Perry Como isn't by any means as easily replaced as the program planners might imagine.

OTHER OFFERINGS

Buddy Clark returns as guest soloist singing "Taint Necessarily So" referring to the discussions of Human Chatterbox Arlene Harris and Tizzie Lish both of whom will have their from-the-heart say on the subject of matrimony.

Stick to Old Thanksgiving Tradition

By MARTHA LEE

"TRADITION wears a snowy beard," according to the poet Whittier—but let's not shave it off for Thanksgiving!

For years now good American housewives have set jaws against changing the menu of our most traditional feast.

It's turkey (or fowl of some native breed); it's stuffing; it's gravy; it's cranberry sauce; it's pumpkin or mince pie or fruit cake! That's the backbone of the Thanksgiving feast, has been ever since Priscilla parceled out the drumstick to John Alden—and probably will still be come 1988.

Keep it that way. Set down your foot and fast against changing the ancient order. But let 1937 inspire some "fancy fixings." You'll have more fun and so will the diners if you indulge in some modern extras—the "frippe ies." They're fun to do, start table conversation, are good to eat, and how they do adorn the table setting.

CRANBERRY BANANAS

1 cup cranberries
½ cup cold water
½ cup sugar
3 large bananas
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Wash berries and cover with cold water. Cook quickly ten minutes and press through a sieve. Add sugar to the hot cranberry juice and stir well. Cut peeled bananas lengthwise into halves and sprinkle with lemon juice. Place in baking dish, pour cranberry juice over bananas. Bake in moderate oven 375 F. 10 minutes until bananas are tender. Serve hot with the meat course. Serves 6.

FLORIDA ORANGE SHERBET

2 cups fresh orange juice
1 cup boiling water
½ cup sugar
3 egg whites
Pinch of salt
½ cup sugar
½ lemon

Boil ½ cup of the sugar and the boiling water together for 10 minutes and pour over orange gelatine to dissolve; add orange and lemon juice. Place mixture in freezing tray of refrigerator and freeze to a mush. Beat egg whites until very stiff and add the other ½ cup sugar gradually. Beat orange mixture until foamy and combine with egg whites and sugar. Return to tray and stir every half hour until sherbet begins to freeze. Serves eight.

HOLIDAY NIBBLES

After the meal is over it's time to sit around the table and chat munching meanwhile on sweetmeats fruits and nuts, and the best of these will be dates plain, sugared or stuffed with nutmeats or fondant. Fruit paste stuffings are also popular and the children like their dates stuffed with marshmallows. Peanut butter or cheese and candied orange peel, glazed fruit or fruit paste may be used.

FRENCH GLACE DATES

1 pkg. dates.
1 slice canned pineapple
1 cup sugar
1 cup white corn syrup.
½ cup water

Stuff the dates with a bit of pineapple wrapping the date entirely around the filling. Cook the sugar syrup and water until the syrup begins to discolor (310 degrees F.). Remove the pan from direct heat and place in a pan of hot water so that the syrup will not cool too rapidly. Place each date on a fork, dip into syrup; let drip a moment and then place on a greased pan or marble slab to harden. Yield About 1¼ pounds.

SALTED NUTS

Sprinkle nuts evenly with salt in the proportion of 2 teaspoons of salt to 1 pound of shelled nuts. Blanch peanuts or almonds before salting. Drain nuts thoroughly and put layer in frying basket. Plunge into deep fat which has been heated to 360-370 degrees F. Cook until nuts are golden in color, avoid overcooking. Remove from frying kettle and allow surplus fat to drain back into the kettle. Turn onto absorbent paper to drain [illegible] while hot.

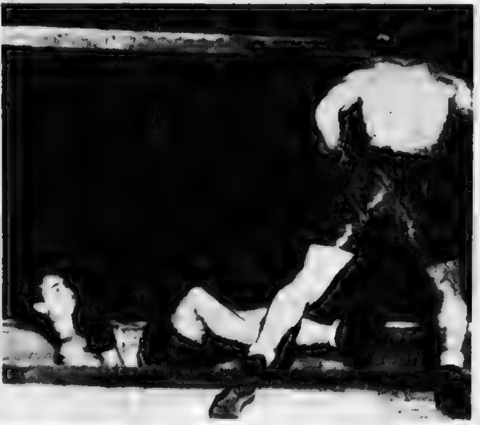
EDWARD DE ANGELIS REFEREE JOHNNY BRASSILL MEL EDMANSON



HERVE LIBERTE LARRY BOLVIN

Monty Good Golfer But Not a Great One, Corcoran Says

Among the thousands of cash customers who milled around the Fresh Meadow Country Club, L. I., when John Montague, the Hollywood mystery man, made his Eastern debut in an exhibition match, was Fred Corcoran, tournament manager of the P. G. A.

Bill Grimes

"Just how good is this Montague?" we queried Freddie, upon his return from Long Island

"Well, it would be unfair to judge him on his showing at Fresh Meadow," replied Freddie, who is one of the most reliable golf authorities in the game. "Under the conditions, there isn't a golfer in the world who would have looked the part.

"The crowd was a combination of the wildest species of baseball, fight, hockey and wrestling fans," Fred went on. "The place was a bedlam. It was a wonder many were not seriously injured.

"I saw Monty play a few times last winter out on the Coast. I followed him the day Big Ed Dudley tossed a 63 into his lap at Lakeside.

"Down around L. A., they rate him as a good amateur, but you know there's a big difference between amateur and pro golf. He plays very well in friendly matches, but before he can take his place among the topnotchers, he must deliver in competition.

"I think it requires at least five years for any golfer to break into and flash in pro golf.

Corcoran Says Monty's a Pro

"Is he a pro or an amateur?"

"He's a pro. He was an assistant pro before going to the Coast"

"Will he make the winter circuit with the pros?"

"I really don't know. He may, but I think he will engage in exhibition matches, for, to be honest, he'd run into too stiff a brand of competition with the 'Big Shots,' which, of course, would impair his present reputation."

"You said, Freddie, that Montague would be great in the amateur game. Now, how do you figure he'd fare with Jesse Guilford, Freddie Wright and some of our other outstanding 'simon pures'?"

"You'd see some fine matches," Freddie mused.

"Do you know there's something about this game that causes all athletes, who are sensational in any other branch of sport, to be rated as great golfers as soon as they connect with a couple of fine shots," continued Corcoran.

"I heard Henry Picard comment on that a year ago. He said a pro golfer couldn't go out on a baseball field and receive the slightest consideration or even a mention, but ball players crash the headlines for getting into the middle 80's. He concluded with 'I guess that's good promotion,' which, as I see it, hits the nail plumb center."

Fenway Game Should Draw 30,000

The sudden demand for tickets caught the Harvard Athletic Association flat-footed. It is the first time since 1931—Barry Wood's year—that the demand for Harvard-Yale tickets has exceeded the supply.

The Stadium is completely sold out, and tickets, regardless of their location, are bringing nice premiums.

The Boston College-Boston University game will benefit from the ticket famine across the river.

In all probability, the Eagles-Terrier battle will be one of the best games staged here this season. It should draw upwards of 30,000 customers, for the teams are very evenly matched, and there is an intense rivalry between the two institutions.

Until the Villanova game, the general run of college football fans had never seen B. U. They were surprised at the excellent

Olympic President Banked on to Heal A. A. U. Rift With Collegians, Oarsmen

By WALTER KILEY

A [illegible] feast with the warring [illegible] American Olympic [illegible]

A [illegible] Gilbert of New Haven [illegible] has been [illegible] by [illegible] of the [illegible] Olympic track and field swimming wrestling and eight-oared crew competitions the debatable sports

The quadrennial meeting of the American Olympic Association will be held in Washington tomorrow and Thursday. It is hoped that a united front will be reached before the Wednesday sessions go into conclave so that harmony will be [illegible]

Behind the scenes but the major power none-the-less, is Avery Brundage the much discussed president of the American Olympic Association whose intimate friendship with Griffith would make it seem only logical that he will force through a solution amenable to all parties concerned

There seems to be little doubt that Judge Samuel Eugene Hoyt of New Haven, successor to Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney as A. A. U. president, was elected by the backing of the powerful Gilbert who in turn is closely affiliated with Brundage

Hoyt, Yale '97, is likewise a college man with sympathetic leanings

So it would seem logical to suppose that Brundage's opinions on dividing authority with the colleges will be the straws showing the way the wind is blowing, and that the picked committee of the A. A. U. will swing into line accordingly.

In other words, it became increasingly apparent during the conduct of the three day convention at the Copley Plaza that Brundage storm center of the Eleanor Holm Olympic case, an extremely wealthy man, is today far stronger than ever in the Olympics and A. A. U. world and dominates amateur sports.

Several matters of [illegible] were cleared up before the [illegible] Boston [illegible] was brought to a close

First was the [illegible] of Washington [illegible] 1938 Golden Jubilee [illegible] Tom Kane [illegible] man of the [illegible] committee [illegible]

The William F. Sullivan trophy [illegible] of the year announced a list of ten names for [illegible] polling

A George V. Brown memorial trophy was voted in memory of the late general manager of the Boston Garden Boston Arena Corporation

It will be awarded each year to the National Amateur Hockey championship team. Fittingly enough these championships were given to Boston next year, to be held probably at Boston Garden late in February

Monty Refuses Tour With Ruth

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (INS). A [illegible] with Babe Ruth was turned down [illegible] by John (Mysterious) Montague on the [illegible] that he [illegible] to remain an amateur [illegible] National Amateur [illegible] championship next [illegible]

In any case Montague generally is credited with having turned down the first $20,000 or there [illegible] he hopes [illegible] a tour with Ruth or some other spotlight [illegible]

Ruth never was approached on the matter, it was said, and it never went beyond the stage of a discussion because Montague insisted other plans be considered instead so that his amateur standing would not be impaired

His tentative plans as previously announced call for his participation in the Indianapolis 500-mile automobile race and in the National Open for some movie work and anything else in keeping with his position as the man who helped to draw the biggest gallery that ever watched a golf match on this continent

(Ed Note—Read what Freddie Corcoran has to say about Monty's amateur standing in Bill Grimes' column today.)

Reid Elected Golf Leader

Pierce of Brookline Vice President

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (INS). The nominating committee of the U. S. Gold Association has named Archibald M. Reid of Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y., as the organization's next president, it was learned today. Nomination is tantamount to election

Harold W. Pierce, of Brookline Mass., will succeed Reid as vice president, with Jess A. Sweetser of Bronxville, N. Y., former national and British amateur champion, replacing Pierce as treasurer

Greenleaf in Title Match

The veteran Greenleaf and the youthful Crane finished in a deadlock for first place last night in the 1937 tournament and will meet tonight in a playoff for the title. Greenleaf defeated Willie Mosconi, of Philadelphia, 125 to 79, in 28 innings while Crane triumphed over Edwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, 125 to 58, in 38 innings

Pigs Banned At A-N Game

Judge Orders Grunters Moved

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16 (AP)—Magistrate Costello has ordered 10 pig raisers near the municipal stadium to take all their pigs to market within a week to clear away "objectionable odors" before the Army-Navy football game November 27.

Mickey Sells Farm

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 16 (INS)—Manager Mickey Cochrane of the Detroit Tigers had a "For Sale" sign today on the Oakland County farm, where, for years, he has raised championship cattle.

Algerian Matman To Show at Arena

Seelie Samara, giant wrestler from Algeria, will make his Boston debut at the Arena tomorrow night when he meets Hans Schumann of Germany. Samara states the fans will see something new in wrestling when he steps on the mat

The big feature tomorrow night will be a ten-round bout between Ted Germaine and Bill Collins and Jack Sharkey as the third party in the ring. These three are bound to make it exciting both for themselves and the fans

Sharkey always gives the fans a great run for their money and seems to delight in showing them he can still throw punches

Dick Ford Scores Three Knockouts

But Little Larry Bolvin Is Fans Pride As He Punches Way to Victory in 112-Pound Class at Arena

"The greatest show yet"

That was the unanimous verdict of the 4000 fans who filed through the Boston Arena exits in the wee small hours this morning after watching the cream of New England's amateur boxers [illegible] 46 bouts in the third elimination series of the William Randolph Hearst All-America Boxing Championship, under the auspices of the Irish American A. A.

They saw eight [illegible] in times [illegible] qualifying [illegible] All-America [illegible] November 29. They saw [illegible]

TWENTY KAYOS

And no less than 20 times they saw what they had come [illegible] the decision [illegible]

[illegible] the novice division were settled via the K. O. route

"The greatest show yet"

That was the height of conservatism.

Perhaps the most thrilling performance of the thrill-packed night was that turned in by Larry Bolvin of Providence in battling his way to victory in the 112-pound open competition.

WHIPS LIBERTE

The Rhode Island midget started out by stopping Ray Fournier of Manchester, N. H., in the first heat

He followed up that quick win by beating Herve Liberte, another Manchester pride, in the best bout of the evening

He knocked Liberte down in the first round, but the Granite Stater came back and finished so strongly that the result was in doubt until the official decision was rendered

The Providence [illegible] was very [illegible] but he had enough strength left to knock out Joe Morrisette of Fall River in the [illegible] round of the final

THREE FOR FORD

[illegible] Ford of Lawrence stiffened [illegible] as he slugged his way to victory in the 135-pound open [illegible] John Bernabie of East Boston in one round, Al [illegible] of East Boston in two [illegible] and Mickey Panczyk of Chelsea in three rounds

Other open winners were Mike Dalton, East Boston, 118 pounds; James Esposito, Brookline, 126 [illegible] Frank Campanale, Worcester, 147 pounds; Fred McLean, Roxbury, 160 pounds; Mike Doherty, [illegible] 175 pounds and James [illegible] Charlestown, heavyweight.

[illegible] were $2733.50 and [illegible]

[illegible] week in every way, the William Randolph Hearst All-America Boxing Championships grow bigger and better

Canavan Recovered From Injury, Set For Big Test

A tiny 149-pound end, who has been dogged by misfortune all year, may start for Boston University against Boston College in the big intra-city clash at Fenway Park Saturday afternoon.

Out most of the season, Harold Canavan returned to the squad two weeks ago and has been so impressive that Coach Pat Hanley is contemplating the shifting of Al Holgerson, his first string right end, to the left wing berth and starting Harold on the right end of the line.

Canavan, despite his lack of size, has been an outstanding end during the past two years. Although it is hard to believe, he has few superiors defensively.

In the second game of the year Canavan had his knee split wide open with a [illegible] and was out for three weeks. [illegible]

Kramer Rides With Frank

By MURRAY KRAMER

[illegible]

Although this is a bit early in the week, this corner comes out flatly for Yale . . . curiously enough this correspondent has called every Harvard victory and loss this year. He hopes he's wrong here, for if ever a coach deserved a grand windup it's Dick Harlow.

But it is hard to see Yale losing . . . last year the Eli was a very tired eleven after a bitter struggle with Princeton . . . last Saturday the Tigers were really nothing more than a "breather" . . . the Eli regulars were in there only for the first period and part of the third . . . they are well rested.

Yale does not underestimate Harvard, and there will be no over confidence . . . both lines are very even on form . . . Harvard has the more deceptive attack but Yale has Frank [illegible] personally well [illegible] with Frank [illegible] the Chats [illegible] last game and the All America [illegible] intends to make his farewell appearance in true All America fashion.

The East is definitely on its way back to football . . . competition is keener than ever before . . . Princeton, Army and Colgate, which were the powers last year, have taken complete reverses, but Yale, Dartmouth, Fordham, Pittsburgh, Villanova and Holy Cross have stepped forth to dominate the scene.

[illegible] accept a Rose Bowl bid . . . Yale is noncommittal . . . those close to the situation believe that Yale would take the chance . . . just what the situation is at Yale nobody knows, but the fact does remain that the athletic heads down at New Haven have really gone all the way in commercializing football.

[illegible]

[illegible] the bid will go to Alabama.

Mid-Western Coaches Rap Officiating

NEW YORK, Nov 16 (AP)—Mid-West coaches are burned up with the officiating out there and will do plenty of howling about it at the winter meeting.

When Henry Cotton, high hat British open champ, failed to show up for the last round of a tourney at Southampton, the public got even by ducking a testimonial dinner for Henry . . . (P. S.: Dinner was called off for lack on attendance.)

Word from the south is if you can get a loyal Pitt supporter to give you duke and seven on November 27, it won't even be gambling.

Nebraska toted 65 G's out of that Pitt game Saturday and will spend part of the dough on a new eight-acre practice field . . . Most coaches say they don't need it.

RICE LOOKS LIKE WINNER

Coach Charlie Bachman of Michigan State was surprised to read in the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald that he is doing an excellent job of coaching at the U of Michigan . . . Our old pal Heinie Martin blames it on the printers.

Rice looks like the winner in the Southwest conference and this week's Rose bowl candidates are California and Pitt . . . Note to Van Mungo, Pageland, S C: Brooklyn has definitely determined to trade you this winter, rain or shine.

Babe Ruth played three of the nine holes against John Montague et al, with his shirt tail flapping in the breeze . . . Walter Johnson has a radio voice strikingly similar to that of the late Will Rogers.

A Negro lad, Holman Williams, of Detroit, is the best fistic card in New Orleans right now . . . Football men hereabouts can't figure out that Michigan investigation into subsidizing . . . Michigan's to the record certainly doesn't indicate anything out of the way.

SCHWARTZ ON PAN

Marchy Schwartz of Creighton is the latest football coach to go on the pan . . . The school has only 600 students but they can't understand why Creighton can't win from larger schools.

The 19-0 defeat by Xavier brought the jeering section out in full force.

Extra: One of the first deals made at the December baseball meetings will see old Al Simmons changing scenery again . . . The score of a Negro football game at Bastrop, Tex., the other day was 136-0 when the referee stopped the thing in the third quarter.

When you think of the weather they had to play in Saturday, you can't blame football players for making the collitches lay it on the line.

MR. BOSTON

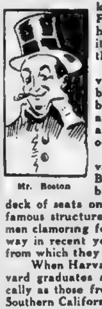
—By JACK CONWAY—

DICK HARLOW IS burning the midnight oil as he is trying to dope out a defense for Harvard that will stop Clint Frank of Yale in the Stadium on Saturday. Harlow knows that if Harvard is unable to stop Frank that Yale will win, and Dick has had the thought in his head all year that it is about time his Crimson eleven handed the Eli a sound shellacking.



Mr. Boston

This ambition is also shared by Harvard men everywhere and even by those boys and girls who do not go to college, but who have always felt they could make a little more whoopee and get away with it after a Crimson victory than on any other occasion.

There is so much interest in the Harvard-Yale game on Saturday that Bill Bingham, director of athletics at Cambridge, regrets he is unable to drop another deck of seats on the Stadium, or push the walls of that famous structure back a mile or so. There are Harvard men clamoring for tickets who have not gone out of their way in recent years to mention the name of the college from which they graduated.

When Harvard defeated Princeton it was found Harvard graduates and students could cheer as enthusiastically as those from Pitt, Notre Dame, Northwestern and Southern California if they had something to cheer about. Harvard men who had the advantage of a law school education even found it difficult to alibi their football team as it suffered repeated defeats.

Now things have changed at Cambridge, and even freshmen up from Groton School and Noble & Greenough can toss the football debaters from other colleges for healthy losses.

This new enthusiasm has made Dick Harlow all the more eager to win from Yale. Dick has been building for a star eleven for three years, and if his team wins from Yale on Saturday he can modestly tell Harvard men his boys have fulfilled his highest expectations.

The years of football disappointments will be forgotten in a glorious Harvard victory on Saturday. If the Crimson wins over Yale you will see the greatest after-game demonstration ever staged in the historic Stadium. The ghosts of Harvard's football immortals will dance with the wild throng that will rightfully take home the goal posts for souvenirs, and race in savage style around the field.

Frank Greatest Player in East

CLINT FRANK is unquestionably the greatest football player in the East. He is a super-star who dazzles rivals when under terrific fire. Like a true champion, he rises to his greatest heights in the most tense moments of a game.

Witness Frank's brilliant feat in the closing 12 seconds of Yale's game with Dartmouth. It was fourth down with the ball deep in Yale territory. Frank knew that if Yale lost the ball on the next play that Dartmouth's victory was sure.

Everybody in the Yale Bowl knew Frank would try to throw a forward pass. Dartmouth set its defense as best it could.

The ball went to Frank and he faded back a few yards, then threw a flat pass to Hessberg. It was a perfect pass, and Hessberg raced for a touchdown. Yale converted the point after touchdown, and the final score was 7 to 7.

Dartmouth had studied how to stop Frank and had failed.

Against Princeton, Frank ran riot. He scored almost at will.

• • •

Harlow's Tribute to Frank

I HEARD DICK Harlow tell Harvard men at the Varsity Club that last year he knew every play Frank would attempt, and yet was unable to build a defense that would stop him.

"Frank is one of the greatest football players I have ever seen," said Harlow.

Last year Frank tossed his passes to loquacious Larry Kelley. Kelley was an artist in always coming up at the spot where he should be to receive a forward pass.

Even without Kelley in the line-up Frank has been remarkably successful in throwing forward passes. At critical moments of the game there has usually been an alert Yale player like Hessberg on the receiving end of the pass.

I know Harlow has not given up the task of stopping Frank. Dick will have a stronger Harvard team on the field on Saturday than at any time since he came to Cambridge.

In the Princeton and Army games players proved very skilful in carrying out their particular assignmets. The gains made by Harvard's backs were due to the fact each Harvard man did his particular job well.

Frank will be hurried more on Saturday than he has been in any previous game this year.

• • •

HARVARD WILL have its full strength in the field on Saturday. The starting lineup will be as powerful as the one that crushed Princeton.

Harvard will enter the game against Yale with the firm belief it will win. It believes it has the necessary power and plays to defeat Yale, even with the great Clint Frank in the lineup.

If you should meet Dick Harlow during the next few days and should find him in deep meditation, you can be sure he is trying to figure out ways and means to halt the rush of Clint Frank on Saturday.

Frank "King" Clancy is again in our midst—not as a player but a coach. He's here with the Montreal Maroons and just rarin' to take a fall out of Art Ross' Bruins.

"King" was one of the most colorful players the N. H. L. ever produced. The fans idolized him in Ottawa and particularly in Toronto where his drawing power pulled Connie Smythe and the Maple Leaf Gardens out of the "red."

"King" is a great actor, and possesses a wonderful sense of humor. He never misses a chance to ease himself into a fight but frankly admits he never won a decision.

He delights in telling of the night in Montreal when a free-for-all started while he was on the bench.

By the time he got over the rail, the other players had all selected their opponents, leaving Wilf Starr, who, along with being a wrestler, was an exceptionally strong youngster, for "King."

Starr tossed "King" around, bouncing him off the ice and fence until he got tired. Then he dropped "King" and skated over to work on some of the other boys. But, the next time trouble cropped up, "King" was up and at 'em again. He has never been known to quit.

One week from next Saturday night the South Shore Country Club will honor Felix Caracciolo, Yale's watch charm guard, with a testimonial dinner.

Caracciolo was a caddy at South Shore and the members of the West Hingham club are anxious to show him that they are still his well wishers.

Young Caracciolo has pulled himself up by his boot tops. He has not been in this country ten years, yet he is a junior in the Sheffield School of Engineering and has won two varsity football "Y's," along with being awarded the Norman Hall Scholarship.

Caracciolo matriculated at Yale to become an electrical engineer. His football was and still is secondary to his education. He's a fine student and a popular gridster. And he'll go places in the business world.

Tufts '41 Closes

Charge Bevan Made Bid for Harmon

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 16 (INS)—Charges that a Tulane University assistant football coach sought to proselyte a star freshman athlete after he had matriculated at the University of Michigan were made today in a copyrighted story in the Michigan Daily, official student newspaper.

The paper published a photostatic copy of the telegram allegedly sent to Tom Harmon, Gary, Ind., by Bill Bevan, the assistant coach who was a former All-American with Minnesota.

The telegram said:

"Your help at simon pure school will always be subject to criticism. Our offer still stands. Wire me, collect, New Orleans Monday. Can still enter this semester. Bill Bevan."

The reference to criticism was made because Harmon, rated as the nation's outstanding prep athlete by Fielding H. Yost, Michigan director of athletics, last year, was one of the freshman athletes mentioned in an internal probe into alleged proselyting on the Michigan campus last week.

Two copyright stories were written by Michigan Daily sports writers.

Sports Editor Irvin [illegible] wrote:

"Reliable informers told the Daily last night that Tulane's offer, as is the custom among southern schools which abide by this proselyting practice, probably included allowances for board, room, tuition, laundry, books, clothes and from $10 to $20 spending money a month. Exceptional athletes are further proffered a flat sum to tide them over the idle summer months, these informers reported.

"Although Harmon was reluctant to reveal other bids which he had received, he did name five Western Conference schools which wrangled for his services. These included Purdue, Illinois, Indiana, Chicago and Northwestern. Among other well known universities that sought him were Alabama, Louisiana State, Yale, Princeton, Michigan State, southern California, Pittsburgh, Cornell and Washington."

Panthers Voted Best By Experts

NEW YORK, Nov 16 (AP)—This is the Pittsburgh Panthers' year to show how [illegible] enough to give the Pasadena Rose Bowl pickers an earache. For the second straight week Dr. Jock Sutherland's merry young men are on top of the nation's football rankings conducted by the Associated Press.

The Panthers were rated on top by 43 of 53 experts [illegible] second [illegible] first place and Alabama [illegible] drew two. The experts split [illegible] between the Panthers and either California or Fordham.

With the top teams [illegible] Yale and Minnesota [illegible] and Louisiana State entered the charmed circle for the first time in a month.

The tabulation with points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

First Ten	Points
1. Pittsburgh	517½
2. California	433
3. Alabama	393
4. Fordham	377½
5. Yale	280
6. Santa Clara	272
7. Minnesota	243
8. Louisiana State	212
9. Dartmouth	104

DUKE STOPPED HIM

With the Northeast still holding five first places in the first group, the South slipped the greatest change. Duke, whose [illegible] players were already singing "California, Here We Come," was bounced out of the elect division by North Carolina's artistry operatives. The defeat also shaded Duke's hopes for a Southern Conference title.

The retirement of the Blue Devils made way for Louisiana State, a perennial Southern leader, which downed Auburn Saturday. The Tigers have lost only to Vanderbilt.

Yale drew away from the other Ivy League nominee for national honors, Dartmouth, with the rout of Princeton and now heads for its yearly rendezvous with the Harvards. Dartmouth dropped in the standings as a result of its tie with powerful Cornell.

Stanford apparently on the make since Bill Paulman returned to form, marks its challenge to California for Coast leadership and that Bowl bid by climbing to 13th place. The Indians were not ranked in any previous poll.

Longden Rides Long Shots At Bowie

(By the Associated Press)

Jack Campbell is running into an unusual kind of difficulty at Bowie—that of trying to scatter the entries around so all the owners and trainers will be satisfied they're getting their chance to win now and then. With a large number of horses stabled at the Maryland track, he has to toss out from 30 to 40 would-be starters in every race and those that are thrown out don't like it.

The system followed is to have the horsemen themselves draw to decide which horses will run and which won't. Occasionally the same horse is thrown out of two or more races in succession. Campbell is hoping that departures for winter tracks will reduce the number so that the cheaper racers can get a chance now and then.

In contrast to those owners and jockeys who can't win at all, Owner H. P. Metcalf and Jockey Johnny Longden scored remunerative doubles at Bowie yesterday. A son and daughter of Abbots Nymph out of Big Sally, High Velocity and Little Sally, won for Metcalf, the former taking the Class C Eden Handicap which topped the card. Little Sally paid $24.10 and High Velocity $14.30 in the $2 mutuels.

Longden rode two long shots, Johake ($18.40) and Dark Friend ($45.30), in the first and fourth races.

William Ziegler, Jr., Esposa, recent conqueror of Seabiscuit, came out of the race in poor condition and will not start again before next spring. Trainer Matt Brady believes the mare will recover from her lameness with the aid of the long rest and will be able to resume training by early spring.

E. K. Bryson's Calumet Dick has recovered from his recent injury and will be named for both the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap and the $50,000 Widener Challenge Cup.

It looked more like a pilgrimage than a shipment of horses when the Tranquility Farm's string left Laurel for California. The train not only carried 56 head of horses, in charge of ETrainer Ed Snyder, but it had Pullmans and a dining car for stable employes.

Brown Prepares For Rutgers Test

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 16 (AP)—Brown gets down to serious preparations today for its Thanksgiving Day football joust with Rutgers. Yesterday was a day of rest but this afternoon work will be resumed at the usual practice pace.

Tonight the Bruins will be given their weekly blackboard drill and will be shown movies of the mud battle against Holy Cross. The Bruins came through the fracas with the Crusaders in excellent physical shape.

Third Dilboy Show To Have 20 Bouts

Entries suffiient for more than 20 good bouts have been received by director Fred Russo for the third Dilboy Post, V. F. W., amateur boxing carnival of the season Thursday night at the High School Gymnasium in Somerville.

In addition to the purse of 50 per cent of the gate receipts, which will be split on a basis of 75 per cent for the winner and 25 per cent for the loser, the wrestlers have also agreed to toss their forfeits of $1000 each into the general pool.

Sandow, a few days ago, announced he would not let Marshall go into the battle with one of Bowser's regular referees in charge. He insisted upon an out-of-town man.

Marshall is due in Boston today. He has been training at George Bothner's gymnasium in New York. According to Sandow, Everett is in superb condition and will beat Westenberg.

Michigan State Dalers Retire Trophy

NEW YORK, Nov 16 (INS)—The Michigan State Spartans permanently retired the Intercollegiate [illegible] championship [illegible] the event for the [illegible] although their [illegible] defending champion Ken Waite was [illegible]

[illegible] yards ahead of [illegible] Syracuse [illegible] was [illegible] Jesse Dagner of Syracuse was [illegible] and D. Smith of Maine [illegible]

The [illegible] who carried the Spartans to the team title with 89 points were Waite, Richard Frey, sixth; Arthur Green, 15th; Harold [illegible] and Gerald Boss, 17th. Syracuse finished second with 67 points and Manhattan third with 73.

William Smith of Penn State won the freshman race by 40 yards over Ra[illegible] of Syracuse. Pittsburgh won the first year team title by a wide margin by virtue of Rod [illegible] place finish [illegible] and Albert Hi[illegible]sangers fifth, aggregating 49 points.

Boycott on Max Still Holds

NEW YORK, Nov 16 (INS)—The anti-Nazi boycott which led to substitution of Joe Louis for Max Schmeling against Heavyweight Champion Jim Braddock last June has been revived against the German former champion.

In a letter signed by President [illegible] the non-sectarian anti-Nazi league to champion human rights notified Promoter Mike Jacobs that supporters of the [illegible] will be urged to withhold [illegible] from the Schmeling-Harry Thomas bout here on December 13.

This is in keeping with widely circulated reports to the effect that the Schmeling-Thomas fight was arranged purposely to ascertain what possible bearing the anti-Nazi boycott may have on a proposed Schmeling-Louis title fight next year.

Anderson Weeps At Carnegie Test

WORCESTER, Nov. 16 (AP)—The famous eye, ear, nose, and throat man, Doc Anderson, coach of Holy Cross, began working up today toward his usual Friday night prediction—"I'd settle for 7 to 6 right now."

The doctor's talk today was, "This game against Carnegie Tech on Saturday looks like the hardest on our schedule. We'll play better football than we have or we won't get past.

Today a year ago—Michigan State won I. C. A. A. A. A. cross country race for fourth straight time, equalling Cornell's record; Ken Waite, Michigan State, took individual title.

Bowie Officials War on Bookies

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 16 (INS)—Bowie officials declared war yesterday upon the bookmakers who infest the course and grab a big play away from the machines.

These bookies handle close to $30,000 daily and prevent the track from getting any "take" on that amount. The bookmakers pay off at official odds, so the bettor is favored, as he does not have to suffer from the financial cut the track takes off on all wagers win or lose.

The track wants to make it impossible for a bookmaker to operate at the expense of the racing association. Quick calculation proves that if the $30,000 were shoved through the machines, the association would profit close to $1800 daily, quite an item. As it is now the mutuels lose this amount through the brazen operation of the bookmakers.

Phil Weintraub Traded to Orioles

NEW YORK, Nov 16 (INS)—Phil Weintraub, first baseman and outfielder of the New York Giants, today went to the Baltimore Orioles of the International League as part payment for Pitcher Hy Vandenberg.

Boxing Results

PITTSBURGH—Jack Trammell, 188, Pittsburgh Negro, pounded out 10-round decision over Marty Gallagher, 210, Washington, D. C. Tommy Spiegel, 135, Uniontown, Pa., outpointed Eddie Zivic, 135, Pittsburgh, 10 rounds.

HOLYOKE—Louis Hartwick (Cocoa Kid), New Haven, retained Negro welterweight championship of this continent by stopping Sonny Jones, 142½, Alberta, Canada, in sixth round of scheduled 15. Referee Jack Sharkey stopped bout.

Building Seen Key To Trade

Called Main Theme Of Discussions On Business

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The principal theme of all discussions on business and trade conditions, whether they take place in financial or political circles, is construction, or rather the lack of it this year. Sometimes it is obscured by the emphasis placed on the factors which have retarded it, but a little digging brings out the real issue.

Begin with the arguments on the surplus tax law which are variously blamed for weakening corporate structures by forcing the payment of too large dividends or for distorting the relationship between selling price and return. These are sound criticisms. But, in the long run, are they not secondary to that which concludes the crippling of initiative, by curbing the motive for more profits, resulted in an unnatural contraction in industrial construction?

Now take the gestures toward utilities, which obviously come hard. Is not the real reason that this all-important contributor to construction has not been doing its part because of fears regarding its future? We feel these are the real facts of the friendliness Washington is exhibiting toward industry and business because it has finally dawned on reformists that pump priming is useless if private capital is scared. And the coming conferences on ways and means to encourage private capital to support a large scale housing program just about clinches the argument that construction is the key not only to present declines but future revival.

AIRCRAFT PROFITS SOAR

Aircraft manufacture is one industry that has not felt the effect of a recession in general trade and appears to be headed for record profits this year. So far it has been immune to curtailment due to the large total of unfilled orders on hand when economic conditions turned less favorable. As for the forecast of record profits that is not difficult to understand when the nine months' earning reports of leading units are studied. For the most part—and in the aggregate for a group of leading companies—figures were well ahead of the same 1936 period, which was considered good. And even though some large makers estimate a decline in earnings for the final quarter, the industry as a whole should show some improvement.

• • •

If a longer look ahead is taken, the aircraft manufacturing industry still seems to occupy an enviable position. For the requirements of the government aviation program together with those of commercial transport lines, are expected to prevent a major letdown for many months, possibly during the entire year 1938. As for the probable decline in fourth quarter earnings of leading units, there is no reason to be alarmed, as it is the question of deliveries rather than orders that will be responsible.

REACTION TELLS STORY

It has often been said, and we think correctly, that after a long decline it is not the rallies but the declines following them that tell the real story of the market's position. Three points in this theory stand out in remarkable fashion. The first two for what they reveal and the third for the conclusions one is enabled to reach from the others. First, one is able to determine if there are willing buyers when stock is offered; second, a session or two of selling after a rebound usually answers all questions as to whether or not the reaction is due to profit-taking or renewed liquidation. If it is the former, pressure is not constant and nearby exhaustion may be anticipated.

• • •

Finally, in the event there are willing buyers, a reaction is soon brought under control regardless of the type of selling. And should it so happen that stock is coming from profit-takers, the end comes rather quickly and activity drys up within a reasonable length of time. Then, following dullness, prices proceed to work their way to fresh recovery highs. We think such is the case at present, although admitting more time is needed to observe market action.

New Selling Move Sends Stocks to Lower Levels

Keep Inventories In Hand, Is Watchword

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—"Keep inventories in hand" is the watchword of business today.

During the great recession of 1930-32 one blight was the size of inventories in some lines. Up to the time trouble set in trade and industry had undergone an enormous boom and shelves of retailers and manufacturers were well-stocked.

PLEAS FOR WORK

With the crash of the stock market and throttling down of production came pleas of the administration to keep men at work. In those days, it was recalled in Wall Street, the view held in high places was that business was fundamentally sound. Business, is was argued, was merely undergoing a phase of temporary indigestion which would soon pass.

Appeals to employers in many instances fell on fertile soil and production of some raw materials was kept up notwithstanding impairment of consumer buying power.

The following inventory increases by the end of 1930 over 1929 were estimated by Standard Statistics: copper 115 per cent; zinc 140; tin 66; turpentine 24; rosin 45; cement 10 and lubricating oil 33.

This swelling of stocks resulted in severe losses for some manufacturer, an experience still fresh in the minds of most and may result in a more cautious policy.

RAW MATERIALS

Last spring there was a general scramble for numerous raw materials. Producers were confronted with higher costs. Labor troubles were prevalent. The spectacular run-up of steel output provided an example of the desire of manufacturers to be well supplied. How well many were supplied with steel has been shown in the recent sharp dip in output.

Declines in output of other products and declining commodity prices also bear witness to the extent to which inventories had been allowed to expand.

As some see it, however, heavy inventories this time does not carry the threat to business which ruled between 1930 and 1932. For instance, it has been noted that although industrial production has slumped with but little interruption since last spring, consumer buying has held at a relatively high rate.

If these trends continue, analysts feel there will be a good chance of keeping inventories to manageable proportions.

Argentine Wool Production Up

Production of Argentine wool this year is estimated at 375,000,000 pounds, compared with 373,000,000 pounds last year, according to trade estimates made to the Department of Agriculture.

On the basis of this estimate, Argentina is expected to have an exportable surplus this year of 342,000,000 pounds, compared with 314,000,000 pounds actually exported last year, it was stated.

Light Trading Rules After Opening

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Stocks ran the gamut of declines and rallies in today's market, with emphasis generally on the former.

The list stumbled at the start. Initial losses of 1 to 3 points—in a few cases as much as 6 or so—were later reduced, cancelled or converted into small advances. A new selling move got under way near the final hour, with steels, motors, coppers and specialties dipping to low levels of the session.

Falling steel operations, fresh labor difficulties in the automotive field in addition to slackening sales and production, and fears the congressional special session will hit a snag and dampen business hopes were seen as the principal restraining market influences.

BONDS, COMMODITIES OFF

Wall Street was at odds on the President's message, some interpreting it as bullish while others thought it held out little prospect of immediate aid for industry.

Conspicuous share losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse, duPont, Allied Chemical, Public Service of New Jersey, Anaconda, Kennecott, International Harvester, U. S. Gypsum, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Loew's, Coca-Cola and Owens-Illinois.

Gold mining stocks, such as Dome, McIntyre, Alaska Juneau and Homestake, edged forward.

Trade news continued to exhibit off-trends, although some analysts thought many lines, including steel, may be dragging bottom. It was realized, though, retailers may have to go through a price reducing period which could carry over into next year as unsold inventories are distributed.

In the matter of steel, observers in this field reported new orders from various industries have been coming into the plants recently and these were not reflected in the current week's operations, but should have a bolstering effect later.

CURRENT ITEMS

The Texas Railroad Commission, confronted with a sizable increase in crude petroleum production throughout the country during the week ended November 13, indicated it would enforce a shutdown in the East Texas field on four Sundays, beginning with the first one in December. The suspensions would result in a cut of about 2,000,000 barrels in the state's total output for the month.

Based on figures of the first few railroads to report, last week's freight loadings were estimated to have suffered a substantial decline, with the aggregate believed below the 700,000 mark.

Earnings of aircraft and aviation equipment manufacturers for 1937 were expected to reach record levels, with gains over last year running as high as 80 per cent.

Sterling, at the beginning of foreign currency transactions, was up 1⅛ cents at $5.00⅞. The French franc was .00⅛ of a cent better at 3.39⅞ cents.

National Income At New Peak

The national income produced in the United States rose in September to a new high recovery peak of $6,378,000,000, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. This represented, however, practically no change from the August figure of $6,375,000,000.

This was in marked contrast to the sharp seasonal increase which has occurred in previous years. At the same time, the national income in September was 13.1 per cent larger than in the same month last year, when it amounted to $5,639,000,000. When the figure for October is available it will probably show that any further expansion was less than the usual seasonal gain.

For November and December the outlook is that the income will decline by more than the usual seasonal amount. The income for the last quarter, however, should not, at the worst, be much lower than the $18,085,000,000 produced in the same period last year.

The gain over a year ago, from $45,714,000,000 to $54,112,000,000 for the first nine months, should consequently come close to equalling the gain for the full year.

Pitney Bowes Reports Profit

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Pitney Bowes Postage Meter Co., Stamford, Ct., reported net profit today for the nine months ended September 30 of $401,457, equal to 45 cents a capital share, compared with $347,101 or 39 cents a share in the like 1936 period.

Nutrition Study Plan to Aid Farmers

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—A plan for farm relief through making the general public better customers for agricultural products has been formulated by a so-called mixed committee on the problem of nutrition at Geneva, whose final report has been filed.

The Geneva body suggested that the problem be worked out within national frontiers by national nutrition committees.

Dr. E. G. Nourse, director, institute of economics of the Brookings Institution at Washington, who served on the Geneva committee, told me:

"I have been disposed to give some time and thought to this effort because it seems to me to make a link between the extensive study of the agricultural adjustment administration which we recently completed and the larger study of America's capacity to produce and to consume, which has completed its exploratory stage and is now going into the second stage of intensification on particular applied problems.

"I am concerned that the results of the nutrition committee's work be disseminated as widely as possible in this country in the hope that (through a citizens' committee or otherwise) the various parties at interest may come together for constructive consideration of this problem."

MILLS' WARNING

The trend of the international study on nutrition recalled the late Ogden Mills' warning that you cannot correct the paradox of want amidst plenty by abolishing the plenty. The survey suggests a constructive alternative to the emergency device of farm relief through killing little pigs.

In suggesting the consequences on farm prosperity of better consumption of agricultural commodities, the mixed committee, after a prolonged study, reached the subjoined conclusion:

"Improved nutrition must immediately or in a short lapse of time prove of general benefit to agriculture and fishing.

"Better nutrition means an increase in the demand for foodstuffs; and an increase in the demand for foodstuffs implies greater agricultural activity. Certain adjustments in agricultural production will no doubt be required; adjustments are always required when social progress occurs.

"It would, however, be a mistake to exaggerate the magnitude of these adjustments. The change in dietary habits to which we look forward will be steady and gradual; it will not occur in a day.

"Moreover, the majority of the protective foodstuffs (milk, vegetables, etc.) are of a perishable character so that they must necessarily be produced not far from their place of consumption.

"As these foods come to play a more prominent part in national diets, therefore, their production will offer a natural stimulus and protection to domestic agriculture.

BASIS OF DIET

"But the energy-bearing foods still remain, and will remain, the basis of the diet; they play an essential role in human nutrition. If the inadequacy of the diet of the lower-income groups in these countries, even as regards energy-bearing foods, be considered, it is clear that an improvement in the nutrition of these classes should benefit the arable farmer; if the world problem of nutrition be viewed as a whole, the enormous scope for increase in the consumption and production of cereals and certain other foodstuffs valued chiefly for their energy-yielding qualities becomes at once apparent.

"While national agricultural systems will thus benefit by the growth in the demand particularly for the more perishable protective foods, countries producing for export will benefit, as the primary needs of the poorer classes for energy-producing and less perishable protective foods are more adequately satisfied."

Perhaps enough has already been quoted to suggest to alert American food producers and merchandisers that this sedate document is chock-full of authoritative new selling arguments and appeals. It attacks agricultural relief from the selling side—from the standpoint of inducing customers in their own interest to consume more. This objective, incidentally, fits in with Secretary Wallace's new slogan for "Balanced Plenty."

New Orleans Without Failures

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Business failures in the 25 largest cities during September, according to Dun and Bradstreet, numbered 234 compared with 308 in August, and 229 in September, 1936. New Orleans was the only city in the United States with no business failures in August and September.

Noted Economist Says Danger of Panic Is Past

Encouraging News Of Past Week Seen Helpful

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics.)

Special to Boston Evening American.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—It is quite possible that we are now seeing the end of the first sharp slump that plunged business into this recession. This need not be the end of the decline. Probably it will not mark the beginning of any sustained recovery. But the danger of panic is apparently past, and we can settle down to dealing with unemployment and relief with some fairly definite idea of the nature and extent of the problem.

In fact, it is well to remember that sometimes a sharp reaction is a short one.

In the present case, moreover, there is much reason to believe that it is possible to turn business around by political action. (Usually, I have little sympathy with the nation that business conditions are a matter of mere sentiment, and that government can make them good or bad at will.)

INFLATIONARY SPURTS

The so-called "recovery" was a series of inflationary spurts with sharp recessions in between. The timing of the last recession seems to have been definitely attributable to deflationary action taken by the government. And back of that is the fact that the main depressants have been fear of political control over business and the rise of labor politics. All these things seem curable by government action.

Even so, however, I suppose that business is unlikely to begin a sustained rise much before next spring. There was a time in the early fall when business might have been turned upward. But now the cumulative effects of curtailment, unemployment, and reduced buying are beginning to appear. Time will be required to restore the lost equilibrium, to say nothing of moving upward.

On the whole, last week's news was the most encouraging that has appeared since Labor Day.

COMMODITY MARTS

Decidedly in first place comes the first show of strength in commodity markets in a long while. The average was about unchanged. More than that, a majority of the more sensitive commodity prices that have led in the deflation were firmer.

Among the gains were those of wheat, cocoa, sugar, lard, hides, foreign copper, tin, rubber, cotton and wool tops. Domestic markets for non-ferrous metals, print cloths and corn were practically unchanged at the end of the week. Steel scrap, coffee and silk were the most notable weak spots; but the scrap market is "nominal," and the coffee market signals the collapse of Brazil's valorization scheme.

As soon as commodity prices become stabilized, we may expect recovery to begin.

Perhaps next most encouraging is the leveling off of the curtailment in steel production, with a rebound in the Pittsburgh output.

The sharp contraction in steelmaking has led and characterized this recession. If, at last, a level of stabilization is near or has been reached in that industry, the outlook will be more favorable. There is yet no basis, however, for anticipating any early upturn in steel production.

MOTOR INDUSTRY

The motor industry continues to slip, and has fallen below a year ago.

Incidentally the willingness of the government to ship gold and the resulting recovery of the dollar's strength in foreign exchange, were all to the good.

Finally, reports from Washington are to the effect that the "Wages and Hours Bill" has little chance in its present form. It is not to become a means of more "social planning" and "national thinking." This typifies the big news, which is that the notion that government control can insure business prosperity is being deflated.

Nobody wants history to refer to a "Roosevelt Depression of 1937-38"!

Oct. 'New Life' Insurance Off

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) — Production of new life insurance in the United States in October was 2 per cent less than October, 1936, but the total for the first 10 months of this year was 5.7 per cent more than the corresponding 1936 period, it was shown in the report of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents.

The new paid-up business of 40 companies having 82 per cent of life insurance outstanding in all legal reserve companies, the report said, amounted to $701,038,000 in October against $715,261,000 for the same month last year. The 10 months' total was $7,546,739,000, against $7,137,508,000 a year ago.

Retail Trade Estimate Up Over Last Year

Retail trade for 1937 is estimated to exceed $41 billions, a gain of 8 per cent over 1936 and 51 per cent ahead of 1933. Furthermore, reports the Brookmire Economic Service, retail trade has approached its all-time high.

The largest value of goods ever consumed by the people of the United States in one year occurred in 1929 when products valued at $49 billions were sold to the ultimate consumer. By 1933 a fall in both volume and price caused the total retail trade to contract 49 per cent to $25 billions. By 1936 the value had expanded 51 per cent to $38 billions, and indications point to a further increase to above $41 billions for 1937. At $41 billions retail trade is within 17 per cent of the highest level ever attained.

Some indication as to what constitutes retail trade can be had from the accompanying table:

RETAIL SALES BY GROUPS

	Per Cent of 1935 Total
Food and Beverage groups	33.3
Automotive and Filling Stations groups	19.8
Mail Order, Variety and Apparel Stores	11.6
Department, Dry Goods and General Merchandise	10.5
Lumber, Building and Hardware	5.6
Farmers' Supply and Country General	5.2
Furniture and Household	3.9
Drug Stores	3.7
Other Stores	6.4
Total Retails Sales	100.0

Since about 42 per cent of the total retail trade is composed of sales by the relatively stable food stores, eating houses, variety stores, and filling stations, for aggregate trade to fall 49 per cent or to rise 51.5 per cent—as it did between 1929 and 1936—some violent changes are necessary in certain sales groups.

Between 1929 and 1933 those stores which suffered the greatest loss in trade were the ones selling furniture and household products; jewelry, lumber, building and hardware; and automotive products. In the recovery from 1933 to 1936, the same group of stores, in the main, showed the best percentage rises. Eating and drinking place sales show a meteoric rise from 1933 to 1936, conclude these economists, largely as a result of prohibition repeal.

N. E. Telephone To Pay $1.50

At a meeting of the directors of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company today, a dividend of $1.50 per share was declared, payable on Tuesday, December 21, 1937, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Friday, December 3, 1937.

Rural Sales Up

Daily average sales of general merchandise in small towns and rural areas for October were about 3½ per cent above October, 1936, Department of Commerce reported.

Curb Retreats on Wide Front

NEW YORK, Nov 16 (AP)—Curb stocks retreated along a wide front in moderately active dealings today. Most active issues were off fractions and some higher-priced specialty shares dropped as much as five points in small trades.

Principal selling centered in the utilities and as the noon hour neared they were off fractions to around a point. Northern States Power "A" was off more than a point and Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric, Niagara Hudson Power and American Superpower dipped fractions.

Babcock & Wilcox dropped around 5½ points in an odd lot transaction and American Meter, Eagle Picher, Jones & Laughlin, Buckeye Pipe Line and Master Electric were down a point or more.

Simonds Saw Declares 80 Cents

A 50 cent dividend was paid in September. On the basis of the present shares, adjusted under a 10 for 1 split in May, dividends for the year total $2 a share, the company stated.

Auto Employment Tops 1929

Employment in the automobile industry reached an all-time high during the 1937 car year. There were 530,000 workers employed topping the 1929 level by 82,000.

Thriving City Visited by Forbes

By B. C. FORBES

IN THE MIDDLE-WEST, Nov. 16—It is invigorating to visit one city of no complaints, one city that nobly weathered economic storms of recent years, one city that is going steadily ahead.

You step on an ultra-modern streamlined train at Chicago, and in 160 minutes you find yourself 161 miles into the heart of Illinois, at Peoria.

The beauty of the surroundings first attracts. Drive around and you find impressive evidences of expansion and prosperity. Talk with citizens and they express pride in their progressive community.

EMPLOYMENT HIGHER

Payrolls in major industries have increased well over 50 per cent since 1934.

This city is the largest distilling center in the world; on its annual capacity of 84,000,000 gallons it pays federal taxes approximating $200,000,000. Hiram Walker is spending million after million on expansions.

Peoria turns out almost 1000 different products.

It has become a notable grain market and livestock market—in early mornings, surrounding roads hum with trucks laden with hogs, cattle, sheep. I have never seen better corn-raising country.

It is constantly attracting new industries, thanks to an abundant supply of unique water (brought from wells at a constant temperature of 48 to 60 degrees), excellent transportation facilities, attractive tax rates, prosperous marketing territory, good living conditions and an abundance of recreational parks and amusements, a supply (but not now a super-abundant supply) of native-stock workers, etc.

STAR EXHIBIT

Peoria's star industrial exhibit is Caterpillar Tractor, pioneers in developing Diesel engines. On its 150-acre site, no less than 60 acres are under roof. Whereas it employed little over 2000 workers in July, 1932, its latest count reaches—make a guess.

No fewer than 13,200.

12 Mos. Ending	Net Sales	Net Profits
Dec. 31, 1933	$14,408,002	$302,718
Dec. 31, 1934	22,789,320	3,451,192
Dec. 31, 1935	36,417,193	5,949,207
Dec. 31, 1936	54,118,002	9,449,592
Aug. 31, 1937	67,003,804	12,109,700

President B. C. Heacock tells me that orders have slackened somewhat, but that he had adopted a policy of conserving employment by building up inventories, hopeful that the economic recession will prove neither acute nor prolonged.

Pacific Mills Passes Dividend

Directors of Pacific Mills took no action on the dividend ordinarily due at this time. This year the company has paid three dividends of 50 cents each. A year ago $1 was paid, the first dividend since September 1, 1934.

Deal's New Business

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Administration's yen to do business with the business men comes under the classification of new business.

The Treasury Department was the bird dog for this latest move which was consolidated by the Sunday night fireside soliloquy in F Minor. Mr. Roosevelt, like all radio entertainers, requires commercial sponsors.

It seems that the head man could have saved money and trouble by giving his fourteen questions to the newspapers to be printed in a space like this. It would have taken the pressure off the Post Office Department and given Jim Farley time to think up new wise cracks about cornerstones.

Minister Builds Own Church

SPRINGFIELD, O. (INS)—Rev. Elmer E. Connin, who is pastor of what is known as Springfield's "one man church," is a very versatile gentleman.

Last August Rev. Connin started construction of a new Pilgrim Holiness Church. Recently he finished the job. Practically single handed he planned, contracted for, and built the church of stone. In his spare time he landscaped the grounds and laid new sod.

The main auditorium of the church seats 200 and the building, which is air conditioned, has a modern heating system.

Voting Results 'Hopeful Sign'

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 16 (AP) — Norman MacDonald, executive director of the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers Associations, told the third annual Iowa Taxpayers Association meeting today that defeat of Tammany in New York, Curleyism in Boston and CIO candidates in Detroit was "the most hopeful sign on the governmental horizon since the war."

Referring to recent municipal elections, MacDonald declared in his prepared address:

"These happy results are as important to the farmers of Iowa as they are inevitably beacons pointing to the rebirth of the old American ideals of the individual citizen's responsibility for the kind of government under which he chooses to live."

Real PEOPLE IN A Real CONTEST

Says LT. ROBERT LYNCH
Special Service Squad
Boston Police Department

"It's great to be able to relax and spend a few minutes a day figuring out what Human Problem is being illustrated in the Boston American Contest. The boys here at Headquarters are naturally out to win too and that big $15,000.00 is a lot of money."

And what Lt. Robert Lynch says is true with thousands of other Boston American Readers. ARE YOU TAKING ADVANTAGE OF THIS GREAT OPPORTUNITY?

Among the vessel's doomed passengers were a wealthy man and wife, he of world-wide fame as a philanthropist.

[illegible] the elderly couple. She was urged to take a place in the last boat. "My husband and I have been together 40 years, and we shall always remain together."

One of the two conclusions given below was taken from the original story (see Rules). Select the one you consider correct.

A. "I will die with him."

B. "To carry on his work, I will seek safety."

READ THESE EASY RULES

- The Editors of the Boston Evening American have written and illustrated 90 short stories that deal with HUMAN PROBLEMS.
- One story will appear daily for 15 weeks. Each week six will appear. Each six represents a Set. There will be 15 Sets.
- Each story has been written and illustrated so that you may with skill and judgement be able to find the correct conclusion.
- Each story will have clues in the text or illustration that will point to the one correct conclusion. (Stories are taken from fiction, fable, history and the pages of this paper.)
- The contest began October 4th, 1937, and ends January 22nd, 1938.
- Anyone in New England may enter except employees of Hearst Newspapers and members of their families.
- The One Hundred contestants who have most successfully selected the correct conclusions, thereby obtaining the highest grade, will be awarded in the order of their gradings a total of $20,000.00 in Cash. The first award will be $15,000.00 with 99 consolation awards listed on this page.
- NEATNESS is not a factor in the judging of the answers.
- Five judges have been appointed. They will have the original source from which each story was taken as proof of the ONE correct solution.
- In case of ties only the tied contestants will submit an original problem in less than 200 words. This tie-breaking problem will be judged on its ORIGINALITY OF THOUGHT and its Human Quality. Neatness or grammatical construction does not count.
- Every contestant will have an individual file. They will receive an acknowledgement card of their entry with their contest number.
- The SETS-OF-SIX are to be sent in EACH WEEK in a Unit.
- TEN CENTS must be sent with EACH SET-OF-SIX. This is required to be eligible for a prize. The contestant will receive in return an illustrated booklet containing 15 original Human Problems. The booklet will be mailed at the conclusion of the contest to the contestants who have completed the ninety problems.
- The Judges will have final decision, and by entering you agree to accept their decisions as final.
- The Boston American will publish the correct conclusions following the awarding of the prizes and in case the contestants submit tie-breaking original problems these will be published in the new department of the Boston American, to be called the HUMAN FORUM.

Legion Members Drive Success

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 16 (AP)—A telegraphic roll call showed today the American Legion had reached 47.4 per cent, or 443,350 advance memberships, of the 935,112 national quota for 1938.

Leading the drive was Wisconsin with 30,092 advance memberships, compared with a quota of 29,930.

Other departments in the "Big Ten" list, with their quota percentages, were: Idaho, 91.12; Louisiana, 89.61; Maine, 80.86; Hawaii, 80.17; Georgia, 75.50; Indiana, 75.21; Florida, 70.33; New Hampshire, 69.99; and Virginia, 69.93.

The total of advance memberships was the second largest in history of the organization. Last year's roll call netted 448,559.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1937

✚ Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them, for this is the law and the prophets.—St. Matthew VII., 12. ✚

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. James T. Rider, pastor of the Clarendon Street Church, Boston. The text for tomorrow will be suggested by the Rev. Forrest Lee Nicol, pastor of St. John's Church, Fall River.

The Editor Says:

WITH Congress again in session, the dominant need of the hour is to AVERT A SERIOUS BUSINESS RECESSION in the United States through EXPANDING THE BUYING POWER of the people.

The simple truth is that the purchasing power of the workers results from their own production of salable goods.

Accordingly, the workers and their families receive fewer goods for their own use and pleasure.

Through increasingly onerous taxation, government in all its forms has been taking ONE-QUARTER OF THE TOTAL PRODUCTION of the people.

So, if a man works 40 hours a week, he really works but 30 hours for himself and his family, and TEN HOURS for supporting the vast number on the government payroll.

Tax revision and tax reduction constitute, therefore, the Number One Recovery Measure. Without them, we cannot have the jobs and wages we need.

GRIM PICTURES

—of flood devastation in New England are recalled as the Connecticut and Merrimack rivers, swollen by the weekend rains, overflow their banks in various low-lying areas.

Once more flashboards are hastily removed from dams and sandbag bulwarks erected to protect factory basements. The stage is set for a repetition of the disaster of three years ago. Only the Weather Man's timely turning off of the downpour prevents it.

Coming on the eve of the special session of Congress, this ought to convince Senators and Representatives that New England needs and MUST HAVE, adequate flood control projects. Consequently the interstate compacts, tossed into the Washington wastebasket last spring, should be brought out and APPROVED.

Delaying flood control is foolhardy. Had Saturday's rain continued a week, ten times the amount asked for control projects would be required to repair the damage in the river valleys.

HEAVEN-BOUND

—were a dozen men, women and children who ventured onto Massachusetts highways during the past week. The twelve, according to Motor Vehicles Registrar Frank A. Goodwin, were killed by drivers who didn't see them "until it was too late."

The death toll among pedestrians is a disgrace in this State. Week after week it mounts, despite all that has been said and done to make the public safety conscious.

The trouble with most of us is that we are supreme optimists. We can readily imagine the other fellow's being killed. But never can we envision such a tragic ending for ourselves.

The time to abandon that silly belief is NOW. We can all die, never quicker than under the wheels of an automobile.

When everybody realizes this and begins to practise caution, there will be a drastic reduction in our highway deaths. The realization cannot come too soon.

FLOUR BOMBS

—hurled from National Guard planes flying over Wollaston bay struck a big fishing boat and drove other craft to port. The paper bag "shells" were dropped to prove that commercial planes could be used for aerial raids in time of war.

The results, according to Army observers, were highly successful. Direct hits were scored in spite of the fact that the marksmen were sailing through the air at more than 100 miles an hour.

We are fortunate that this is the only kind of raid we have experienced; the real thing would be vastly different. And, instead of calmly brushing flour from their coats and finding the attack "great fun," the bomb targets would now be too widely scattered for even the undertaker to worry about them.

It is impossible to simulate the horrors of war or to obtain a really accurate picture of an air raid. Targets seldom live to tell us how it felt to be hit.

POLITICAL MEDDLING

—is largely responsible for the increase in crime in the United States, Sanford Bates, former director of the Federal Prison Bureau, wisely informed the Old South Forum.

> "The spoils system has the law-enforcement machinery of the country in its grasp more than ever before," he said. "Take the county jails. There are more than 3000 of them in the nation, and practically every one is a prey of county politics."

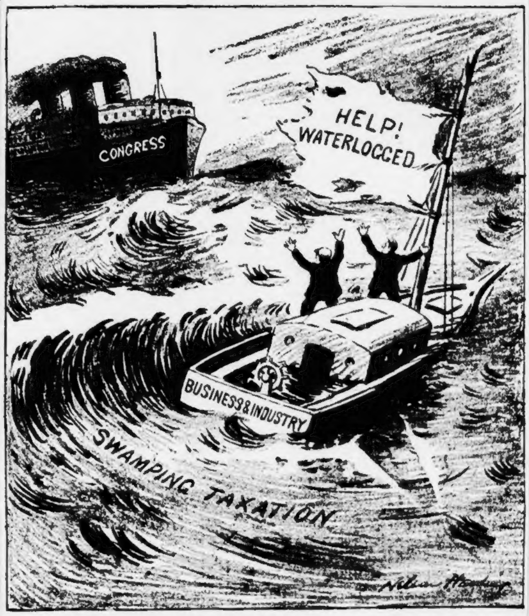
That is the truth, as every newspaper reader knows. Criminals are freed, paroled and sometimes even excused from appearing in court simply because they or their families happen to be "in right" with a politician.

Badly needed in this country are prison cells with twin beds—one for the criminal and the other for the political meddler who comes to his assistance.

Heed the Distress Signal!

By Nelson Harding



Business and industry were flying the distress signal even before the special session of Congress was called.

Waterlogged by confiscatory taxes and by numerous restrictions, business and industry seem very fortunate to be able to remain afloat.

Congress SHOULD HEED IT. Helping business and industry to progress helps all the people in the country who depend on business and industry for work and wages.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.

MOST laughs and applause go to the comedian or the comedienne. Few in the average audience realize the finesse and value of the feeder or straight man. Yet without him most gags would fall flat. In a large crowded theater laugh results depend largely on timing.

And that is where the straight man shines. Rudy Vallee has developed into a crackerjack straight man although he grows just a trifle too precise. George Burns opens the way deftly for Gracie Allen's outrageous blunders. A split second will often make a good gag a poor jest.

Jay Brennan, teamed opposite the rowdy female impersonator, Bert Savoy, was one of the most capable of straight men. At many opening performances the frightened Savoy was fairly bucked over the line by Brennan's savoir-faire. Jim Corbett was also quick on the uptake as a straight man.

Then there is Cliff (Charlie) Hall, who is a foil to Jack Pearl's Baron Munchausen. He is unrivaled in jockeying a gag to the barrier for the fast getaway. Straight men do not get the pay or glory of the comics—but their pay is pretty high at that.

Harold Ross is reputedly one of the most temperamental editors—flying into sudden rages and as suddenly turning to office pranks with the enthusiasm of a school boy. More than almost any editor of his time, he has developed a new school of art humor, a twist that finds expression in such delineators as Peter Arno, Helen Hodkinson, Otto Soglow, Georgia Price, Shermund and Thurber.

Not one of them was old enough for the he-she jokes of the Life and Puck days, and each is representative of a new type of humor that has burgeoned in their generation.

H. P. Burton, the Cosmopolitan editor, is one of the least spectacular but one of the best liked of the magazine chiefs. He has no inclination to publicize himself and can rarely be induced to sign some of his editorial pronouncements, which are invariably polished and lucid. I have never seen a picture of him in print or caught him flitting from table to table in the Algonquin lunch-time show-offery. One of his great assets is his enthusiasm. When an author turns in a serial, short story or essay, he has an immediate impression by telephone and telegraph that the entire editorial force has taken a day off to sing hossanahs and dance in the street.

The late Horace Lorimer had the reputation of having the iciest exterior of the great editors. He had his favorites and stuck to them like glue, even when their best writing years were behind. He especially hated New York and was not here more than a dozen times in his life. He suggested Cobb's story, "'Twixt the Bluff and The Sound." He would invariably detour New York when going to cities farther East.

The elevation of Wesley Stout to Lorimer's post has resulted in many changes. Stout has a younger viewpoint and perhaps fresher enthusiasm. Many old guard writers have been dropped and others are to be cast away when their contracts are fulfilled.

The Boston, Nimble, has given way to a series of his goofy spells again today. And work is not going on as usual around this shop. When he puts on an act everything stops in all departments. It started when he awakened from a nap suddenly and began barking as though something had him. When fully awake and realizing how sappy he had been, he sneaked off in a corner and hid his face between his paws for another snooze.

But every now and again he would pop up suddenly, the hair on his back would bristle, and he would circle about stiff-legged with a menacing growl. The cause of his conniptions—a big left-over bottle-fly that was giving him the buzz, the fraidy!

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

TEAM WORK

When you ask a happily married pair which charm or virtue they most admire in each other, it is amusing to see the look of blank bewilderment comes into their eyes.

They don't KNOW! They haven't stopped to think of it. Is it his thoughtfulness, his generosity, his intelligence? Is it her understanding, her sweetness, her sense of humor? They are utterly vague and uncertain about it.

But if you should ask either of them what little failing they found hardest to bear with in their respective spouses, they wouldn't HAVE to stop and think. They'd know right off the bat! And they wouldn't need a Greek dictionary to find a word for it.

Newspapers and magazines are constantly giving new formulae for selecting a husband, a new system for picking out a wife, or a new recipe for making a "go" of marriage. But a husband is much like a cocktail—a mixture of several ingredients, and the only thing about him of which you can be absolutely sure is that you LIKE him—or that you DON'T.

Nobody can tell any woman just what combination of qualities will make a good husband for HER, because the whole success of a marriage depends on the TEAM-WORK! And unless a man and a woman are gaited to do team-work—unless each understands where the other is heading and pulls in the same direction and keeps the same pace, any marriage is hard sledding.

The trouble with most marriages which end in Mexico or Reno is too much "rugged individuality," too much self-expression—and too little team-work.

What is needed for happiness in marriage is not a "model husband" or a paragon of all the virtues—but a good running-mate.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

SHUFFLING along in the chill drizzle, chin tucked deep in the collar of his overcoat, went Chin Lam, leader of Chicago's Chinatown and one-time head of the great On Leong Tong.

Rich and powerful was Chin Lam—with many enemies. A killer crept up behind him, whirled him around by the shoulder and fired four bullets into his chest. Chin Lam was dead before he hit the sidewalk.

That murder sent a thrill of apprehension through the police force of every large city in America.

Does the murder of Chin Lam mean the outbreak of another tong war—another bloody conflict between the On Leong Tong and the Hip Sing Tong?

There have been many in recent years. A killing in Chicago may touch off reprisal killings in San Francisco, Denver, Boston and New York. An eye for an eye. A tooth for a tooth. That is the creed of the tongs.

The tongs of the Chinese are American-born, having their origin in a banding-together against persecution. They are a combination of clan, labor union, mutual aid association and guild. For thirty-odd years On Leon and Hip Sing have warred upon each other with hatchet and knife. The word "tong" in Chinese, denotes a hall, especially one in which the Chinese worships his ancestors. Hence the tong gets to be a secret society of blood brothers.

In every large city there is a Chinatown with its own mayor, courts, judges, juries and schools. They settle their own troubles, and the overt acts of the tongs are phases of this curiously encysted government within a government. For example, Chicago, with a Chinese population of about 10,000, has had only one civil case brought by a Chinese.

In the Temple of Kwan Tai, with a gilded altar and incense burning day and night, sit the bearded elders on tall teakwood chairs. They administer an ancient rubric, in which a nod or a grave gesture may signalize death for a man a thousand miles away. Secrecy is sworn and observed.

Little can the white man learn of the yellow man's gods, his hatreds, his blood feuds, his loyalties or treasons. But they hand a man a little "flower of death," and thereafter the world does not know him long.

Years ago, as a cub reporter with an inextinguishable curiosity about odd corners of New York, I betook myself one night off to Chinatown. It is still pretty much as it was in those days—a huddle of queer-smelling rookeries just off Chatham square.

A young gentleman of my trade—Billy Henderson his name is, son of the late eminent music critic, William J. Henderson—bought tickets and we walked into the old theater which smelled like a hop-joint. It was indifferently lighted. There were no chairs. Benches were used—benches like old-fashioned country church pews. The house was packed that night because the current episode happened to be particularly juicy, packed with murder.

Just in front of us two kid reporters were half-a-dozen hard-looking customers—at least the thought came to us later. They were all of that. There came a piece of action in the play which called for an explosion of firecrackers. Explode they did, with a fire racket.

But something else exploded! The six Chinese sitting just in front of us had seized that favorable moment to yank out big 45's and shoot lead bullets into the Chinese sitting just in front of them.

In just no time at all young Mr. Henderson and your reporter were flat on the floor, our noses pressed to the grimy boards—and I never shall forget their smell—while the whole place turned into a bedlam, a madhouse of screaming Chinese, all trying to get out of the one exit and at the same time.

Then the police came, and counted up the casualties. Four dead. Two mortally hurt. On Leong had paid off an old score with Hip Sing.

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

IF THERE has been one clear message from the American people to its Presidents and representatives in Congress since Armistice Day, 1918, it is this:

> "No foreign entanglements. No more wars for us that are made in Europe."

Again and again all attempts to drag us into the League of Nations and its catch-basin, the World Court, have been defeated by the United States Senate and public sentiment.

It is doubtful if in all these 19 years you could have met a SINGLE PERSON in the whole country who was in favor of any KIND of an alliance with a foreign power.

Yet in spite of these obvious facts we are today NEARER AN ALLIANCE WITH EUROPEAN POWERS than we have ever been since 1927.

The causes: Ceaseless underground propaganda from England; the rebirth of that same counterfeit "humanitarianism" with which Woodrow Wilson knew so well how to disguise his real purposes; a carefully fostered fatalistic belief (unlike the innate self-reliant spirit of America) that we can't keep out of it.

Are we Americans as dumb, as gullible, as weak willed as England really believes we are?

We are building up a great navy. We are building an adequate protective air force.

Are we building them to protect England's grip on the Mediterranean, Hong Kong and India or are we building them to protect ourselves?

He is the Maharajah of Bikaner, India. He has just celebrated his golden jubilee as ruler of about 1,000,000 people.

He had himself weighed against pure gold and silver and found that his royal body was the equivalent of $112,500 in gold and $8000 in silver.

The $112,500 was taken from the public treasury and the $8000 from his privy purse and set aside for "charitable purposes."

Then the jubilee went on for days—all in medieval barbaric splendor. There were elephants gorgeously decorated and diamonds as big as crab apples and rubies and rare wines and dancing girls and all the rest of the flummery and mummery that go on in a land where men and women work for as low as three cents a day.

In England's India, the maharajahs and the princes wear crowns of precious jewels while the people wear CROWNS OF TAXES.

Don't depend on "boost," "drag," "pull," and "luck." You will die of dry rot waiting for these things to come your way.

Don't lie around waiting for something to "turn up." Use your will and brains. There's a lot of both lying unused in your own inner workshop.

Don't hope too much. TOMORROW NEVER COMES. Do it now. Plunge forward.

Affirm yourself even if you are wrong. What of it? The gesture of affirmation is worth more to you than whether you are right or wrong.

Put MUSCLE in your will. Be mentally athletic. Don't be afraid to be inconsistent. Life is a mass of inconsistencies. These are good old American pioneers' principles which seem to be decaying somewhat under the impact of European parasitism and mental and economic goose stepping.

STAMP ON IT!

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Fighting words—those! A terrific wallop at the egotism of a nation which boasts of its love for children—of the liberty and luxuries given its younger generation. But the man who says them knows whereof he speaks—and has scant patience with the Peevish Papas and Mad Mamas who'll be incensed thereby.

Years ago, out of his pity for neglected and misguided youth, Father Flanagan started a unique institution in Omaha—gave it his own name—"Father Flanagan's Boys' Home." And thousands of youngsters, redeemed from the gutter and gun gang, have reason to bless him for it.

Things are run strictly in Father Flanagan's Home. Punishments are meted out which raise Cain with the kiss-n'-coddle-'em tribe and those theorists who believe in "unfettered self-expression." Yes, this is certainly no place for sissies of any age . . . yet one never heard a complaint from the inmates.

And for the best of all reasons—the youngsters make their own rules, boss their own incorporated town, dispense their own sentences—which, as mentioned before, are plenty tough if necessary.

But severe punishment is rarely necessary in Father Flanagan's Home. Be decent yourself . . . stick on the job . . . give the youngsters unlimited faith, affection and the benefit of a good example, and neither you nor the cop will have to worry about your youngster's record.

That is Father Flanagan's philosophy.

"It isn't the youngster who needs correction," said he in a recent address before the Nebraska Conference for Social Work. "Nine times out of ten, it's the parent."

Many parents are Public Enemies in Father Flanagan's eyes, and he believes we'd save millions now expended for prison upkeep and eliminate a national disgrace if a few of them were put to the public lash.

And here's one writer who is in loud and hearty agreement. Don't whip the child. To do so is to take beastly advantage of your strength and his weakness, and is a shameful confession of your own mental inadequacy.
